U. S. DELEGATION LEAVES TO SEEK ECONOMIC PACT

Sails for Conference at London.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard S. S. President Roosevelt, May 31.—[Special.]—Prepared to make important concessions to bring about international agreements conducive to a restoration of world prosperity, but with waning optimism of the possible results, the American delegation set out today aboard this ship for the London economic conference.

Before the ship had fairly got to sea Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the delegation, called into conference the other three delegates aboard and the technical adviser to begin the final preparations for the international negotiations that are to begin on June 12.

The delegates present were Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], chairman of the senate foreign affairs committee, and Representative Sam D. McReynolds [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house foreign affairs committee; Ralph W. Morrison, Texas banker and cotton planter. Absent were Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for President in 1920, and Senator James Couzens of Michigan, sole representative of the Republican party in the delegation. They will sail later.

Hull Prepares Address.

Secretary Hull, it transpired, is now engaged in preparing the address he will make to the London conference presenting the American delegation's view of the objectives to be sought and the concessions it is willing to make in order to reach an agreement with other nations on joint action to end the depression.

In this speech the American foreign minister will outline his whole philosophy that the world-wide depression is the product of a ten year orgy of insane nationalism manifesting itself in competitive raising of tariff walls and subvention of domestic industries and, latterly, in competitive depreciation of currencies.

Proclaiming on the part of the United States a reversal of this course through the change in the political complexion of the American government, Mr. Hull will plead for the replacement of nationalistic by internationalistic considerations in the formulation of economic policies.

Interdependence Hull Keynote.

The interdependence of nations and the folly of a country attempting to live an isolated existence constitute the keynote of the Hull political philosophy. President Roosevelt's secret instructions to his delegation are understood to be in harmony with Mr. Hull's views of what the conference should seek to accomplish.

They indicate that the Roosevelt administration is prepared to go far to bring about agreements on a general reduction of protective tariffs and the removal of exchange and other trade restrictions, on a stabilization of the currencies of the nations relatively to each other, on a remonetization of silver, on coöperation to raise commodity prices throughout the world and on other items of the conference agenda.

The instructions also, however, are reputed to authorize the delegation to give fair warning that if it fails to obtain international coöperation the United States will have no recourse but an intensified isolationist policy in an endeavor to restore prosperity at home without reference to the rest of the world.

Nationalistic Domestic Policy.

This is construed to be an oblique reference to the Roosevelt administration's various depression remedies of nationalistic character, such as the farm relief act.

The industry control bill and both the farm relief and industrial measures contemplate increased tariff protection and a possible restriction of production to a basis of national self-containment involving a virtually negligible foreign trade. The measures are so nationalistic in character as to have been pronounced by some critics of the administration inconsistent with its professed internationalistic principles.

The President's instructions omit powers to deal with the question of reduction or cancellation of the war debts owed the United States. These negotiations are to be handled by Mr. Roosevelt personally in Washington. If the British or other debtors address any representations to the delegation regarding the debts Mr. Hull is merely to transmit the communications to the White House.

Because of a hardened attitude of other nations toward the removal of

THE GAME HAS BEEN PRETTY SCARCE THE LAST COUPLE OF SEASONS

LICENSES TO WED SHOW GAIN OF 304 OVER 1932

Marriage licenses issued for the first five months of 1933 totaled 10,471, an increase of 304 over the corresponding period in 1932, Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield of the marriage license bureau reported yesterday. Summerfield said the increase is a sign the depression is over. The following table shows the licenses issued for the first five months of 1932 and 1933:

January	2,011	1,972
February	1,771	1,930
March	1,804	1,624
April	2,211	2,254
May	2,370	2,691
Totals	10,167	10,471

The increases in April and May are the first for two consecutive months since the depression began.

YOUNG CHEMIST HURT AS BLAST ENDS EXPERIMENT

Robert Gibney, 22 years old, graduate chemistry student at Northwestern university, was severely burned on the face and neck yesterday when some chemicals with which he was experimenting exploded in the laboratory.

He was trying to figure out a formula at the time. He was taken to the Evanston hospital by Malcolm Dole, an instructor, who was near when the accident occurred. Physicians said that, although Gibney was burned near the eyes, he would not lose his sight.

Gibney lives at 2059 Maple avenue, Evanston. His home is at 1304 Clayton street, Wilmington, Del.

Escapes in Plane Crash, Then Is Killed by Auto

Sierra Blanca, Tex., May 31.—(AP)—Less than three hours after escaping injury in an airplane crackup L. F. Knapp of Santa Rosa, Cal., lost his life today in an unusual motor car accident. Knapp, 25, was riding on a wrecking car holding the motor of his damaged plane when another car, driven by a Fort Worth Negro, crashed into the rear end of the wrecker. He was thrown under the wheels of the car and crushed.

'Happy Days Here Again' Leads to Divorce Court

Mrs. Bessie Smrz, 2643 South Avers avenue, complained to Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday that her husband, Frank, broke his trombone on her head when she complained about his continual playing of "Happy Days Are Here Again" when beer came back. Judge Sabath granted her a divorce and ordered Smrz to pay $10 a week for the support of a daughter, Mary, 8 years old. Mrs. Smrz's attorney is Victor Frohlich.

Women Freed; 2 States Hunt Fleeing Felons

Lansing, Kas., May 31.—[Special.]—Eleven desperate criminals who escaped from the Lansing state penitentiary on Tuesday, taking with them Warden Kirk Prather, two guards and three women whom they kidnaped, tonight were being sought by posses from two states.

The search is being conducted in the "hedge," sage brush area of northeastern Oklahoma, long a refuge for bandits.

All of the kidnaping victims are safe. The women, Mrs. M. J. Wood of Kansas City, Kas.; her daughter, Louise, 17, and Miss Cloris Wears, 17 years old, of Higgins, Tex., were found early today in a farmhouse near Pleasanton, 100 miles southeast of Lansing. The Woods party was on the way to a cemetery near Leavenworth to decorate graves when their car was seized.

May Have Killed Policeman.

The warden and the guards were released by another detachment of the convict band near Welch, Okla., late last night.

Welch is only 15 miles from Chetopa, Kas., where Policeman Otto L. Durkee was shot and killed in a battle with unidentified assailants last night. It is believed by authorities in Chetopa that some of the escaped convicts were the killers.

All the highways in Kansas and Oklahoma near the hilly sage brush country, which the fugitives are believed to have chosen for their hideout, are being guarded by deputy sheriffs, heavily armed and prepared to shoot to kill when the convicts are located. The criminals also are well supplied with arms and ammunition.

Hills Probable Refuge.

It is generally believed that the more desperate men of the fleeing group, composed of six experienced criminals, headed by Wilbur Underhill and Harvey Bailey, killers, has fled into the Spavinaw hills, a wild section of Oklahoma's Craig county. Bailey, it was learned when the warden returned today, was wounded in one leg by a guard's bullet during the escape and is in need of medical attention.

The women during their captivity learned the younger convicts are: Lewis Bechtel, Alvis Peyton, Kenneth Conn, Billy Wood, and Clifford Dopson.

Still Feels Frightened.

A stirring story of the terrors of being a captive was told today by Miss Wood.

"I'm still scared to death," she said. "They came alongside our car about two miles outside Lansing. We were forced to stop. Then my father was dragged out. Mother and Cloris and I started to get out, too, but were ordered to keep our seats.

"As the convicts piled in and we started away, a car loaded with prison guards approached. We knew we were to be used as shields against them. We prayed they wouldn't open fire. They didn't and we got away from them. After that the convicts drove calmly and at moderate speed. They were polite to us, telling us we would not be harmed unless we screamed or the guards opened fire.

Call Older Convicts Tough.

"Also they told us we were lucky that the other convicts hadn't taken us prisoner. The others, they said, were 'hard babies.' One of our captors tried to get me to sit on his lap and I said I would rather be shot. He said that was all right and that I could sit on Cloris' lap."

The three were released at the home of William New, a farmer, late last night, but the telephone wires had been cut. So Miss Wood was not able to report their safety until she went to Pleasanton today. At the New home the convicts compelled the family to cook a big dinner for them and for their captives. The convicts, leaving their captives, drove away from the farm in the night, presumably to make a rendezvous in the hills with the other group of fugitives.

Warden Prather believes that the escape plot was formed by the men in the Underhill-Bailey gang and that the others joined at the last minute, and that the weapons were smuggled into the prison in packages of sisal [hemp] used in the twine shop.

TRUCE IS SIGNED; TOKIO CONTROLS NORTHERN AREA

Neutral Zone Set Up Along Great Wall.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 31.—Sino-Japanese hostilities, which began twenty months ago with the Japanese seizure of Mukden, Manchuria, and have continued with varying intensity since then, were concluded today when Gen. Hsiung Ping, representing the Nanking chief of staff, signed a truce with Japan.

The truce was signed at 11 a. m. in the office of a Japanese steamship company at Tangku, a seaport 18 miles from Tientsin. Lieut. Gen. Kotaro Nakamura, representing Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, Japanese commander in chief and ambassador in Manchukuo, signed for Tokio.

Terms of Truce.

Under the terms of the truce the Chinese troops must withdraw south and west of a line beginning at Lutai, near the gulf of Potai, and running to the Great Wall. The line connects the cities of Yenking, just north of the wall; Changping, Shunyi, Tungchow, Siangho, Paoti, Lintingchen, Ningho, and Lutai. It runs within thirteen miles of Peiping at Tungchow.

Chinese troops are not to be allowed to cross the line from the south or from the west in the direction of the Great Wall and must offer no further provocation to the Japanese, who reserve the right to use airplanes or other means to insure Chinese compliance with the truce terms. The Chinese agree to aid the Japanese in surveillance of the area, which is to be policed by Chinese.

When the Japanese are convinced that the Chinese intend to observe the truce they agree not to cross the line in pursuit of Chinese troops and agree ultimately to withdraw to the Great Wall. The armistice becomes effective immediately.

Premier Issues Statement.

Wang Ching-wei, Chinese premier, returned to Nanking today from a conference with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese generalissimo, at Kuling, at which terms of the truce were agreed upon. In a statement tonight he said:

"The truce arrangement was confined to the military situation and avoided political issues. It is a purely local arrangement and will not affect China's territorial rights or its international position. It is designed to provide a breathing space for the sorely tried Chinese troops and the distressed population.

"The government willingly bears the responsibility for the present situation and appeals to the sound judgment of the people as to the merits of its action."

Feared Seizure of Cities.

The Chinese decision to sign the truce was dictated by several important considerations.

First, it was desired to prevent a Japanese occupation of Peiping and Tientsin, which would have resulted in a heavy loss in government revenues.

Second, the Chinese feared that occupation of North China would result in a restoration of the Manchu monarchy at Peiping, permanently splitting the nation.

Third, the harassing communist situation south of the Yangtze and the growing Cantonese hostility placed Marshal Chiang and the central government in a difficult position, sandwiched between hostile elements in the north and south.

The national government today announced new tariff schedules, which include greatly enhanced and in many cases prohibitive rates against Japanese products. This is interpreted as designed to be a bargaining point in possible future negotiations for settlement of the Manchurian issue.

Asks Aid of Canton.

Whether the truce ending the Sino-Japanese fighting is likely to precipitate a civil war is not yet certain despite a declaration of intentions by Gen. Fen Yu-hsiang, the "Christian general," to continue resistance to the Japanese, and the dispatch of the so-called anti-Japanese army north from Canton through Hunan province.

Marshal Chiang wired Gen. Chen Chi-tang at Canton today urging the Cantonese forces to coöperate with Nanking in the eradication of the Red armies, thus allowing the nation to devote its united attention to foreign aggression.

Farley Takes the Ban Off a Swell Story

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—It will be quite O. K. for the newspapers to print the story which probably will be the most romantic piece of the day, today, without any risk of exclusion from the U. S. mails for so doing. Neither will any newsboy be snatched up by the law and flung into the jailhouse for circulating news that has been held to impair the morals of the citizens. James A. Farley, the old prize fight commissioner, now postmaster general, has decided it will be all right for the papers to tell the citizens all about the drawings and the winnings in the great English lotteries, or sweepstakes, as they are called, which are conducted in connection with the English Derby at Epsom Downs.

"This is a new deal and a new day," Mr. Farley said when your correspondent reminded him that an order issued two years ago by Mr. Walter [High Hat] Brown, his predecessor in the office, was still on the books, forbidding all mention of the Calcutta, the Stock Exchange and other great English gambles on the big horse race.

Problem Only for Pastors.

"I think the story is news," Mr. Farley said, "and the only publicity I would object to would be outright advertisement of the lotteries. The law says we can't have that. The papers can go ahead, though, and print all the news there is about the poor chambermaid or the unemployed coal miner who bought a ticket for a shilling or two and won a million dollars cash money. I think that is a great story always and if it is going to impair our morals to know what goes on in the world that is a problem for our pastors, not the post-office department."

The moral regulation by which Mr. Hoover's postmaster general ruled the great annual easy money story out of the American papers was rescinded as offhanded as that.

The Pious Applauded.

Mr. Brown's order occasioned some little argument at the time, but the papers with few exceptions complied, not wishing to risk the loss of their mailing privileges. The pious gentlemen and determined ladies of the right were much pleased with Mr. Brown's virtuous action. That was before the turn of sentiment which has destroyed the Anti-Saloon league and upset all its works. Whatever you may think of the social and economic program of the Roosevelt administration you are bound to respect the new President and his people for their conduct toward the terrorists who made a pathetic figure of Harding and expressed themselves with commands, rather than petitions, to Coolidge and to Hoover, too. It is doubtful that Bishop Cannon could get an interview with Roosevelt today, whereas he and Wayne Wheeler used to call up the others and lead off with a tough "Hey, you!"

The Press Obeyed.

Last year or year before some newspapers tried to handle the story of the English sweepstakes within the limitations of Mr. Brown's regulation by printing it in the city editions only. For the mail editions they cast other plates, substituted instructive news about good, wholesome murders and uplifting divorce actions such as the little gem of the Jelkes which has been going on up at Newport, R. I. A few editorials were written, defending the right of the press to print the news, but on the whole there was not much of a fight.

The old sweepstakes stories, which are always new year after year, were the most enchanting fairy tales ever told and they had the truth in them, too, which made them irresistible.

The Poor Always Won.

It seemed that, as Mr. Lincoln said, God must love the poor people because poor people were always winning the big prizes. There would be a rheumatic cargo handler on the Liverpool docks who chipped in with some of his mates, as he called them, and bought a share in a ticket on the Calcutta, which now refunded him fifty thousand pounds. Take off half for the income tax and he would still have enough to make the world glamorous.

Or there would be a household drudge, making beds, blacking boots and heating those little brass cans of shaving water which are set outside the bedroom doors at 6 p. m. year after dreary year for 20 pounds a year and found. And enjoying poor 'ealth, too. And all of a sudden a gentleman comes up from London, offs with 'is 'at very respectful and says, "Ma'am, I 'ave some news to tell. You 'ave won twenty thousand quid."

"Gawd's truth?" says she.

"Strewth," says 'e, and fans 'er with 'is 'at and yells for stimulants, as the lady is fair flummoxed.

[The story of winners in sweepstakes on the English Derby appears on page 23.]

THIRD 'FAVORED' LIST ON MORGAN ROLLS IS BARED

Partner Sees Sales as Risk Sharing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Morgan control and Morgan favors were the issue of battle today as the senate's Pecora committee resumed its inquiry into the affairs of America's most noted private banking house.

On the green committee table in the senate caucus room Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, tossed a third list of the Morgan favored stock purchasers.

Militantly he sought to show that the persons given this chance to buy units of stock in United corporation, Morgan created utilities holding company, at $75 per unit were the beneficiaries of an aggregate gratuity of some 9 million dollars. He brought out dates and rates and market quotations in an attempt to prove that Morgan & Co. knew what favors they were bestowing. Searchingly he plucked forth here a fact, there an insinuation, to try to demonstrate that in setting up the corporation as a holding company for eastern and southern public service securities the Morgan firm had been forgetful of the investing public, but never of its own bread and butter.

George Whitney on Stand.

Across the table in the witness chair sat slim, personable George Whitney.

Suavely, as befitted a Morgan partner; skillfully, as befitted his reputation as one of the Morgan house's brainiest members, deftly he parried the frontal thrusts and the flank attacks of his questioner.

Not content with mere denials, he alertly attacked on his own and the Morgan company's account and got into the record statement after statement, answer after answer, seeking to prove that Morgan & Co. were not distributing favors but inviting business men to share a business risk, and that United corporation was set up with the public in mind and the investor adequately protected.

On the side lines, head canted forward, eyes peering shrewdly out from under bushy black eyebrows, J. P. Morgan listened intently to every word. And as his younger partner fenced, retreating, advancing, now and again getting home an adroit riposte, the satisfied look on the Morgan face spelled congratulations in store for the witness.

Couzens, Glass at Odds.

Not so satisfied was the look on the pink, belligerent face of Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who has made it his personal business to see that the investigation goes to the farthest cupboard in the closet of Morgan secrets. Once more the feud between the Michigan senator and Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] sputtered.

It was Senator Glass who helped Mr. Whitney explain that Morgan & Co. did not control United corporation, did not control the operating and holding corporations in which United holds a minority block of stock.

It was Senator Couzens who broke in brusquely, who said he was not going to swallow explanations about a minority stockholder not being able to control a corporation, and who said:

"I just wondered whether the spreading out of these favors and these lovely gifts did not influence them to do what the Morgans would like them to do."

Woodin Again on List.

Once again on the list of purchasers of United corporation shares were prominent names. William H. Woodin, new secretary of the treasury, was down for 1,000 units, each unit consisting of a share of United common and a share of $3 preferred stock and each unit having been sold at $75—or at the price paid by the Morgans when they received the stock in return for the $10,700,000 in cash and $49,300,000 in securities which they put up as their share in organizing the corporation.

Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, also appeared again, this time for 250 units; John J. Raskob, 2,500 units; Gen. John J. Pershing, 250 units; Charles A. Lindbergh, 300 units; William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and now senator from California, 250 units; Charles E. Mitchell, former National City bank president, now on trial for income tax violation, and John W. Davis, the white haired former Democratic presidential candidate and ambassador to Great Britain, who sat behind Mr. Whitney as counsel for Morgan & Co.—these were but a few of the outstanding names on the list.

Senator Kean's Name Mentioned.

The late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, former Morgan partner and former ambassador to Mexico, was listed for 2,000 units. And the investment house of Kean, Taylor & Co. was down for 500 units. Senator Hamilton F. Kean [Rep., N. J.] is head of the firm and a member of the investigating committee. Following the disclosure of his firm's name he inserted a statement in the record explaining that the company had for many years participated in the sale of Morgan backed issues and that since coming to Washington he had had no active interest in the business.

Still another name was that of Edgar Rickard, listed for 400 units.

"Is that the Edgar Rickard who is reputed to be the representative of former President Hoover?" inquired Senator Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.].

Mr. Whitney did not know; did not know who put Mr. Rickard on the list, but knew he was an engineer. Edgar Rickard, New York engineer, has been a long time friend of former President Hoover and during Mr. Hoover's term in the White House was said to have acted as manager of his personal fortune.

Dawes' Name Comes Up.

Later Senator Robert Reynolds [Rep., N. C.] brought up the name of Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, wanting to know whether he had not been ambassador to Great Britain at the time he received a Morgan loan. And the late Dwight W. Morrow, former Morgan partner, had been ambassador to Mexico at the time he was a Morgan stock purchaser, the senator brought out.

Senator Glass' drawl was sarcastic as he broke into the testimony to inquire about "Morgan control." "If I may venture to ask a question," he prefaced his remark.

Earlier, in executive session, Mr. Pecora had acceded to the demand the Virginia senator has been making on every occasion since the hearings began, and had detailed to the committee the evidence he purposed to bring out.

But this victory had not soothed the bantamweight senator. His words dripped acidly out of the side of his mouth. He carried in a bulky portfolio, a thick packet of letters criticizing him for having insisted that he was going to see Morgan & Co. receive justice.

Some Threaten His Life.

One of the letters referred to the senator as "the Benedict Arnold of politics." Some threatened his life. Others, he said, were "too vile and obscene to appear in the public print." In a still thicker folder he carried other letters "from gentlemen, and obviously from women of refinement, who were good enough to applaud my desire to be an investigator and not a spectator at this investigation."

It was with obvious reluctance that Senator Glass yielded to the persuasions of the photographers and had his picture taken shaking hands with Mr. Pecora. It was reported that President Roosevelt's declaration that the hearing should go on had caused the Virginia senator to telephone the President to voice a fiery protest, because, he said, the statement had given the impression that some one was trying to block the investigation.

"Just how do you control these companies, a minority of whose stock is held by United corporation?" Senator Glass wanted to know of Mr. Whitney.

Denies Morgan Controls.

Mr. Whitney denied that Morgan & Co., personally or through its representation on the United corporation board, did control the companies.

Senator Costigan challenged the witness, pointing out that a minority group might readily control. The Colorado senator is one of the senate's radical group, whose favorite topic of denunciation is "the power trust" and who are frequently to be heard charging that this interest or that "controls" far flung enterprises.

"I do not want to quibble at all with you on the question of policy, because obviously as large stockholders we are interested in the policies," replied Mr. Whitney. "But the policies of the public utility companies are necessarily confined to the districts that they serve, in which they are regulated by public service bodies of various titles. Their rates are controlled by these bodies, and therefore there is an interchange of a certain amount of power."

Questioned by Costigan.

"Have you ever known an instance in determining the policy of any of the corporations about which you have been testifying in which Mr. Morgan's advice has been disregarded if given?" Senator Costigan asked.

"I don't think there has ever been any question of principles we have ever differed on," said Mr. Whitney. "Questions of detailed policy I know of many instances and we do come to an agreement together as sensible men try to do, but it has not always been J. P. Morgan & Co.'s policies that have been adopted by a long shot."

"Whenever Mr. Morgan gave advice his advice finally prevailed, did it not?" persisted Senator Costigan. "Will you give instances in which it did not?"

"Well, I could, Senator Costigan. I have one very actively in mind, and if it is of any interest I will do it, but I would a little rather not. It involves conversations——"

The senators did not insist.

Admits His Influence.

Once more Senator Glass broke in. "You would not undertake to say, would you, that Mr. Morgan is not a right powerful and influential figure in investing companies, would you?"

Smilingly Mr. Whitney admitted that he would not. Under questioning by Senator Glass, he testified that only one director of the companies whose securities are held by the United corporation has received a loan from J. P. Morgan & Co.

It was Senator Couzens' turn to break in.

"A memorandum has been handed to me," he said, "to ask whether or not the favor the Morgan & Co. did to Mr. Sidney Z. Mitchell, president of the Electric Bond and Share company, would not aid the Morgan company in controlling the destinies of the Electric Bond and Share company."

"I didn't know we had ever made a loan to Mr. Mitchell," objected Mr. Whitney.

Couzens Questions Whitney.

"I didn't say a loan," retorted Senator Couzens. "I said preference shares. The Electric Bond and Share company was permitted to buy 3,000 shares of Standard Brands below cost. In other words, he was on the preferred list, and I ask if that inferentially would not at least suggest to Mr. Mitchell that it might be well to do what Mr. Morgan wanted?"

"Standard Brands was offered to Mr. Mitchell, it is true," answered Mr. Whitney, "to the extent of 3,000 shares. It was offered to him on June 24, at what would be the equivalent to $32 a share. The equivalent market at that time was something like $33. Mr. Mitchell and the others in that list took an undertaking with us, to be ready to put up on Sept. 5 $32 a share. He took the full risk with the course of the market. He took an ordinary underwriting risk which a man of his large means and knowledge of affairs is entitled to do with his money."

"I am only using his case as an example," Senator Couzens explained.

"I just wondered whether that spreading out of these favors and these lovely gifts did not—"

"No, sir," Mr. Whitney interrupted. Mr. Whitney became more than ever earnest.

"There are five of these lists that are going to be discussed," he explained. "Three of them have now been entered as evidence, namely, the Alleghany corporation, Standard Brands, United corporation, Johns-Manville and Niagara Hudson are the other two.

"Underwriting," He Says.

"Now, all those operations have one thing in common, and in this point I think is what destroys the idea of what has come to be known as a 'preferred list' because it is not a preference. It is a perfectly definite business transaction. Each one of these transactions, all five, in their inception and degree of interest all involve the question of underwriting common stocks."

The details of the United corporation financing were thoroughly gone into.

Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co., the Morgans' Philadelphia house, and Bonbright & Co. were the creators of the corporation. As its share Morgan & Co. turned over 10 million dollars in cash to the corporation and received in return 400,000 shares of common and one million option warrants, each good without time limit for the purchase of a share of common at $27.50.

The Morgan firm also turned over the corporation securities in public utility operating and holding companies which had cost them $49,300,000, plus $700,000 in cash, receiving in return 600,000 shares of United $3 preference shares, 800,000 shares of common, and 714,200 option warrants.

Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] wanted to know whether issuing warrants, particularly warrants without time limit, was not a form of stock watering.

Denies It's Stock Watering.

"That is just what it isn't," retored Mr. Whitney. "That is one of the inducements of issuing warrants. . . . A warrant is a contract to issue a share of stock, in this case in perpetuity, and a definite amount of money is set forth in that warrant. There is nothing watered about it because no share is issued until there is actual dollars, not securities that may fluctuate, but dollars, $27.50 issued for every warrant.

"So one of the chief reasons for the use of warrants, is that it gets away from any possibility of watering because, after all, the assets of a corporation are not dependent on the market value at which securities sell."

TRACE MITCHELL CHANGE OF PLACE TO FILE RETURNS

Goes to Uptown Revenue Office as Agent Moves.

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—A field agent of the internal revenue bureau checked and approved Charles E. Mitchell's income tax returns for 1929 and 1930. This was brought out at the banker's tax evasion trial today by Max D. Steuer, counsel for the defense, in support of his contention that Mr. Mitchell is now being made the victim of "mob psychology."

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie offset this testimony by showing that the same field agent had checked Mr. Mitchell's returns for several years, and that when the field agent was transferred from the custom house to the uptown offices of the internal revenue bureau Mr. Mitchell changed and began filing them uptown.

Mr. Steuer then developed from the witness that he had not asked the internal revenue bureau to assign this particular field agent to Mr. Mitchell's returns. The witness was Frank W. Black, a former vice president of the Chase National bank. Mr. Black had previously testified that he had prepared Mr. Mitchell's income tax returns ever since there had been an income tax.

Tells of Agent's Calls.

Mr. Black said the field agent was Ambrose W. Hussey, who has since left the revenue bureau service. Mr. Black said Hussey called on him on Feb. 5, 1931, and made the "usual inspection" of Mr. Mitchell's 1929 return. He asked for a detailed statement of all sales of securities, dividends, taxes, interest, payments, and contributions.

In reference to the 18,300 shares of National City bank stock, the sale of which by Mr. Mitchell to his wife on Dec. 20, 1929, was declared by the prosecution to be a "sham" designed to defraud the government of income tax, Mr. Black said the agent looked at copies of the "Dear Charles" and "Dear Elizabeth" letters and asked for the originals. These were the letters Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell exchanged to consummate the sale. Mr. Black said he told the agent he would have to ask Mr. Mitchell for the originals.

Examines Letters to Wife.

On Feb. 13, according to Mr. Black, the agent called on him again and told him he had seen Mr. Mitchell and had examined the original letters.

Questioned about his work sheets, which noted a sale of the 18,300 shares to Elizabeth R. Mitchell without identifying her as Mitchell's wife, Mr. Steuer asked:

"Was anything said between you and Mr. Hussey as to who Elizabeth R. Mitchell was?"

"I cannot answer positively, but I think he knew she was Mr. Mitchell's wife," Mr. Black replied.

Agent Changes Office.

"Was Mr. Hussey assigned to the uptown office in February, 1931, when he examined the 1929 returns?" asked Mr. Medalie.

"I can't remember," said Mr. Black. "He used to be downtown, at the custom house; then he moved uptown."

"Was he at the custom house when Mr. Mitchell's returns were filed there?"

"Part of the time."

"Can you explain why you filed Mr. Mitchell's 1929 return with the uptown office, stating his residence address as 934 Fifth avenue, and not stating his business address?"

"I can't answer that."

"How did it happen that Mr. Mitchell began using the Fifth avenue address in his 1928 return, when he had previously used the 55 Wall street address."

"I can't answer that. I was told to do that."

"Who told you?"

"Mr. Mitchell."

POET MARKHAM IS BROKE AT 81, HE TELLS COURT

Sues to Keep $500 Per Month Graham Annuity.

Edwin Markham, 81 year old poet, asserted yesterday in the New York Supreme court that he was "impecunious" and dependent upon a $500 a month annuity which was purchased by Ernest R. Graham, Chicago architect. The annuity, Markham stated, originally was bought by Graham for Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, a writer, who eventually turned it over to the poet.

The poet is seeking a court order to force the New York law firm of O'Crowley & McDannel to return a batch of papers, including the annuity bond, which are the subject of a suit in the United States District court here. The suit is scheduled for hearing tomorrow.

Widow Borrows on Annuity.

Markham states in his affidavit that Mrs. Anderson borrowed money from him in 1927 and agreed to allow him to draw her annuity in repayment. He added that he needed the papers for evidence at the impending hearing of the equity suit here.

The annuity policy in question has been the subject of court controversy here. It was mentioned last fall during the hearing of Mrs. Anderson's $500,000 damage suit charging conspiracy against Graham and Thomas McGuire, a private detective. Mrs. Anderson is a widow, 45 years old. Her suit was withdrawn after Mrs. Anderson had taken the stand on the first day of the trial and related the details of a ten year love affair with Graham, which she described as "violent and passionate." Reports that there was a settlement in this case were denied by attorneys for both sides.

Mrs. Anderson also has pending in the courts a $250,000 libel suit against Graham, who now is 64 years old. Six days after the first trial she filed a third suit involving another annuity contract under which she is to receive $300 a month for life. Mrs. Anderson asks the court's permission to borrow money against the contract.

Too Many Claim Annuity.

On the day her suit against Graham was withdrawn Mrs. Anderson, Markham, I. A. O'Crowley, and Lucy C. McDannel, the New York attorneys, and Robert E. Burke, Chicago lawyer, were named in a suit of interpleader filed by the Canada Life Assurance company of Toronto, in federal court here.

The bill asserted that all the defendants had claimed the annual payments under Mrs. Anderson's annuity, and asked that orders for the payments be made by the court.

In his affidavit yesterday Markham declared he had given his papers to the New York lawyers at a time when he was having difficulty in collecting some of the annuity payments. When he recently asked that they be returned the lawyers demanded a $500 fee.

This is "exorbitant," the affidavit relates, because Miss McDannel had told him it would be an "honor" to represent him in court when he met her through mutual friends.

Owen West, John Barnes Resign as U. S. Attorneys

Assistant United States Attorneys Owen A. West and John P. Barnes yesterday announced their resignations. Mr. West, son of Roy O. West, former secretary of the interior, will join his father's law firm of West & Eckhart. Mr. Barnes will join the law firm of Scott, MacLeish & Falk. Mr. West has spent four years on the federal district attorney's staff, prosecuting mail fraud, bank embezzlement, and counterfeiting cases. Mr. Barnes, who formerly practiced law in Birmingham, Ala., has spent four years handling civil income tax violation cases.

U. S. DELEGATION LEAVES TO SEEK ECONOMIC PACT

Sails for Conference at London.

trade restrictions and stabilization of currencies the American delegation is setting forth with far less confidence of a satisfactory issue of the conference than was entertained by the administration a few weeks ago.

"I, myself, have never been over-optimistic about any international conference," said Mr. Hull tonight.

"What I am interested in is to see our government state a fundamental program that will be supplementary to all domestic programs best calculated to bring about a suitable measure of peace and prosperity to the people of this country and incidentally other countries.

"The people have for twelve years been experiencing the most extreme forms of economic isolation that the human race has ever known, and I assume that after twelve years of this experience by each nation undertaking to live by itself that at least sooner or later each nation will decide from actual experience what is best for it.

Doubts Benefits of Isolation.

"There are 12 million unemployed wage earners here in the United States. I think they are very competent to make answer to those who say that 12 years of isolation mean high wages and high living standards. I think the 30 million farming population who had embargo tariffs on every competitive commodity for 10 or 12 years are somewhat confident that after suffering an aggregate loss of 40 billion dollars to say whether they want to continue to live entirely by themselves and shut down all production to the diminishing capacity of the American people to consume.

"After labor has lost 40 odd billions of dollars under high tariffs, ultra high tariffs, each nation is on its back at the end of 12 years. It is a matter that is up to each nation to determine whether it wants to continue this experience. My individual opinion is that the two twin policies calculated to promote peace and prosperity are military peace and economic peace. They are complements of each other—they are coördinate policies.

"In some instances you can't afford wars without first bringing about economic peace. In other instances you can't have economic peace without first promoting military peace. It is the fundamentals of those things that I hope our nation will continue to speak for and to proclaim and offer them and let them be accepted whenever an increasing sufferant list of nations may decide."

Telephone Co. Pays City $393,380 Under Franchise

The city yesterday received a check for $393,380 from the Telephone company, covering compensation which the company owed the city under its franchise for the first three months of the year. A. R. Bone, treasurer of the company, delivered the check to City Controller Szymczak.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB GOES IN BANKRUPTCY; INCOME CUT BLAMED

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Reduction of incomes of officers and men of the United States army and navy was blamed today for financial difficulties which caused the Army and Navy club, one of the oldest military clubs in the nation, to be thrown into bankruptcy.

Acting on a petition signed by Capt. W. C. Goslar, secretary and treasurer of the club, Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, appointed the Irving Trust company to act as receiver.

Spokesmen for the club said that proceedings, authorized by the board of governors, had been taken because of difficulty in collecting dues in the face of reduced incomes in military and naval circles. Memberships, it was said, "have declined by more than 500 due to uncertainty of the future of military and naval establishments."

MOST OF STREET CREWS BACK ON JOB AFTER STRIKE

City chauffeurs, teamsters, and street sweepers who were on strike have nearly all reported for work, according to information gathered yesterday by Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt. Police protection has been given to the men to prevent any hoodlum interference with their work.

In the street bureau 1,420 men were working yesterday, an increase over the number employed on Monday or before the strike. Of the chauffeurs 179 out of the 200 normally employed were at work. Nearly 700 of the chauffeurs, teamsters, and helpers have renounced the outlaw union controlled by John Sheridan Jr. and have joined the International Brotherhood of Teamsters affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

STIMSON TAKES FRANCO-GERMAN CONCILIATION JOB

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, former United States secretary of state, has accepted the presidency of the permanent conciliation committee created by the Franco-German arbitration agreement under the Locarno accords. The acceptance of the post by the former member of the Hoover cabinet was announced tonight, a few hours after it was learned that it had been offered him.

The Locarno pacts of 1925 set up a conciliation commission to deal with disputes between Germany and France and between Germany and Belgium. The recommendations of this body are not binding on either disputant.

Under the provisions of the pacts, if either party to the controversy rejects the recommendations of the conciliation commission, the decision as to what is to be done rests with the council of the league of nations.

17 MORE KILLED BY AUTOS IN MAY THAN YEAR AGO

There were 17 more automobile deaths during May than in the same month last year, the coroner's office reported last night. There were 105 automobile deaths in the month just closed, compared to 88 for May, 1932.

The motor toll since Jan. 1, however, is 394, a decrease of 61 compared with the corresponding period in 1932, when 455 deaths were recorded. May is the only month this year to show an increase in automobile deaths over the same months of last year.

Wraps Live Trolley Wire Round Portland, Ore., Post

Portland, Ore., May 31.—(AP)—Police are looking for the unidentified man who had the good fortune to escape with his life after lifting a live trolley wire from the street and draping it around a lamp post. The post soon became red hot.

NEW U. S. ENVOYS TO FRANCE, ITALY ASSUME DUTIES

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—Expressing his desire to contribute to improvement of Franco-American relations, Jesse I. Straus arrived in Paris today to take up his duties as United States ambassador to France. Mr. Straus was received at the station by representatives of the French president and the French foreign office.

One of the most important duties which Mr. Straus finds awaiting him here is the question of a trade treaty, negotiations for which were initiated last fall by his predecessor, Walter L. Edge. Figures for Franco-American trade since the war reveal a heavy balance in favor of the United States, but do not include the money spent by American tourists in France.

Envoy Visits Italian King.

ROME, May 31.—(AP)—Breckenridge Long was formally inducted as new American ambassador to Italy today when he went to the Quirinal palace and presented his credentials to King Victor Emmanuel. Count Suardi, the king's assistant master of ceremonies, conveyed Mr. Long and the embassy staff in four horse drawn state carriages with liveried outriders to the royal residence.

GARAGE BOMBED; BLAST SHAKES NORWOOD PARK

The Norwood Park district was shaken early this morning by a dynamite bomb explosion which wrecked a two car portable garage behind the home of Edward Viernow, 5360 Newark avenue.

No one was hurt. Damage to the garage and two new automobiles inside was estimated at $400. Windows in several homes in the vicinity were broken.

Viernow, who owns the Commercial Candy Manufacturing company at 3035 Ohio street, said he knew of no motive for the attack. He has had no labor trouble nor any other kind of trouble, he said.

ARMS PARLEY TO RECESS; UNABLE TO END DEADLOCK

Leaders Decide to Take Long "Vacation."

GENEVA, May 31.—(AP)—The disarmament conference decided today to take a holiday of about a month in the hope that political negotiations in various capitals will break the deadlock here on several vital problems.

The bureau, which is the steering committee, in a three hour session decided that to try to continue the meetings was useless without an agreement beforehand on certain important issues.

The major activities, therefore, will be suspended for several weeks and President Arthur Henderson was authorized to reconvene the delegates on June 27, or shortly thereafter.

Plan to Rewrite Treaty.

During the recess the steering committee will "revise and negotiate" as Giuseppe Motta, the Swiss delegate, expressed it. The committee was directed to rewrite the proposed convention on the basis of the British draft and the proposed treaty will be given a second reading at the end of June.

The British draft for a convention, on which the conference has been working as a basis for more than two months, contains two main divisions, one of which deals with security, the other with disarmament. The security part provides for consultation between the powers in case of a breach, or a threat of a breach of the Briand-Kellogg pact.

Would Limit Effectives.

The disarmament part provides for limitation of effectives of European continental powers, reduction in the sizes of Mobile land guns and tanks, the inclusion of the limitation features of the Washington and London naval agreements in the new treaty, and limitation on the number of airplanes to be possessed by all important countries.

The first vigorous effort to conciliate differences will be made at Paris Friday, when Norman H. Davis, American delegate, will meet Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, to talk over their problems.

Boat Waits as Autos Pass When Bridge Locks Stick

Several thousand Chicagoans gained ten minutes at the expense of a lake boat last night when the center locks on the Michigan avenue bridge over the Chicago river stuck as unusually heavy automobile traffic flowed across the bridge. The freighter Sonora, of the Nicholson Universal Steamship company, was delayed about fifteen minutes while bridgetenders unlocked the center locks by a hand mechanism.

STREET CAR LINE TO FAIR WILL BE OPERATING TODAY

Extension Over 23d St. Completed.

BY HAL FOUST.

A street car service direct to the World's Fair entrance will open this morning. The Chicago Surface Lines announced yesterday their extension over the 23d street viaduct and thence north to the 18th street gates will start operation at 9 a. m. today. The construction, costing $250,000, will be finished exactly eleven days after the council issued its permit. Three shifts of men working eight hours each have been employed on the job.

The completion of the line will relieve automobile congestion. The 23d street viaduct has been blocked by track crews most of the time since A Century of Progress opened. Cermak road, Broadway and, starting on Saturday, Wentworth avenue cars will use the trolley loop at the 18th street entrance.

Kelly Signs Ordinance.

Mayor Kelly yesterday signed the ordinance for a Roosevelt road extension of street car tracks on a viaduct to be built over the I. C. tracks. The south park board, the commerce commission and the federal court must concur in this permit before construction can begin. The work is expected to start in ten days, to be finished about Aug. 1.

"With the 23d street viaduct cleared of construction crews," said Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, head of the Fair transportation division, "motor car traffic will be handled better, but the Memorial day crowds showed us there is still much to be done to refine the system.

"Too much of our patronage is entering the Roosevelt road entrance near the Shedd aquarium. The turnstiles there are registering about 60 per cent of our attendance. This overloads our intramural buses, and jams the approaches to the gates.

Pick Nearest Gate.

"The public must learn that this is a big Exposition, two and a half miles long. There are gates at 18th, 23d, 31st, and 39th streets, and another will be opened at 35th street in about eight days. With a little forethought, a person can pick the gate most convenient to the exhibitions or concessions that he wants to visit.

"On the outer drive, south park motorcycle police might help by urging slow drivers to keep up with the traffic. We're also studying a plan to mark the lane with paint on the pavement, another suggestion from THE TRIBUNE, and I'll have a man check on the routes followed by the World's Fair markers within the city to see if we can't help visitors avoid broken pavements."

At the Chicago airport, scene of the American Air Races on July 1, 2, 3 and 4, the Ready Coal & Construction company yesterday started laying pavement to widen Cicero avenue between 63d street and Archer avenue. The work, under the direction of the state highway department, is to be open to traffic before the races.

FIND CHICAGO'S HOTELS AMPLE FOR FAIR CROWDS

Chicago has ample hotel and garage facilities to care for all the visitors who will come to A Century of Progress Exposition, according to the report of a survey made by the Association of Commerce and the Chicago Hotel association. So far, despite the influx of sightseers, less than half the hotel accommodations have been in use.

5 CONVENTIONS WILL OPEN IN CHICAGO TODAY

Five major conventions, drawn here by the World's Fair, will open business sessions today in various hotels. In addition more than twenty smaller meetings are scheduled for today and tonight. These meetings are the forerunners of hundreds of others to be held here during the summer and have brought thousands of visitors to Chicago.

The five organizations convening today are the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, Edgewater Beach hotel; the American Institute of Actuaries, at the same hotel; the Association of Manufacturers of Woodworking Machinery, Hotel Sherman; the Royal League, also at the Sherman, and the Maccabees' Great Camp of Illinois, at the Congress hotel. In addition to these, the National Retail Dry Goods association will enter the second day of its convention at the Palmer House.

Tomorrow an executive conference of the American Gas association will convene at the Stevens hotel.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

The United States regular army soldier is the best looking soldier in the world, according to a traveler familiar with the soldiers of the world. He said it when he inspected a group of twenty near one of the gates of the army encampment at the Fair. Their uniforms were in perfect order and the camp on Lief Ericson drive was in tip top shape.

John Sjunneson, secretary, said yesterday that the Sweden exhibit had several thousand visitors in one hour and that 157 registered. Eight were from foreign countries and 36 of the 48 states were on the list. The foreign countries represented were Ireland, Germany, Scotland, Mexico, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, and New South Wales.

The Sears Roebuck register now has over 10,000 names on it, including every state in the union and 28 foreign countries.

George M. Wright, assistant director of public safety, has installed 41 fire alarm boxes and 37 police boxes on the grounds. Guards have all been instructed in their use. The A. D. T. has installed an arrow alarm that will point the direction in case of a fire.

Antonio D'Orazi, 24 year old artist from Missoula, Mont., will have an exhibit of religious drawings in the Hall of Religion when it opens next week.

The H. J. Heinz company has assembled replicas of kitchens of various periods of history and different countries in its exhibit in the Agricultural building. There are eight different types of kitchens ranging from early New England to the latest type Some of the utensils are said to be valuable original period pieces.

Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the United States secret service was notified yesterday that two counterfeit $10 bills had been passed at the Streets of Paris concession. Several agents were assigned to investigate.

Visitors at the Fair can buy a soft drink made before their eyes in the Coco-Cola exhibit in the Foods and Agriculture building on Northerly Island. The plant turns out 120 bottles a minute.

Free samples of such foods as baked beans, spaghetti, pickles, tomato juice and crackers are being given away in the Foods and Agriculture building.

The guidon carried by A troop of the 14th cavalry in the army show Tuesday night was mistaken by a woman prohibitionist for the insignia of the Crusaders' society. She demanded that Capt. Hanson "take it down" but was soon convinced that the army was not advertising either side of the prohibition question.

Sixty-five small parking lot operators immediately west of the Illinois Central railroad near A Century of Progress late yesterday announced a small reduction in their rates. The fees have been 50 cents for four hours and 10 cents for each additional hour. The new rate is 10 cents per hour with a minimum of 25 cents and a maximum of $1.

Dr. Francisco Banda, consul general of Ecuador, yesterday extended the official greeting of his government to Mayor Kelly. He presented the mayor and George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, with Ecuadorian hats. Dr. Banda is in charge of the Ecuadorian exhibit at the World's Fair.

PLAYERS BEGIN BRIDGE TOURNEY AT WORLD FAIR

The World's Fair bridge tournament, which is to last throughout the Exposition, was opened yesterday in Bridge hall, Hall of Science building.

There will be two sessions daily, one at 2 p. m., and the other at 8 p. m.

In yesterday's starting game, George Reith of New York City and Bradley Harrison of Chicago were the winning pair.

CROWDS AT FAIR 129 PCT. ABOVE THOSE OF 1893

Transport Pageant High Point Today.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A Century of Progress Exposition in its first five days has established an attendance record that is approximately 129 per cent over that of the first five days of the Columbian exposition in 1893.

The number of those who have passed through the gates since the 1933 Fair opened on Saturday, and paid for their tickets, stands at 423,053. To these may be added some 60,000 who entered on pre-paid tickets or on passes. The Columbian exposition, in its similar period in 1893, attracted 184,209 visitors.

Attendance Figures Compared.

Figures on the individual days, ranked in order for the two years, with only gate payments considered, follow:

1893.		1933.
First day	128,965	First day	185,106
Second day	13,883	Second day	54,921
Third day	15,637	Third day	41,425
Fourth day	14,995	Fourth day	103,576
Fifth day	10,729	Fifth day	38,031
	184,209		423,053

Fair officials have expressed themselves as elated with the results thus far. Yesterday's attendance, while falling behind that of Memorial day, was, nevertheless, gratifying to the officials.

Dedication Pageant Today.

The major presentation at the Fair today will be the dedication of the Travel and Transport building. Ceremonies in connection with this event include a classic Greek drama, in which 200 performers will present, in pantomine and song, the progress of the human race in speeding up its travel.

Moving across a gigantic stage, the history of transportation will be depicted from clumsy wooden carts drawn by oxen to the present era of winged transports in the sky. The pageant will start at 2:30 p. m.

On the stage 3,000 feet of standard gauge track cross and recross. More than one hundred vehicles and sixty horses will pass in review during the pageant. The drama, created by Edward Hungerford, will use steam engines dating back to the time of the De Witt Clinton, the first locomotive built in the United States.

Two other famous engines will be the Pioneer, built in 1851, and Number 999, which in 1893 broke all speed records.

Many Other Events Today.

In addition to the outstanding event, the dedication of the Travel and Transport building, today's program at the Fair will include many other attractions. At 11 a. m. a concert will be given in the Tr vel and Transport building and two concerts will be given in the court of the Electrical group, one at 8:15 p. m. and one at 9:15 p. m.

In answer to many questions regarding closing time at nights, Fair officials yesterday reassured night visitors as to entrance after the regular closing hours.

Persons attending downtown theaters or other entertainments who wish to visit the dine and dance places on the Exposition grounds will be permitted to enter the grounds. Tickets should be obtained through the day and if a large group is attending an arrangement should be made with the officials. If demands warrant some arrangement will be made to sell tickets at night following the closing of the general exhibits.

Granted Divorce

MRS. ELISE LINN.

Judge Craig A. Hood granted a divorce yesterday in the Circuit court to Mrs. Elise Rice Linn, Cleveland and Chicago society woman, from Winfield Scott Linn, broker, of 399 Fullerton parkway. Mrs. Linn got her decree without contest on a cross bill charging desertion.

She charged that her husband had drunk excessively from the time of their marriage ten years ago until she left him in January, 1932. Judge Hood held that his conduct was such as to make him technically guilty of desertion, since he made it impossible for his wife to live with him.

Mrs. Linn waived alimony, but beginning Dec. 1 will receive $100 a month for the care of their daughter, Elise, 8 years old. Linn was ordered to pay a $5,000 fee to his wife's attorney, Edward R. Johnson.

PICK 2 BEAUTIES FOR SWEDISH DAY AT WORLD'S FAIR

Miss Beatrice Burgeson, a singer, of 3654 North Linder avenue, as Miss Sweden, and Miss Helga Lindren, 710 Melrose street, as Miss Columbia, will share honors on Swedish-American day at A Century of Progress June 19.

They were chosen last night in a beauty contest conducted by the committee for Swedish-American participation in A Century of Progress, held in the Swedish Club of Chicago, 1258 North La Salle street.

Miss Burgeson is a blonde, and was born in Chicago. Miss Lindren is a brunette, and was born in Sweden 24 years ago. She is a beauty operator here. They were chosen from among 56 girls picked by Swedish organizations throughout the city. Both of them were named by the Swedish Ladies' club.

DIVORCE DENIED BOTH JELKE AND WIFE BY COURT

Equally Guilty, Ruling of Judge.

Newport, R. I., May 31.—[Special.]—Both F. Frazier Jelke, Chicago and New York broker, and his wife, Mrs. Eugenia Woodward Jelke, were denied a divorce today by Judge Charles A. Walsh at the conclusion of a long trial of Jelke's suit and his wife's counter claim.

The court held that Jelke had not proved his charge of infidelity against his wife. The court also found that the evidence showed both had been guilty of "extreme cruelty" and neither was entitled to a decree.

Such Things to Be Expected.

Judge Walsh said there was no doubt that Jelke, who is 50 years old, was infatuated with his wife, who is 27, but there was doubt that Mrs. Jelke "reciprocated this affection." The court expressed the opinion that the marriage in Mrs. Jelke's view was one of convenience and "an opportunity to indulge in luxury," but he added that "such things are to be expected, and she liked excitement, social affairs and a good time."

While upholding Jelke's charge of cruelty against his wife, the court found that Jelke had himself been cruel and had physically assaulted his wife several times. The court absolved Mrs. Jelke of excessive drinking.

Trial of the two suits has been proceeding for more than a fortnight before Judge Walsh without a jury. The hearing has been filled with dramatic moments as both sides flung charges and counter charges.

Today's session was given over to final arguments by opposing counsel in an effort to weaken the other's case. The feature was furnished by Mrs. Jelke's counsel, who charged the broker with obtaining perjured testimony to support his charges of misconduct. Such an act, the lawyer said, constituted cruelty and grounds for divorce for Mrs. Jelke.

Judge Walsh retired to his chambers to study the many angled case after having listened for almost two hours to the closing arguments of rival counsel.

Defends Mrs. Jelke's Morals.

Mrs. Jelke's attorney, Paul Slade, took fiftyitwo minutes to sum up the plaint of the former southern society belle and defend her against the charges of her husband, participant in a large fortune built on oleomargarine.

Defending his client's morals, Slade ridiculed Jelke's charges of "gross misbehavidr." Jelke alleged cruelty and desertion, but, Slade said, the broker, not his wife, was guilty of those charges.

The chief object of Slade's attack on Jelke's case was Effie Bailey of Birmingham, the broker's star witness in connection with his charges of misconduct. The attorney called the Bailey woman a "dope fiend."

Former Attorney General Charles P. Sisson required one hour and five minutes to complete summation of Jelke's case.

ALDERMEN CALL ON TAXI LINES TO SLASH RATES

Council Committee Hears Heads of Companies.

Representatives of the Yellow and Checker cab companies were asked yesterday to appear before the taxicab committee of the city council tomorrow with whatever offer they may wish to make of a reduction in rates. When it was indicated that the companies have no intention of agreeing to a voluntary reduction Ald. James F. Kovarik [15th] said to Ald John Toman [23d], chairman of the committee:

"Let's cut the rates ourselves."

Sharp words were exchanged during yesterday's committee meeting between Lee Daniels, head of the Public Service Taxi company, and Ben Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, and Michael Sokol, president of the Checker company. The Public company charges 15 cents for the first third of a mile and 5 cents for each third of a mile thereafter. The Yellow and Checker cabs, which have a virtual monopoly on the taxi business in Chicago, charge 25 cents for the first quarter of a mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter.

Seeks Permit for More Cabs.

The Yellow and Checker representatives declared their cabs could not operate profitably at lesser rates. The Public company is seeking permission to put more cabs on the street at the lower rate.

Samuels, of the Yellow company, said that a heavy expense would be involved in changing the 2,600 or 2,700 meters used on Yellow cabs. He said that at present the company makes a profit of 1.4 cents per trip.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] asked how much of the Yellow company's earnings went to New York. The statement was then made that the company had paid a "management fee" of $75,000 yearly to the Parmelee company, owner of a block of its stock. Samuels said this charge has been cut to $50,000 and is infinitesimal in view of the 36,500,000 miles traveled by Yellow cabs a year.

Speaks of Public Safety.

Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th] said that public safety should be considered. He spoke of a man injured five years ago by a Bauer cab who sued and whose case was on court call yesterday. The man has no chance of compensation because the company is out of existence, Ald. Cronson said. That brought up the question of the reliability of the cab companies in paying for injuries and damages caused by their cabs.

Sokol, of the Checker company, said that in four years there have been 20,030 claims made against his company and that $2,029,969 has been spent in settling or paying all of them except 45. These 45 cases are pending in court and a reserve fund of $81,000 has been set up to meet any necessary payments, Sokol said.

Samuels said the Yellow company has 70 personal injury cases now in litigation and $17 a month per cab is set aside to pay for injuries and damages. Both men questioned the ability of the Public company to pay its claims. Daniels replied that the company carried ample insurance on every cab.

Samuels gave the aldermen a chart showing the taxicab rate comparison between Chicago and six other cities. This was amplified by information from nine additional cities and a comparison of rates was made, showing the cost to the rider at one mile, two miles, and five miles, the highest rate charges in each city being the ones listed. The rate tabulation follows:

Chicago	$0.45	$0.65	$1.25
New York	.35	.55	1.15
Pittsburgh	.45	.65	1.25
Omaha	.25	.30	.60
Louisville	.15	.25	.85
Milwaukee	.30	.50	1.10
Boston	.50	.75	1.50
St. Paul	.25	.45	.95
Kansas City	.30	.50	1.10
Cleveland	.15	.30	.75
Cincinnati	.30	.50	1.10
Philadelphia	.35	.60	1.35
Los Angeles	.35	.60	1.35
San Francisco	.35	.60	1.35
Washington	.20	.20	.60
New Orleans	.25	.25	.25

In this table Chicago is shown as having a higher rate for one mile than any other of the cities except Pittsburgh. For two miles one other city, Boston, has a higher rate than both Chicago and Pittsburgh. For five miles four other cities, Boston, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, have higher rates than Chicago.

New Company Seeks Licenses.

A request by a new company, to be called the Chicago Cab company, for 1,000 taxi licenses at the "15 cent and 5 cent" rate, was presented to the committee. Chairman Toman said the company would be given a hearing tomorrow. Many of the aldermen present said they favored the low rate for the Yellow and Checker companies.

Ald. Cronson moved that the corporation counsel be directed to draft a contract ordinance under which a five year license would be granted to the companies after a rate has been agreed upon. Under this plan the companies' books would be subject to inspection by the city and the city would have authority to change the rates at any time.

There was no hint from the company representatives that they would enter into any agreement, but the motion was carried. Previously mention was made of the possibility of the companies keeping the rate question in the courts for many years if an arbitrary reduction is ordered by the city council.

The Yellow company frankly told the aldermen that the "flag-pull" charge of 25 cents is intended to make the out of town visitor pay a high charge for a short haul, such as from railroad station to hotel, but that since Chicago is a "long haul" city, Chicagoans get the best of service at 20 cents a mile after the initial charge.

Roosevelt Program to Slash Bureaus Shelved for Time

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—A new federal bureaucracy put up its head here today as plans were revealed for the creation of a large organization to carry out the Roosevelt plan for the control of industry.

At the same time the President disclosed that his reorganization program, to be ordered into effect this week, will not make drastic changes in the existing bureaucracy at Washington, at least until the regular session of congress next winter. The President declared that time simply did not permit a complete revamping of the government structure to be accomplished at this session.

Meanwhile, with new activities being added almost daily under the new deal, the hopes for seeing a promised saving of 225 million dollars in the coming year through the President's reorganization efforts went glimmering.

Although the industry control bill has not been approved as yet by the senate, a spacious row of offices, extending over a full corridor of the mammoth department of commerce building, has been equipped for the new national industrial control board.

Johnson Occupies Office.

The offices were the scene of full activity today. A private office is occupied by Hugh Johnson, who is understood to be slated to be the new czar of industry, although at present he has no official standing. Secretaries, stenographers and clerks seemed beset by many duties.

An inquiry for Mr. Johnson brought the reply that he was "not in," but a young man, seeming to speak with some authority, was interviewed with dubious results.

Asked how the employés in this new governmental beehive were paid, the young man replied that some were drawn from other departments and that others were volunteers. He was a volunteer, it turned out. His name, he revealed, is Robert Straus. He is a New Yorker and the son of the new ambassador to France, Jesse Isidor Straus.

"Everything is strictly unofficial here," he finally explained. "The bill creating the industrial control board is not yet through the senate and it may not go through at all, for all we know."

Roper Seeks to Keep Bureaus.

It was disclosed by Secretary of Commerce Roper that the new board probably will start out with a full grown bureaucratic organization. Mr. Roper said he had suggested to President Roosevelt that instead of abolishing the twenty commodity divisions of the department of commerce, as had been announced, they be put under the industry control board.

The cost of maintaining this group, which Secretary Roper had expected to abolish as an economy move, is $200,000 a year.

ROOSEVELT FARM LOAN PLAN WINS HOUSE APPROVAL

Establishes New System of Rural Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's substitute for the machinery of the federal farm board and the present widely scattered system of federal farm credit activity was approved by the house today without a record vote.

Introduced by Representative Marvin Jones [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the house agriculture committee, and designed to implement the new farm credit administration with an entirely new system of farm loan institution, the measure proceeded through the lower body of the congress with scarcely a word of opposition.

Explains Its Provisions.

Explaining its provisions, Chairman Jones said the bill "is designed to supply credit for agricultural production and marketing."

"While direct lending by the government to farmers to finance their production may be justified in cases of emergency," he declared, "it is an unsatisfactory system of providing the required credit, for it is too expensive; it cannot be sufficiently flexible to meet local need.

"The policy of this bill is to provide the stimulus in the form of government capital and supervision to the establishment of local institutions in which farmers are participants and owners, and through which the necessary credit may be provided on a safe business basis and at a reasonable cost."

Eliminates One Objection.

"The same general observations," said Mr. Jones, "may be made with respect to credit for coöperative agricultural associations. This bill continues and strengthens the present system of coöperative credit. The change proposed in the bill in the interest rate on loans to coöperatives, it is believed, will permit a compensatory rate and will eliminate the objection frequently made that the government makes loans to coöperatives at a lower rate than it can borrow, and thus is engaged in an unprofitable undertaking as well as one in which the government is unfairly competing with private lending."

WORKER DIES AT FAIR.

Charles Ott, 50 years old, 3443 Beach street, an electrician employed at the World's Fair, collapsed yesterday while he was eating his lunch in the Alaska section of the Court of States and died of heart disease.

TAXI MEN URGE STATE RULE OF THEIR INDUSTRY

Resolutions urging state, rather than municipal, control of the taxicab industry were adopted yesterday by the National Association of Taxicab Owners at the closing session of their convention in the Hotel Sherman. Competition by cut rate companies was condemned as harmful to the public as well as to the regular companies.

It was also voted that the president of the organization, W. W. Cloud of Baltimore, appoint a committee to call on President Roosevelt and seek to have a program adopted in line with the Roosevelt trade association views. State utility commissions, it was held, should fix the rates and limit the number of cabs in operation.

TITLE RIGHT OF PRINCE ALEXIS IS FLAYED IN PARIS

Say Fiance of Woolworth Heiress Is Commoner.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 31.—Announcement of the forthcoming marriage of Alexis Mdivani, prince by grace of God and American copy desk practice, to Barbara Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth five-and-ten cent store fortune, has lashed the Russian emigré colony of Paris into a furious controversy over the right of Alexis to the title which he sports.

The Paris offices of THE TRIBUNE have been bombarded by indignant Georgians, representing the older Caucasian nobility, who insist that the three Mdivani brothers, Alexis, Serge, and David, are phony princes.

Says He's a Secretary.

"Prince, my eye, he's a secretary," were in effect the words of Prince Nicholas Dadiani, former "marshal of nobility" of Georgia. "None of the Mdivanis or any of their ancestors has a right to the title of prince. Prince in Georgian means to be a descendant of the royal family of the Bagratids [571-1803], who never had any connection with the Mdivanis. Divani in Georgian means 'secretary' and I suppose the family is descended from a secretary in one of the institutions of the country."

Members of the genuine Russian aristocracy refuse to take sides in the controversy, explaining that they do not take much stock in Georgian titles, authentic or otherwise.

Alexis himself, interviewed by telephone today, referred inquiries to the Georgian "legation."

"I do not care to go into the matter personally at the moment," he said. "I don't think it would be dignified."

Father Was Czar's Aide.

At the Georgian legation, a diplomatic phantom which has no legal standing since the Russian revolution but is allowed to exist for sentimental reasons, assurance was given that Mdivani is perfectly entitled to call himself a prince. Purported translations from Georgian archives were shown in which it was stated that Alexis is a descendant of a "princely family." Moreover, legation officials declared the fact that Alexis' father, the late Zachary Mdivani was an aide de camp to the czar entitled his sons to call themselves princes.

An independent investigation tended to establish the fact that Alexis has at least as much right to the title of prince as the average colonel in Kentucky, U. S. A., has to his title. It is admitted even by purists that the Mdivanis are an aristocratic Georgian family, which is established by the fact that male ancestors are known to have worn shoes for several generations back.

CUBA TO EXILE ARMY OFFICERS FOR 3 KILLINGS

HAVANA, May 31.—(AP)—It was authoritatively learned tonight that Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, army officer accused of killing three watchmen at the Jatibonico Province sugar mill two weeks ago, will sail for Germany June 14 aboard the steamer Warra, which arrived today.

Maj. Ortiz, who commanded army forces acting against rebels in Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces until he was recalled to Havana last week, now is at his home under instructions to hold himself at the orders of the general staff.

Although the report to the general staff of Lieut. Col. Erasmo Delgado, who was sent to Jatibonico to investigate the killings of the three watchmen, definitely charges Ortiz with responsibility, he has not been arrested or removed from the army.

'Cockeye' Ablin Taken to Hospital for Operation

Dave [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin, who launched eight speakeasies and invented "protection" for garage owners, lay in St. Edward hospital at New Albany, Ind., last night awaiting an operation for a kidney ailment, according to dispatches. He was admitted to the hospital when he became ill while visiting a friend, Walter Maddux, according to his physician, Dr. F. T. Tyler.

NEW BACTERIA EATER REVEALED BY NEW YORKER

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—What is believed to be a new type of bacteriophage [bacteria eater] more powerful than any of its kind hitherto found has been discovered at the aquarium at Battery park. That was learned today through C. W. Coates, curator of tropical fishes at that institution.

The new agent Mr. Coates said, seems to be a polyphage; that is, it destroys, as far as could be determined, all kinds of bacteria. The regular types of bacteriophage are specific, each type devouring only one type of bacteria.

GOTHAM HEARS R. T. SHERWOOD PLANS TO RETURN

Vanished When Called Walker's Agent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Friends of Russell T. Sherwood credited a published report today that the long missing accountant who managed the financial affairs of former Mayor James J. Walker, was in an adjoining state, planning to return to New York.

Sherwood was called by Samuel Seabury "Mr. Walker's financial alter ego." Sherwood disappeared during the Hofstadter committee's investigation of the New York City government.

Adjudged in Contempt.

Sherwood is a fugitive from justice, having been adjudged in contempt of court under the civil practice act after he defied a subpoena served upon him in Mexico City. A fine of $50,000 was imposed on him and an order for his arrest was issued by Supreme Court Justice Churchill.

Mr. Seabury said tonight the passing of the Hofstadter committee does not affect that fine.

"The fact is that this man has defied a legislative committee of this state," Mr. Seabury added. "What the sheriff of this county and the so-called machinery of justice will do about it remains to be seen.

Hears Sherwood Denies It.

"As I understand it, Sherwood is said to claim that he was not Walker's financial agent. Let him explain, then, why he did not say so before and why he ran away. There is nothing for him to do, but admit that the $262,000 he withdrew on the eve of Walker's departure for Europe was the property of the former mayor."

When Mr. Seabury was told that Sherwood was quoted as having admitted meeting Mr. Walker after the latter's resignation and prior to his sailing for Europe to be married to Betty Compton, he remarked, "Of course. How would Walker live otherwise."

Rumors of Sherwood's imminent return have been current for the last fortnight. It was said he has spent part of his time at Asbury Park, N.J.

One report had it that Sherwood was dickering with federal authorities through an intermediary regarding $42,000 in income taxes levied against him. Hugh McQuillen, chief of the intelligence unit of the federal income tax bureau, however, denied that.

DRAKES START SUIT TO RETAIN HOTEL PRIVILEGES

Members of the Drake family, once owners of the Drake and Blackstone hotels, yesterday brought an action in the Federal court to retain their privileges in the Drake hotel. The case was assigned to Jacob I. Grossman, master in chancery, by Judge James H. Wilkerson and the taking of testimony was started yesterday afternoon.

The action was brought as an intervening petition in the foreclosure suit against the Drake hotel, which was placed in receivership on April 5. The petitioners are John B. Drake, his wife, Jessica; his brother, Tracy C. Drake, and the latter's wife, Anna.

They asked that the receiver, Charles K. Williamson, be forced to honor a contract made by the Drakes with the Whitestone Management corporation, which operated the hotel from the time of its reorganization in July, 1932, until the receiver was appointed.

Under this contract John B. Drake and Tracy C. Drake were to be given free quarters for themselves and their families, food, the right to entertain "a reasonable number of guests," and yearly salaries of $15,000 each. In return they were to act in an advisory capacity but were not to be called upon "to do mere clerical work."

JUDGE REFUSES $57,050 CLAIM IN LAST OPINION

Taylor, Off Bench Next Week, Closes Docket.

In his final opinion as a judge of the Circuit court Judge Thomas Taylor yesterday refused to allow a claim of $57,050 brought by Lester Kulp, 1932 Kenilworth avenue, Wilmette, against the estate of Alva C. Austin, president of the defunct Mid-West Lamp company. The opinion, in holding that promissory notes executed in a questionable business venture are not valid claim against an estate, sets a precedent in Illinois courts.

The case has been pending before Judge Taylor for more than a year on an appeal from the Probate court. The opinion was delivered on the eve of his retirement from the bench. The judge's term expires at midnight Monday. He is not a candidate for re-election. With the decision the judge completed the hearing of cases on his call. Judge Taylor is 73 years old.

Witnesses Attack Notes.

Judge Taylor permitted the validity of the notes and the written agreement accompanying them to be attacked by witnesses who said that Kulp had declared the notes to be mere matters of accommodation and that he never intended to collect them.

The Mid-West Lamp company was incorporated in 1923 by Kulp, and Austin, a salesman employed by him, was made president. At the time of incorporation Austin gave a $75,000 note to Kulp in exchange for the stock of the company.

The company went into bankruptcy five months later. In effecting a compromise with creditors Kulp and Austin signed a new agreement under which stock was returned to Kulp with seventy $500 promissory notes. Austin was killed two years later in an auto accident. Kulp presented the notes in the Probate court demanding principal and interest. The Austin estate consisted almost entirely of money from insurance policies.

Contentions for Estate.

The estate contended Austin was never the actual owner of the stock nor head of the company and that the entire transaction was a scheme of Kulp's to put off creditors. Witnesses for the estate testified that Kulp told Austin he would never collect on the notes. Attorneys for Kulp countered with citations holding the notes spoke for themselves.

Judge Taylor held Kulp had conceived and carried into execution with the connivance and help of Austin a scheme based on deceit and fraud for the ultimate purpose of defrauding creditors. He held that Kulp, "being a party to the illegal purpose and conduct," was not entitled to the assistance of the court to collect any part of the notes.

11,000 Canadian Railmen Get 20 Per Cent Pay Cut

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, May 31.—Eleven thousand engineers, firemen, conductors and other employés in the group on the Canadian Pacific railway received their monthly pay checks today with 20 per cent deducted from the basic rate—thus carrying into effect the pay cut announced by the company some weeks ago.

Women Open Drive to Elect Repeal Slate Next Monday

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Next Monday Illinois voters get their chance to vote to wipe national prohibition out of the constitution. This was the theme of a call issued yesterday by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, in opening the final drive for election of repeal delegates.

Fifty delegates are to be elected Monday by state-wide vote on the straight issue of repeal and anti-repeal, and the delegates will meet in convention at Springfield July 10 to ratify or reject the 21st amendment, abolishing the 18th.

Ratification Day Tomorrow.

As a curtain raiser for the election the women will celebrate tomorrow as "Ratification Day" both in Cook county and downstate. The purpose is to call the attention of the voters to the necessity of going to the polls Monday and casting their ballots for the wet delegates, and of showing by sample ballots how to vote for repeal.

Co-chairmen of "Ratification Day" are Mrs. Stanley Field and Mrs. William A. Sauer. Several hundred women have volunteered to pass out handbills throughout the city, Mrs. George Nichols Jr., and Mrs. Mark Trude are co-chairmen of the hotels division. Many loop hotels and several of the outlying hotels will provide desks in the lobbies.

Assign Women Volunteers.

Mrs. Clifford Rodman is chairman of the theaters and movies division and will have women in the lobbies and in front of a large number of theaters in the loop and throughout the city. Mrs. Rose L. Dyvig is chairman of the elevated railroad division, a very large group of women who have volunteered for this part of the work, and will be at all the leading north, south and west side elevated stations. Miss Elizabeth Roe is in charge of enlisting women to take care of all the important stations on the Illinois Central railroad—particularly those leading to A Century of Progress. Other railroad stations are also to be covered.

Calls from voters have been swamping the women's headquarters inquiring whether it is necessary to place a cross before the names of each of the 50 wet delegates. Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairmen of the women's organization, who were largely instrumental in getting the legislature to pass the bill for the election of repeal delegates Monday instead of waiting a full year, have been emphasizing that it is only necessary to place a cross in the circle at the top of repeal ticket of delegates in the left hand column on the ballot.

Show "How to Vote Wet."

The handbills, headed "How to Vote Wet" show the voters how and where to mark one cross in the repealist circle.

The Chicago Federation of Labor, the voluntary committee of lawyers, the Chicago Hotel association, the Crusaders, and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment have joined with the women's organization in the distribution of the handbills.

A warning to repealists to beware of overconfidence was issued by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in a letter mailed to its members throughout Illinois.

GEORGE MASON, OF MICHIGAN '61, TO GET DEGREE

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31.—[Special.]—In 1861 George Mason of Chicago, a student at the University of Michigan, laid aside his books and took up the trappings of war. It was only a month until his graduation, but he felt he could not wait.

It was suggested to him then by President Henry P. Tappan that he come back later and receive his diploma. Mr. Tappan had not looked quite as far into the future as the case required. For Mr. Mason, now 93 years old and still active in business in Chicago, is just getting around to the point of going for his sheepskin.

The award, already voted unanimously by the faculty of the college of liberal arts, will be made on June 19 of this year. It will show, officially, that George Mason was graduated as a member of the Michigan class of 1861.

Since leaving the campus, Mr. Mason, whose home is at 527 Roscoe street, Chicago, has had a varied career. He enlisted as a private in the Union army and rose to a captaincy and a brevet majority, serving in the 12th Illinois infantry, on the staffs of Maj. Gen. John McArthur and Maj. Gen. R. J. Oglesby, and with the 2d division of the 16th army corps in the Atlanta campaign.

Returning to Chicago in 1865, he and a partner established a general foundry business which later became the Excelsior Iron works, of which he was president. In 1895 the stock of this company was sold to the Miehle Printing Press & Manufacturing company. For some years Mr. Mason was a vice president of the later concern. He is now president of the Dell Rapids Quarry company, crushed stone dealers.

Mr. Mason is a former west park commissioner. In 1900 he represented Chicago at the international exposition in Paris and in 1901 was a member of the board of inspectors of the Cook county bridewell. He has been active in G. A. R. affairs.

BEG YOUR PARDON

J. A. Miller of Waukegan, personal attorney for Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, denied yesterday that Voliva has an income of $100,000 a year from Zion interests, as was suggested Tuesday in a story in THE TRIBUNE reporting a receivership action against the Zion Institutions and Industries, Inc., of which Voliva is the head. Attorney Miller said that Voliva's total pay during his twenty-seven years at Zion has been $21,250. Of this, he added, Voliva has given $13,285 to the church.

JUDGE DEMANDS END OF ABUSES IN AUTO ARRESTS

Orders Allman to Be in Court Today.

After hearing six motorists protest the police policy of making arrests after automobile accidents on charges of reckless driving, Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday demanded that Police Commissioner Allman or a representative appear in the Traffic court this morning.

The six motorists complained of "outrageous treatment" by police. They told of treatment similar to that accorded Miss Lilyan Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street, who was recently held 20 hours without being formally booked or granted bail after a child had been hurt by her car when he ran into it. It was disclosed that police violated at least 11 ordinances, statutes and constitutional provisions in Miss Zagel's case.

Held 4 Hours by Police.

The first motorist to appear before Judge Green was Harry Steffen, 31 years old, 2210 Thome avenue, who testified he was arrested and held 4 hours Monday by the Hudson avenue police after a boy, hitching on Steffen's truck, was slightly injured when he fell off. Steffen was charged with reckless driving. Police said they have orders to make an arrest whenever any one is injured in an auto crash.

Mrs. Jeanette Salafsky, 28 years old, 244 North Campbell avenue, said she also was held four hours by Shakespeare police Monday night. She was charged with reckless driving because in driving from the curb in front of her home her auto was struck by another car.

John Butkus, 19 years old, 1908 Canalport avenue, was held four hours by the Maxwell police and charged with reckless driving. The complainant failed to appear.

Youth Held 8 Hours.

Patrick Mackessy, 22 years old, 8515 South Elizabeth street, said he was held 8 hours by Hyde Park police and charged with reckless driving after a man walked into his automobile May 27. Five witnesses testified for Mackessy. Paul Havlicek, 19 years old, 4730 South Damen avenue, told of a similar experience at the hands of the Fillmore police.

"Police should be a little quicker on the gun with racketeers and criminals and a little slower on the pencil in charging citizens with reckless driving in cases like these," Judge Green said.

Great Lakes Bluejackets March in Their Last Review

BY JOSEPH DUGAN.

Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius and the officers of his staff, resplendent in dress blue uniforms and white caps, step onto the small reviewing stand at the front of the huge parade ground of the Great Lakes Naval Training station. The executive officer, standing before them on the field, executes a smart sword salute, then about-faces and barks out the order:

"Pass in review!"

The station band of fifty pieces swings into the strains of "Nancy Lee." The 400 men of the station regiment, in dress blues and white hats, come around behind the band in a column of fours towards the end of the field, the tips of their fixed bayonets gleaming in the sunlight and swaying in rhythmic motion. First the band, then the sailors, in company front formation, march by the reviewing stand, the colors of each company flying and the men executing a precise "eyes right" in salute to their commandant. The last major dress parade of the Great Lakes station is under way.

To Be Abandoned June 30.

On June 30 the once great naval training school of the middle west, which trained and sent to the navy more than 150,000 sailors during the war, will be virtually abandoned. Only enough guards to protect the property will remain on the grounds on which the greatest naval encampment in the history of the country was centered fifteen years ago.

Yesterday's final dress parade and review was witnessed by 5,000 persons, the largest crowd assembled for one of the Wednesday shows since the war. Seated in the front row as guests of honor for the occasion were Miss Lillian Anderson, queen of A Century of Progress, and her court of 50 beautiful girls, chosen by THE TRIBUNE and fifteen associated newspapers. Miss Anderson carried a huge bouquet of roses presented to her by Admiral Cluverius on behalf of the navy.

Scores among the spectators were men who remembered, as former "gobs," the days when Great Lakes was in her glory. As the companies marched by they recalled those Wednesday afternoons of years ago when "Peacock" Mike Tennant, drum major, strutted down the field in front of the augmented station band of 1,500 pieces while 40,000 bluejackets surged behind them in battalion formations.

Ex-Sailors Applaud.

With the others the former "gobs" on the side lines yesterday applauded as the young bluejackets wheeled and formed hollow company squares, as they themselves had done. The Butts manual drill and the spelling out with flags of the words "G-r-e-a-t L-a-k-e-s" brought back the memories more vividly. To these old timers the last review was a sad occasion, as it was also to many of the station officers who have tried valiantly but in vain in recent months to stave off the official closing.

Great Lakes was formally opened July 1, 1911, with Rear Admiral Albelt Ross in command. Its huge enlargement and activity during the war, when it became the largest naval training school in the world, were under the direction and command of the late Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, who lost his life in the Akron disaster. During the war the government spent in excess of $15,000,000 at the station, building Camps Decatur, Paul Jones, Barry, Dewey, Perry, Farragut, and Ross, all wooden cantonments which were dismantled at the close of the war. Since then the station personnel has been approximately 1,500 officers and men. All will be transferred to sea or other land stations by June 17.

FRENCH CABINET UPHELD BY VOTE IN BOTH HOUSES

PARIS, June 1.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—The government of Premier Edouard Daladier was sustained early today on a question of confidence in both houses of parliament.

The chamber of deputies backed up the government by a 359 to 200 vote in passing a compromise measure creating a committee to study a proposal for a government monopoly of oil importation.

The premier repeated his victory in the senate, which accepted the chamber's compromise bill by a 157 to 121 vote.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralising gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralises burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

JUDGE FISHER'S STATUS IN BENCH RACE DESCRIBED

Opposed by Bar; Work in Courts Told.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The case of Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court, who is emphatically marked for defeat by the Chicago Bar association in the judicial election next Monday, takes a peculiar status in this conflict.

While the association's campaign booklet states that Judge Fisher has legal ability and that he has made "notable contributions to the advancement of civil and criminal jurisprudence in Illinois," yet he is declared "unfit for judicial office," without any explanation as to the reasons for this judgment.

In the questionnaire that went out to the bar association membership last spring on the sitting judges he received 391 votes in favor of his renomination and 983 against. In the February primary of the association he received 483 affirmative votes and 1,963 in the negative. In the bar's last primary in May he got 518 votes and was turned down by 2,094 members.

Background of Opposition.

This consistent and heavy opposition is not based on any charges, and the reason must be sought in conversation with attorneys.

"They assassinated me without a hearing," says Judge Fisher. "There was no investigation, just an anonymous vote, based on prejudice."

As the bar association endorsed him in 1921 and again in 1927 this comment on prejudice does not appear well based.

His legal ability is unquestioned by attorneys, but here there is the suggestion that he has been too impatient with the meager learnings of many young lawyers who come before him, anticipating them, knowing in advance what they were anxious to argue, cutting them off.

There have been comments on his decisions in Yale, Harvard and Michigan law reviews and the American Bar association journal in May has an article commending his unusual grasp of equity problems in a case in which the judge refused a receivership against a bank on grounds of public policy.

"Too Fond of Politics."

The only definite thing mentioned privately against Judge Fisher in bar association circles is the dog race track cases, and the general complaint that he is too fond of politics.

In the matter of politics Judge Fisher replies that he is at least "politically free," that he does not have to go to a political boss for endorsement, that people who want things have to come to him. He also makes the point that his knowledge of politics and his influence with legislators have made it possible for him to get through the many reforms in the law for which he is given full credit.

The Appellate court decision in May, 1930, in the Hawthorne Kennel club injunction case, criticizing Judge Fisher, is cited against him. This follows:

"That such a plain violation of the law as the facts of this case disclose should be countenanced and prolonged two years under forms of judicial procedure is so repugnant to the theory on which courts of justice are organized as not to be viewed with complacency, and must, therefore, be condemned."

View of Judge Fisher.

Judge Fisher says that this case more than any case he has ever tried "presents a situation which the little ability I am accredited with having, plus my 'injudicious' attitude of looking to the social consequences of my acts, has plagued me instead of bringing the merited approval of those who would take the trouble of understanding.

"Prior to 1928 a number of chancellors issued injunctions restraining interference with dog races. These injunctions were usually issued in the spring, and when the season was over in the fall the bills were dismissed. Some time in May, 1928, upon a proper bill, drawn in the usual and approved form, I was compelled to and did issue an injunction in the Hawthorne Kennel club case.

"Had I been less concerned about the matter and treated it as the other chancellors had, I suppose the bill would have been dismissed in the fall.

"Instead, I at once determined that I should not permit a repetition of the fraud upon the public of having them [the dog tracks] operate over the summer under my injunction and then prevent my issuing a decree by dismissing the bill. I sent for the state's attorney and the attorney for the complainant and told them that I did not propose to allow the injunction to operate unless I was assured that the case would go to decree."

Judge Fisher says that he directed the state's attorney to file a cross-bill, which would prevent a dismissal of the original bill. Discovering several months later, he relates, that nothing had been done, he called in the master in chancery to whom the case had been referred and directed him to compel the parties to proceed. Later the master, Max Korshak, recommended that the injunction be made permanent.

Judge Reverses Master.

"I reversed Korshak," Judge Fisher said, "not on the theory that parimutuel betting was gambling, but upon the broader view that the operation of the dog track was such a public nuisance that a court of chancery would not aid in its operation. I was not at all sure of myself, but such doubts as I had were resolved against the track.

"In my anxiety to get the matter to the Supreme court I suggested to the dog track operators that if they would appeal I would permit the injunction to remain in force [a matter involving only five or six weeks more] pending the appeal. They agreed to do so. The matter went to the Appellate court. They sustained my decree, but, gratuitously and without any warrant in law, after indulging in unkind criticism, held that I had no power to order the injunction to remain in force pending the appeal."

He quotes a state Supreme court judge to the effect that the power to continue an injunction in force was statutory and that the Supreme court had done the same thing repeatedly.

It has been rumored that Judge Fisher's brother, a lawyer, had interested him in this case in behalf of the tracks.

"He was in another case," said the judge. "We quarreled when I refused to do what he wanted. We have never spoken to each other since."

Judge Fisher has been on the Circuit bench since 1921. In addition to his legal work he has been active for many years in social work. He began as attorney for the Jewish Social Service agency and helped organize the first Juvenile Protective association. He wrote the Juvenile court act in 1907. He organized the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

He drafted the pander act, which has proved a powerful instrument in police hands. For twenty years he has advised in all social legislation. His report in the morals branch of the Municipal court has been cited in sociological works.

In the Circuit court he aided in the reorganization of the county service on an efficiency basis, greatly cutting expenses. As member of the judicial advisory council, of which Justice De Young of the State Supreme court was chairman, Judge Fisher aided in the reclassification of county fees, the establishment of the felony branch and in the new jury commission act.

On entering the Criminal court, Judge Fisher found 13 judges with 3,200 cases pending and 1,300 prisoners in the jail. He started a test case on the right of a defendant to waive jury trial in felony cases, argued it personally before the Supreme court, and won.

Another great reform was in the law making the jury the judge of the law in criminal cases. This law was 104 years old. Judge Fisher wrote an opinion against this and was sustained. In the third reform which he attempted, that of giving the judge the right to comment on the evidence, as is done in English courts, he failed.

"Some day," he said, "I hope to get this and we will have in Illinois the most scientific procedure in any state."

[Other candidates will be discussed tomorrow.]

CANDIDATES FOR CIRCUIT BENCH

Election June 5

Harry C. Kinne, Republican, comes from early American and revolutionary stock. He was born on a farm near Kalamazoo, Mich. He is 54 years old. He was graduated from Illinois College of Law in 1903 and was admitted to the bar. For 23 years he has been a professor of law at Illinois College of Law and De Paul university, specializing in real estate, probate, wills, chancery, trusts and corporation law.

Mr. Kinne is at present serving as a member of the board of trustees of Wilmette. He lives at 1324 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette, and has two daughters and one son.

In the May bar primaries Mr. Kinne came within 44 votes of landing among the 20 high men for the 20 Circuit judgeships. He ran ahead of seven of the sitting judges. The report of the bar association's board of managers said of Mr. Kinne: "He is an able lawyer. He is courteous, patient, industrious, and even tempered. He is well qualified for the office."

Walter J. La Buy, Democrat, age 44, is at present a county commissioner. He was born at Beaver Dam, Wis. After three years at De Paul university school of law he was graduated and admitted to the bar in 1912. For 20 years he has been in active practice. For eight years, 1922 to 1930, he conducted a mortgage business. In 1918 he served as city attorney of Chicago.

He was elected to the county board in 1930, and has initiated and advanced constructive measures. Among these were changes in the idle relief, whereby the service was improved and some waste in administration eliminated. In the bar primaries he ran in 33d place. The association report said Mr. La Buy is "forceful and persistent."

Noble W. Lee, Republican, 36 years old, is a son of Dean Edward T. Lee of John Marshall Law school. He attended the University of Chicago, Real gymnasium at Freiburg, Germany, and the University of Caen, France. He was graduated from Harvard university in 1920 and from John Marshall Law school in 1923.

During the war he served overseas for two years and three months in the United States army and was twice decorated with the Croix de Guerre. In 1928 he served as a special assistant attorney general under Frank J. Loesch on election fraud cases. The bar association report said: "He would be regarded as qualified except for lack of an adequate professional experience."

Samuel L. Golan, Republican, was born in Chicago in 1898 and was graduated from Northwestern university school of law in 1920. From 1927 to 1931 he was a special assistant corporation counsel, in addition to being trial attorney for the city attorney's office. He has given his attention mainly to the trial of cases. The bar association report said: "He has not demonstrated his fitness for judicial office."

William E. Rodriguez, People's Judiciary, is 53 and was born in Naperville, Ill. He was graduated from John Marshall Law school and admitted to the bar in 1913. He was twice elected as Socialist alderman of the old 15th ward, now the 34th, his second term ending in 1918. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, having served in Porto Rico with a Wisconsin regiment. He is legal representative of many labor unions.

SUPERIOR BENCH
(Caylor Vacancy)

J. Edward Saff, candidate for the Superior court on the People's Judiciary ticket, was born in South Chicago in 1886. He was graduated from Chicago Kent college of law in 1921. In private practice since then he has specialized in utility, real estate and corporation law. He was in the navy during the war.

JUDICIAL RACE SWINGS DOWN HOME STRETCH

Democrats Ask Support "for Administration."

The wind-up campaign for the judicial election next Monday was launched full tilt yesterday by the rival Democratic and Republican county committees, with arguments revolving around President Roosevelt.

Meeting at the Morrison hotel, the Democratic committee urged the voters to stand by the administrations of President Roosevelt, Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly by marking their ballots straight for the Democratic judicial ticket, which includes eight sitting Republican Circuit judges and Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court.

Municipal Judge John F. O'Connell, Democratic candidate for the place on the Probate bench which Gov. Horner held for 18 years, in addresses at the committee meeting and later last night at the North Shore hotel in Evanston made an appeal seconded by other candidates.

Judge O'Connell's Appeal.

After reviewing the accomplishments of the national, state and city Democratic administrations, Judge O'Connell said:

"On Monday the voters of Cook county will have opportunity to express their approval of what has been done by the Democratic party. It may seem a far cry from Washington to Chicago, from Franklin Roosevelt to the candidates in a judicial election, but there is a strong connection.

"If President Roosevelt, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney are to continue carrying on the work they have so nobly begun, they must have the support of the citizenry. Obstructionism can come only from the so-called leaders of the Republican party.

"While the judiciary should be above partisan politics, and the Democratic party has striven to keep it so by nominating a fusion ticket on which appear the names of eight sitting Republican Circuit judges, the policies of the administration can be seriously hampered by a judiciary out of sympathy with its aims. While remaining within the letter of the law a judge can nullify the efforts of even the most active administration in the field of law and order. If you wish to stamp with your approval the acts of the nation, the state, county and municipal governments, seal that approval with a cross in the circle at the head of the Democratic ticket."

G. O. P. Assails Democrats.

Two blocks away at the Sherman hotel, the Republicans at their county meeting upbraided the Democrats for bringing national, state and local politics into a bench election, which is held separate from other elections on the hypothesis that thereby ordinary politics will be kept out of the choice of judges.

William H. Weber, county chairman, addressing the Republican committeemen, said:

"Lacking any logical appeal for their ticket, the Democrats are depending on the name of President Roosevelt to pull their ticket through. Their advertisements carry the slogan, 'Support Roosevelt.'

"Reasonable persons are asking just how it would be supporting Roosevelt to vote the judicial ticket the Democrats are offering. President Roosevelt is no issue in this campaign. He probably is only concerned in the election of honest, courageous, upright judges in all the courts of our land.

Says Issue Is Receivership.

"Loyal Americans always do support the President regardless of parties whenever great emergencies exist.

"The outcome of this judicial election is not likely to affect President Roosevelt, but it can easily affect the recipients of outlandish receivership fees, the bosses who hand picked the Democratic ticket and Democratic precinct captains who have been using emergency relief funds for political purposes.

"The real issue is not President Roosevelt but the receivership scandal."

AUTOIST WITH 17 KINDS OF TROUBLE CALLED TO COURT

It seems that Al Riskind, 29 years old, 3838 Polk street, is careless about where he parks his automobile.

Yesterday he was arraigned in the Traffic court for letting the vehicle stand near a traffic light at Harrison street and Homan avenue.

"There are sixteen additional charges against the defendant, all for motor ordinance violations," said Policeman John Coleman.

"Put the cases over to June 7," ordered Judge Thomas A. Green. "I hope Mr. Riskind will not add any more violations in the meantime."

BRIDGES URGED AT 2 CROSSINGS WHERE 54 DIED

Glenview and Des Plaines Head Projects.

State engineers and traffic experts of the Chicago planning commission yesterday designated the Waukegan road intersection with the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad tracks, near Glenview, and the River road crossing of the Chicago and North Western railroad, near Des Plaines, as Cook county's "bloodiest grade crossings."

At the Glenview crossing a survey disclosed that 27 persons have been killed in eight years, including four persons who met death last Feb. 28 when their automobile was hit by a passenger train. Twelve other men and women were injured in accidents there and five automobiles were wrecked after their passengers abandoned them and jumped to safety.

27 Killed at Des Plaines.

Twenty-seven persons also have been killed at the Des Plaines crossing during the last 11 years. Eight of these were killed in two accidents last August and last November. In the latter accident six hunters returning to their homes were killed.

These two crossings will lead the list of twenty-two grade separations which the engineers recommend as projects upon which a part of Illinois' share of President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar fund for public projects should be spent. The two projects could be completed at a cost of $340,000, it is said.

At Springfield yesterday Robert Kingery, state commissioner of public works, stated that Illinois expects to receive about 18 million dollars from the federal public works fund. Of that amount 50 per cent is expected to be spent on highway construction of various sorts. Presumably not more than 3½ million dollars would be allocated from this money for Cook county.

Count Crossing Traffic.

Already the state engineers have begun a survey of the state grade crossings with an eye to spending the highway allocation with the utmost effectiveness. Much of their work in Cook county is being done in connection with officers of the planning commission. The report prepared by the commission in 1931 on grade crossings in the county is now in the hands of the state representatives.

The highway engineers base their recommendations for grade separation on the volume of traffic over the crossings. Watchers were placed at 365 grade crossings in Cook county to count the automobiles and trains that passed the crossings.

Twenty crossings, aside from the Glen View and Des Plaines crossings, on the engineers' list follow:

Hwy. or St.	Railroad.	Location.
Archer-av.	B. & O. Chgo. Term.	Nr. S'mmit
Dixie-hwy.	Ind. Harbor Belt	Posen
Ogden-av.	Ind. Harbor Belt	La Grange

BUILDING TRADES RETAIN PRESENT WAGE CONTRACT

According to an announcement yesterday by E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association, 228 North La Salle street, the various contractors' units and their respective trade unions have agreed to continue their present wage contract until May 31, 1934.

The contract, calling for a reduction of approximately 20 per cent in wages, was signed on March 11, 1932, for a one year period. Since March 31, 1933, the arbitration boards of the employers groups have held numerous conferences with the unions, and both sides have agreed to continue the contract in force for another year.

MERCHANTS REPORT 12,616,300 RESIDE IN GREATER NEW YORK

New York, May 31.—(AP)—The metropolitan population of New York now is 12,616,300, an increase of nearly 600,000 since the 1930 census, the Merchants association reported today.

New York City's estimated population was placed at 7,218,000, against 6,930,446 in 1930.

COUNCIL TO ASK U. S. FOR CASH TO RUSH "L" STREETS

Vote Unanimously for West Side Project.

BY HAL FOUST.

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution petitioning the government for federal aid in financing superhighway construction for Chicago's west side. The vote was unanimous.

The resolution was introduced by Ald. John A. Massen [43th], chairman of the council traffic committee. This was the committee that employed Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university traffic research bureau in a year's survey of Chicago vehicular transportation facilities, resulting in a conclusion that elevated highways to the northwest, to the west, and to the southwest from the loop are an economic necessity. The survey further recommended that priority should be given to a route directly west.

Ask from Two Funds.

"The object of the resolution, of course," said Ald. Massen, "is to place a west side project on President Roosevelt's 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program. However, should congress fail to pass the enabling legislation the council is desirous of an allotment from the regular federal road appropriation.

"I'll see that the council's wishes reach the proper ears if I have to carry the resolution to the White House myself."

Gov. Horner was reached by telephone and gave his support to the move. Civic leaders of Chicago and other northern Illinois cities are behind the proposal.

"I could give you an interview saying that it's a swell idea, and I might receive a lot of favorably publicity thereby," the governor told a reporter. "However, I prefer to offer a concrete suggestion."

Promises State Aid.

"Let me suggest that the proponents of a west side superhighway get in touch with Mr. Harry Wheeler, chairman of the Illinois committee making recommendations to the government on projects under the President's program. Mr. Wheeler can have assistance of the state's engineers in whipping the project into shape so it can qualify as a federal work relief job."

Mr. Wheeler was in Washington yesterday but was expected to return Monday.

County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly said west side civic organizations are backing the proposal and that he will introduce an appropriate resolution to the county board at its meeting tomorrow.

FEELING RISES IN SPAIN AGAINST ANTI-CHURCH BILL

President Delays Signing Law; Angers Premier.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, May 31.—With only three days left of the fifteen allowed him by the constitution to make up his mind to sign or veto, Spain's Catholic and conservative president, Niceteo Alcala Zamora, still has not affixed his signature to the revolutionary religious bill passed two weeks ago by the radical cortes.

The president issued a statement today indicating that he is being smothered with petitions from Catholic bodies asking him not to approve the bill, which is designed to smash the political and financial powers of the church in Spain, and particularly to cut short its educational activities. Availing himself of his constitutional privilege not to receive petitioners in person, Zamora has suspended all audiences of this kind.

Predict He Will Sign.

Despite the wave of Catholic opinion which is mounting against the law, those who are close to Zamora promise that he will sign it tomorow or the next day. He has already approved other laws sent to him since the religious bill was passed and by thus waiting he has, first, shown his disgust at the measure; second, weakened its moral force before it has gone into effect, and given new heart to the opposition, which has sworn to block it if they ever come to power, and third, sown the seeds of serious conflict between the presidency and Premier Manuel Azana and the latter's parliamentary majority, which is dominated by Socialists.

Since the recent filibuster by the opposition against the bill collapsed, they have concentrated on Zamora, who threw up the presidency of the provisional government in the fall of 1931 as a protest against the anti-religious article in the constitution. When he accepted the presidency of the republic later, it was thought he had knuckled under, but now it appears he was only biding his time.

The efforts of the opposition have been directed toward getting him to hold up his signature until after passage of a law establishing a tribunal of constitutional guarantees, or supreme court, so the religious bill then would be subject to a claim for revision as unconstitutional.

Seek to Block Appeal.

The supreme court bill, which is now under discussion, will not be voted on until next week and Premier Azana's followers are prepared to see to it that its jurisdiction does not extend to any laws supplementing the constitution voted by this constituent assembly.

They argue that the assembly which voted the constitution knows better than any other body what is meant by it.

WITNESS TAMPERING CHARGED IN MURDER CASE; QUIZ STARTED

The charge that state witnesses had been intimidated or caused to change their testimony by other means was made yesterday in the Felony court of Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, where a charge of murder against Louis Romano, 38 years old, was nol-prossed. The witnesses, John Senlick, 924 Fulton street, and Edward Adams, 1850 Humboldt boulevard, failed to identify Romano as the man who shot and killed Albert Lucenti, 19 years old, 5433 West Harrison street, during a quarrel over an automobile accident on April 22.

The victim's sister, Miss Marie Lucenti, 23 years old, became hysterical and made the charge when Judge Hartigan attempted to explain that no action could be taken without evidence. Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash announced that he would start an immediate investigation.

Romano was arrested in the Morrison hotel in April as a member of the "Gangland Secret Six," organized by Sam Hunt to aid in the investigation of the kidnaping of Jerome Factor, son of John [Jake the Barber] Factor.

Police discovered that Romano was wanted as the alleged slayer of Lucenti. The prisoner was held after the return of the Factor youth to his home. Senlick and Adams saw the accident and shooting at Van Buren and Morgan streets. They said on the witness stand they were unable to say positively that Romano was the gunman.

"I want something cool I can wear commuting and in town all summer"

It looks as though everybody intends to spend the summer in Chicago, the way we have been rushed for "something cool for town, please" in the last few weeks. So, right here on the scene, we planned our June Marfields for this 1933 Century of Progress summer. And with a watchful eye for stunning fabrics, exclusive fashions and exceptional value . . . which go into the making of every Marfield . . . the results are quite as dramatic as the new Chicago they'll see this summer.

Hammered chiffon to a breath of sheerness. White pique to refrigerate it more. Epaulet sleeveless jacket. Brown, navy, black. 14-20. $19.75. Misses'

Or go white in this washable Marfield. Polka dot scarf in yellow, brown, aqua, navy. White swagger can be worn with other dresses, too! 12-20. $19.75. Sports.

Lightweight tweed when the weather changes . . . and you know Chicago for temperament! Brown, navy tweeds with taffeta lapels, white with plaid linen lapels. 32-44. $17.50. Women's Coats.

Nothing's so airy as polka dot chiffon. Two crisp flowers in front. All exquisitely made. Currant, navy, black, brown. 33 to 44. $17.50. Moderately Priced.

Ribbed sheer with white at your throat, so refreshing from 9 to 5. Waistline jacket is easily removable. Black, brown, pastels. 14-20. $29.75. Better Misses'.

Practically unwiltable, polkadot chiffon with pique flowers and swagger. Dark enough for town. Roll-neck with string tie. Navy, brown, black. 11-17. $17.50. Petite Miss.

SIXTH FLOOR

Big brimmed crepe hat—a joy for summer. Stitched all over the crown. White, black, brown, sand. All sizes, $5. Moderately Priced Room.

CANNON BOOM AS FIRST TOW STARTS UP RIVER

New Orleans Cargo Is on Way to Chicago.

New Orleans, La., May 31.—(AP)—The steamer Vicksburg kicked free of its wharf today and headed for Chicago with the first tow ever pushed over the water trail that La Salle foresaw.

It was the dedication of the gulf-to-lakes waterway—a new era in river traffic. A boom of a cannon, a growl from the Vicksburg's whistle and the steamer was off up the Mississippi.

River High; Current Strong.

The Vicksburg—a low compact thing that literally vibrates with power—must buck a high waterchannel all the way up, past the cotton plantations of the levee country, the bluffs where DeSoto stood, the tobacco lands of Kentucky and the corn fields of Illinois. It will stay on the Mississippi until it reaches the Illinois river, there it will pick its way through locks to Chicago.

The Vicksburg's pilot expects to land his tow in Chicago on June 22.

The barges, strung out in front of the steamer, are loaded with cargoes from the valley and from South and Central America. There will be ceremonies along the way to celebrate the Vicksburg's arrival.

Illinois Supplies Link.

Through traffic between the lakes and gulf—long the dream of steamboating men—was made possible by building locks and dams and a canal on the Illinois waterway.

A bottle with water from the lakes and gulf was broken on the Vicksburg in the send-off celebration here. Bands played and the crowds whooped.

BURGLAR SPURNS LAWYER; FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ong Ah Hing, murder, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary; Sterling Logan, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Gilbert Gabinski, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Harry A. Lewis.

Gilbert Gablinski, 23 years old, arraigned yesterday on a charge of burglary in the Criminal court of Judge Harry A. Lewis, refused the services of an attorney with the statement that "all lawyers are no good."

"I have no money and I don't want a lawyer," Gablinski told the court. "I've done two stretches because of bum lawyers and I won't have one. Call the jury and I'll defend myself."

Gablinski, who was indicted under the habitual criminal act, was charged with the burglary of the furniture store of Morris Holland at 2707 West North avenue on New Year's day. The state charged that a watchman interrupted the robbery and shot Gablinski twice when he leaped through a window and ran.

Gablinski questioned jurors, questioned and cross-questioned witnesses, and made a closing argument to the jury. He produced the clothing he had worn on the day of the burglary and held that the fact that they were not cut showed that he could not have fled through a window in them. He charged that the watchman had "framed him."

The jury, after deliberating a short time, brought back a verdict of guilty on a charge of burglary that carries a sentence of one year to life. A finding of guilty under the habitual criminal act would have carried a flat life sentence.

Volpe Surrenders; Posts New Deportation Bond

Anthony [Mops] Volpe, Capone gangster, whose deportation order recently was upheld by the United States Supreme court, yesterday surrendered in the court of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Volpe was required to post a new bond of $10,000 pending the shipment of the next trainload of aliens to Ellis Island for deportation, about three weeks hence.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE NEW RAILROAD BILL.

The senate has approved the emergency transportation act, placing the railroads under the supervision of a coördinator. The bill now goes to the house. In its present form the bill sets up a new standard of rate-making to guide the interstate commerce commission. Instead of providing, as the present law does, that rates shall be designed to yield a fair return on the value of the properties, the new law would provide that the commission shall consider the effect of proposed rates on traffic, the need for adequate service at the lowest cost consistent with furnishing such service, and the need of the railroads for adequate revenues.

While this bill may mark some advance it is probable that little good will come of it. When all has been said, the fact remains that when the government started regulating railroads many of them were prosperous. Today, after forty years of government guidance, it is doubtful if half a dozen railroads can be regarded as profitable. The security owners, including, of course, banks and insurance companies, have taken losses, and so have railroad employés and railway users. Without profits it is not possible to pay wages or offer the best service.

If government regulation has not been wholly responsible for what has happened, it is largely responsible. The one thing which congress has not done and which it ought to do if it is genuinely concerned to improve the transportation business of the country is to restrict regulation and the regulators. Let the railroads run their own business with something like freedom for a while and we shall then be able to judge whether regulation is either necessary or desirable.

The requirement that the commission shall consider in rate-fixing such matters as the effect of higher rates in destroying business is good as far as it goes, but it doesn't mean much. Such effects are matters of judgment upon which railroad managers may be of one mind and the commission of another. In the main, it is clear that the judgment of the railroad management, if free to operate, is more reliable because no railroad can afford to fix rates at a point which will destroy its business. If it finds its rates are too high it will lower them. But the commission has no such stake in the correctness of its judgment. It is dealing with other people's property and other people's money. If it makes a mistake its pride of opinion is not corrected by its pocketbook.

If congress really believes that the effect of rates on business volume is a consideration which should guide the rate-makers, congress ought to abolish the commission. The commission can never apply this principle as well as the railroads themselves can.

GANG CRIME.

While Chicago is the victim of a tendency in the press at home and abroad to play up any gangster outbreak in this city, an attentive following of news reports will correct the distortion even without the aid of the statistics which dispose of the Chicago legend. The recent sensational gangster crime in Massachusetts, a community that enjoys the repute of efficient administration of justice, is a reminder that the gangster menace is not a monopoly of any community. It is not a monopoly because the conditions which breed and maintain it are not a monopoly of any city or section. Chief of these conditions is the alliance of crime and corrupt politics, which thrives in Massachusetts as naturally as in Kansas City. Chicago's criminal problem is not peculiar but representative. If Chicago deserves special note in the record it is because of the frankness with which it exposes and faces the conditions it shares with other communities and the persistent effort it is making to understand and break them.

ONLY ONE IRON MAN.

Mussolini has accepted the resignation of Sig. Arpinati, undersecretary of state for the interior. He has also fired Baron Alesandro Sardi, organizer of the Italian exhibition at the Chicago Fair. Sardi is charged with negligence in failing to prevent some frauds, but Arpinati is out because he developed too much independence of opinion. He came in conflict with the first principle of dictatorship, which is that one iron man is enough. Mussolini is the iron will of Italy and all that is required in his associates is "yes."

This dictator reveals no peculiarity in this policy and does not become a strange figure in history by insisting that he is the state and that others need not bother to assume decisive and spendid leadership.

Stalin has proceeded upon the same doctrine and has fired from the soviet dictatorship all the Reds whose ideas or energy might modify his word or qualify his action. Trotzky was the most distinguished victim of the rule of dictatorship, but it is generally understood that if Lenin had not opportunely died, Stalin would have been powerful enough to get him, which proves that dialecticians may be temperamentally unfitted for the roughest work of the dictator.

The strength of the dictatorship is in reality its very weakness. The individual may be preserved, but the system dooms itself. It requires such complete subordination that no one competent to carry on as a successor can possibly be developed in the government so imposed upon a people. The strongest men will be driven out of the cabinet, or council, or soviet, or whatever it's called, and only the most docile and the weakest will remain. The stronger subordinates may be killed, exiled or suppressed, but nothing that remains will offer any assurance of a continuity in government. Stronger men who are only suppressed may arise after the decline or death of a dictator and try to seize power, but the consequence nearly always is conflict and chaos.

Dictatorships can provide governors, but they cannot provide governments. After Cromwell comes Tumble-down Dick, then the major generals, and then the restoration of the form of government which the dictator had overthrown. That's the historical rule and the reasons for it recur whenever any man unprovided with a workable rule of succession says he is the state.

JUDGE SHURTLEFF.

The judicial conduct of Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of the 17th Circuit is officially before the state Supreme court and it is also up for the political decision of the voters of Lake, McHenry, Boone, and Winnebago counties. Judge Shurtleff, a Republican, is a candidate for reëlection Monday. The Supreme court has pending before it the state's demand that his order releasing Fur Sammons, gangster, be set aside as an intolerable reversal of the Supreme court's own decision in the same case. This is only a part of the complaint against Judge Shurtleff, but it is illustrative of the conduct for which he has been criticized by the state law authorities, by the bar, and by citizens.

Judge Shurtleff is a man of varied and at times distinguished experience in the government of the state. He defends his record and says that he is being attacked by the newspapers outside his district for discreditable reasons. Judge Shurtleff is an old Lorimer man and this is an old Lorimer political dodge. It doesn't work as well now as it did years ago because people sooner or later are bound to find that it is not an answer relevant to the facts. Mr. Lorimer's tactics kept him long in politics and finally as the result of an election in the Illinois legislature, in which Shurtleff was speaker of the house of representatives, he was sent to the United States senate. It is still remembered why he did not stay there.

It is in the public interest that Judge Shurtleff should be defeated. His eccentricities in assuming jurisdiction to release criminals from penalties of the law have been very strange. The effects of his actions and influence have gone outside his district. His release of Fur Sammons after the Supreme court had denied a similar petition for a writ of habeas corpus for this notorious gangster was unexplainable procedure. Another case gained notoriety for the judge outside his district when he interceded in the Cook county Criminal court to obtain the release of two young hoodlums on parole.

Illinois criminals are difficult enough problems for the law when the law officers are zealous in the public interest. It is too much that eccentricity of judicial conduct should work to the criminals' advantage. Mr. Shurtleff has displayed many strong characteristics in his political career, but nothing in his judicial record warrants voters of his district in retaining him on the bench. For the good of the administration of law he should be defeated.

ENGLISH DIPLOMACY—AND OURS.

Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, has announced that Britain will go no further than she has already gone in guaranteeing the peace of Europe. He made his declaration of policy publicly in the house of commons in a speech in which he noted with satisfaction the fact that the United States is going beyond its previous commitments.

The United States is 3,000 miles from the continent and England is only the distance of the channel away. England's proximity has forced her to take an active part in European concerns, but it is significant that her responsible leaders know when they have had enough. Her commitments are confined to western Europe and they are specific. Secretary Hull's policy, if adopted by this country, makes our duties and responsibilities vague both as to place and action. Unlike the British, we may be committed to action if any attempt is made to correct the injustices and stupidities of the peace treaties in the territories east of Germany.

British diplomats know that their business is to keep England out of trouble and to make provision for England's share in the gains if trouble becomes unavoidable. Our policy can only get us into quarrels which do not directly concern us. Our participation can give us nothing but an empty pocketbook and a headache.

Editorial of the Day

ZONING A COUNTY.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

Oneida county has adopted a zoning ordinance regulating the use of its lands.

That is constructive legislation; and if other northern counties will follow Oneida's example they will save themselves a lot of future grief.

Unregulated settlement and land use have cost upper Wisconsin much money. Men have gone into the woods or the cutovers, selected what lands they pleased, and used them for any purposes they pleased.

That would have been all right and in line with America's historic individualism if the fate of such men had been their own affair alone.

But it never was. Always their problems became public problems. Always there came demands, sooner or later, for a road to give ingress and egress to an isolated home; or for a school for isolated children; or for other services from government.

Being scattered all over the map, it soon was clear that these independent settlers were costing the public a lot of money. To build a road into a community is one thing; to build a separate road into each of many scattered clearings is quite another. To build schools for a compact community is no great problem; to build schools for scattered homesteads may mean to build a separate school for a single family, in instances.

So it has been going in many parts of northern Wisconsin. The unregulated use of land has meant scattering public functions over wide territories; and, in instances, giving individuals or families services costing ten times the amount of taxes the family would pay in a lifetime.

Wise land use is important from the public standpoint. Oneida county realizes that. It now is saying to its citizens:

"Here are good agricultural areas and if you want to engage in farming you must do so in these areas. Here are recreational areas where you can build summer cottages or resorts. Here are forest areas and if you choose to buy these you must grow or harvest trees."

By that process there will yet be sound development in Oneida county and a gradual decline in the public load that comes of too little planning in the use of land.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

"ROBOT AT FAIR Lectures Like Gentleman While His Insides Are Exposed to View."—La Trib. Oh, very well, we are probably old fashioned, but that is certainly not our idea of a gentleman.

WHY, THIS MECHANICAL GENTLEMAN at the World's Fair swallows food and then he's all lit up inside and the audience watches the food slide down the æsophagus into his stomach. We would just like to ask him if he thinks that's nice. Why, we know a man who was dropped from the guest list of some of our very best people because at dinner he was always bragging about his winter itch and how to get rid of ingrowing toenails. And now they call this robot at the Fair a gentleman. Times have certainly changed.

THE ADMINISTRATION seems to have forgotten all about the postoffice jobs even if the sad eyed and very hungry Democrats haven't. What's the use of saving the country, anyhow, if the Republicans are going to keep all the postmaster jobs? Is there no justice!

SONNET LV.

O little dream, I thought when day had come the eyes that smiled on me would fade from sight, the throat that cried my name would be quite dumb,
the lips that kissed be banished by the light.
This is not what I had bargained for at all,
this awful power of an imagined thing,
this dark reiteration of a call—
(the seed amazed at its own blossoming!).

That grotesque weaver sits beyond the brain, pawing bright yarns of thought with bony hands, knotting together, breaking, knotting again inharmonics into his crazy strands?

Go back, foolish dream, to the weaver. Go back to the loom.
Be raveled and fashioned anew in that dim little room.

"FINANCIER TO MARRY Blonde Waitress."—Headline. We fail to see what the "blonde" has to do with it. But it's a pretty wise thing for a financier nowadays, no matter whether they're blonde or brunette, they're not so liable to walk out without giving notice when stocks go down and bonds don't pay their regular quarterly dividends. And a blonde female cook ought to make a pretty nifty marriage these days.

WE SHALL ASK THE GOVERNOR TO CALL OUT THE MILITIA

Suh: Wal, Yank, hit looks like some folks jes' kaint keep theah noses outen other folks business. Y'all jes' had to go messin' 'round about the Battle of Gettysburg picture at yo' World's Fair ontell you got yo'se'f tangled up in the Pettigrew-Westmoreland feud. Ef y'all had been borned south of the Ohio river you'd have knowed enough to keep yo' mouth shet an' steer cleah of both Cunnel Shack Pettigrew and Cal Westmoreland, 'cause gittin' in between them two buzzards is jes' like mixin' yo'se'f up in a Chinese tong war. No matter which side wins y'all are bound to git a whuppin'. Some of the Hatfields from Breathitt county hired out to do a little work for the Pettigrews a few years back, but they come home in two weeks, claimin' things was too excitin' foh theah digestion. Ain't nary one of 'em been the same sence. Then some of the McCoys took up with the Westmorelands, but they was back in ten days. Two of 'em was in boxes and the others said Breathitt county was right quiet and restful alongside of wheah they had bin. Ef y'all think the Battle of Gettysburg is over, jes' wait ontell Shack and Cal meet at yo' World's Fair. But, Yank, when they do meet y'all better be back of a tree on yo' hands an' knees with yo' haid down, 'cause they gwine to be a sight bigger ruckus around that big pictur then they was when the battle itself was fit. Y'all may think you been in some real wahs an' seed right smaht of fightin', but ef you ain't never seen a couple of Pettigrews rehashin' the Battle of Gettysburg with three-four Westmorelands, you jes' ain't bin nowheah an' you ain't seen nothin'.

JESSE HIGHSMITH ABERNETHY.

SOMEHOW OUR POETS in their odes celebrating the World's Fair do not seem to have risen to very lofty heights. We've read all the odes, but we still like very much better that simple

Oh, mommer, mommer, have you heard the news?
Popper's been killed on the C., B. and Q.'s.

WHILE OUR NEW AMBASSADOR to St. James's told the Pilgrim society in London the other night that the "consultative pact marks America's abandonment of certain policies laid down by the nation's founders," we note with great relief he wore conventional long trousers when he made his formal call on King George and not knee panties. Mr. Washington, Mr. Jefferson, and the other founders of these more or less United States may have turned over a few times while Mr. Bingham was speaking, but as long as he refrains from wearing knee panties we can firmly believe that the corner stone of our government still remains in place.

AND NOW the European newspapers are insisting with photographic evidence that Herr Hitler is a Jew. Which the Jews in Germany will think is the worst insult that has been offered them yet.

BLOOD VESSEL TWIGS.

OCCASIONALLY a child is found to have attacks of nosebleed almost daily and certainly on very slight provocation. In many of these cases the children are boys and girls in the early teens. In such cases the nosebleed is due to rapid growth. The different tissues are not keeping pace with each other. The heart is growing at one speed and blood vessels at one not quite the same. In consequence, there are weak spots in certain small, superficial vessels and breakage occurs. Nosebleed of that origin generally calls for no preventive treatment. Growth has a natural tendency to march to the same music and the tissues that happen to get out of harmony manage to catch step.

In younger children the nosebleeding tendency has a different cause. If a physician looks in the nose of a child having nosebleed he can often find the bleeding spot. This is likely to be about where the cartilage joins the bone. Blood can be seen coming from this point. If the nose be inspected after the hemorrhage has stopped the previously bleeding spot will be seen to be the location of a small blood vessel, or a small collection of them.

The basic condition is a small overgrowth of blood vessels which, if considerable enough to warrant the name, is called a telangiectoma. In many instances, using some form of caustic on this bleeding spot destroys the small blood vessel tumor and ends the trouble. Since the tonsils and adenoids are contributing to the cause of the nosebleed in some cases, operation on or treatment of these structures aids in the cure.

While the nose is a favorite location for these small blood vessel near-tumors, it is far from being the only one. Another place is the birthmark on the skin. Most of the birthmarks belong in this group. They are found in the walls of the stomach and other parts of the digestive tract, and when so located they are an occasional cause of internal hemorrhages. They occur in the substance in the kidney, of the liver, and other organs of that type. They occur in the lungs and may cause hemorrhage there, or they may be located in the brain and cord.

This type of blood vessel tumor is apt to be congenital. It is noticed in childhood. There is a disposition for such blood vessel tumors to run in families.

Osler described such an inherited tumor tendency which is liable to occur in several children of the same family, and which is sometimes called Osler's disease, and other times, telangiectasis universal circumscribed. Of the two, Osler's disease is less of a mouthful, is more easily spelled and is not so readily forgotten. The two members of the group that are most often encountered are bleeding points in the nose and birthmarks. The others are worth bearing in mind at times, because they furnish an explanation of some cases of internal bleeding, hemorrhage from the kidney, and some other troubles.

COD LIVER OIL.

Mrs. E. R. writes: 1. Should a baby get cod liver oil before or after meals and how soon before or after?

2. What could I give the baby to increase the appetite? He is slim, but otherwise healthy. He is 14 months old.

REPLY.

1. Give it whenever doing so is most acceptable to his lordship.

2. If he is in good health why bother about his appetite? As a rule, the best treatment for poor appetite is to let nature take its course. Let the baby eat as he pleases. Never urge him to eat.

MAY BE LIVER.

F. R. K. writes: I have noticed recently that the whites of my eyes are quite yellow. My mother claims my liver is affected. Is this so? Can I take something to clear up this yellow in my eyes?

REPLY.

Your mother may be right. Jaundice is the most frequent cause, and diseases of the liver and gall bladder are often the cause of jaundice. However, yellow eyes is a symptom that may be due to any one of many causes. If you have jaundice, Turkish baths and other hot baths help to get the bile out of the system.

FORECLOSURE.

Chicago, May 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How much does it cost to foreclose on a building with a first mortgage of $7,500 and a small second mortgage? 2. Could the second mortgage holder garnishee the owner's salary if he loses the building? 3. Does the first mortgage holder offer any money to the owner if he doesn't foreclose? About how much? M. J.

1. Depends on whether the case is contested and on other facts that are not before us.

2. Yes, by taking proper legal steps.

3. The first mortgage holder might be expected to offer for quitclaim deed about the amount that it would cost him to clear the title. There would be no substantial advantage in his making such an offer unless the "owner" and the second mortgage holder will join in giving up their interests.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNPAID TAXES.

Hammond, Ind., May 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We sold a piece of property in Cook county. The buyer has not paid the 1930 or 1931 general taxes or special assessments. The buyer filed an objection in court against the amount of 1930 taxes. 1. Will a tax deed be levied against this property while this objection is filed? 2. Could we leave the 1930 taxes stand without danger of the tax deed and pay up the 1931 taxes? 3. Is there a tax deed levied on unpaid special assessments or is it only against the general taxes? 4. Can others besides teachers use tax warrants to pay taxes? 5. Can one pay taxes on property in Cook county but outside of Chicago with Chicago tax warrants? J. R. T.

1. It seems probable that the objection has been overruled. We suggest that you inquire at the collector's office for the present status of the taxes.

2. If the objection has been overruled the property could be sold for the taxes. Two years are allowed for redemption from such a sale.

3. Proceedings on special assessments are similar to those on general taxes.

4. Yes.

5. Yes. Before purchasing warrants for such use you should take the matter up with some one who has had experience in such matters and who can explain to you the proportions of the total tax that can be covered by each type of warrants.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 1, 1893.

CHICAGO.—After next week the expenses of administering the World's Fair probably will be reduced to about $12,000 instead of $20,000 a day. A large reduction of the forces in the landscape, transportation and other departments has been ordered, and the services of many employés came to an end yesterday. At least 2,200 Columbian guards will be employed throughout the period of the Fair, and the construction department will require 800 men in one way and another, making the pay roll number about 3,000.

Figures furnished by the bureau of admissions show that 1,557,425 people passed through the gates during the month of May.

The movable sidewalk has finally been furnished with the power it waited for so long, and was tested yesterday from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. As the flexible rails and the inside platforms have not yet been put on, passengers were not taken.

As an indication that "The Golden West" has its full share of prominence among commonwealths and nations in Jackson park there will be jollification at the California State building today. A large oil painting done by Thomas Hill, of the driving of the last spike, May 10, 1869, that connected the Union and Central Pacific and completed the first transcontinental line of railroad will be looked at by hundreds of people with interest.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 1, 1917.

CHICAGO.—The federal government laid a heavy hand on anti-draft plotters in various parts of the country. It is known that twenty-six persons were actually arrested. Some were placed in jail in default of bonds and others were released on bonds. At Columbus, O., three were charged with treason, a capital offense. In many places suspects were "detained," but not held for trial.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson was defeated in his effort to obtain legislation imposing a war censorship of the press. By a vote of 184 to 144 the house of representatives returned the espionage bill to the conference committee of the two houses with instructions to eliminate the press censorship section. It will be stricken out, the senate already having rejected the provision.

WAR SUMMARY.—French in a counter attack drove Germans from foothoids near Mont Haut, in the Champagne, reëstablishing their line. Rome reports indicate a pause in the Italian offensive, but the official report tells of the capture from the Austrians of four Albanian villages on May 28. Petrograd reports the repulse of Turkish attacks in the Caucasus.

WASHINGTON.—Hoarding, storage or destruction of food, fuel or other necessaries of life to limit supply or affect prices would be a felony under an amendment to the government's first food bill adopted in the senate yesterday without a record vote. Violation of the section would be punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than six months nor more than three years.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago branch of the Woman's Peace party is accused of having taken liberties with the Chicago Woman's club, to the great indignation of some of the members, among whom is Mrs. Edward T. Johnson, president of the club. A special meeting of the board of managers will be held today to discuss the action of the housing committee in permitting the Woman's Peace party to announce peace meetings in the women's club room without the sanction of the club. "I want it to be distinctly understood that the Chicago Woman's club is not a pacifist club," said Mrs. Johnson. "The club has never passed a single pacifist measure."

A GREAT VIRGINIAN.

Chicago, May 28.—In the annals of Virginia a new name will be written high beside the names of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe—the unassailable name of Carter Glass. With the nation passing through a violent economic revolution, with the yappings of untrained theorists rising shrilly on every side, it is heartening to know that one mind remains sane, one heart remains fearless, one pair of eyes sees clearly into the future. Too honest to condone the deceits of political charlatans, too big to tolerate their petty pandering for votes—he stands alone as the greatest living American! Our countrymen of the future will thank their God for Carter Glass! As for us, our comfort comes with the modern phrasing of an old thought: "All is well and Carter Glass in Washington still lives."

Chicago, May 29.—Benjamin Franklin said at the close of the constitutional convention in 1787:

"I agree to this constitution with all its faults, if they are such, because I believe a general government necessary for us, and there is no form of government but what may be a blessing to the people if well administered; and I believe further that this is likely to be well administered for a course of years, and can only end in despotism, as other forms have done before it, when the people shall have become so corrupted as to need despotic government, being incapable of any other." COLLEGE TRAINED COOLIES.

Chicago, May 28.—Fred R. Weiss is quite right in voicing his opinion and lodging a protest against nonsensical requirements set by the management of A Century of Progress for applicants for employment. In so doing he voices the opinion of many.

In the last ten or twelve years it seems to have become a habit with employers to demand education instead of intelligence. We are born with one and acquire the other. An intelligent grammar school graduate with several years of business experience is a far greater asset to an employer than a dumb college graduate with or without experience.

Our uneducated and successful business men of the past and the present depression are firm denials that a college education is essential to success.

However, A Century of Progress has not failed altogether in putting some of these college students where they belong—pulling rickshaws and pushing wheel chairs. E. M. S.

THE LEGION CONVENTION.

Chicago, May 23.—"The committee [of aldermen] gave the American Legion the exclusive privilege of selling beer, soft drinks and lunch at sidewalk stands and on the streets in Chicago from Sept. 28 to Oct. 5. Receipts will be used to help defray expenses of the national convention of the Legion."—From THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, May 19.

To most readers of THE TRIBUNE this item meant but little. To those familiar with what is going on in connection with money raising activities for the coming Legion powwow it meant the gold seekers had uncovered another rich vein, perhaps the mother lode itself. It is not generally known the Illinois legislature was touched for and appropriated $50,000 to help defray convention expenses, and for the same purpose visiting, registering Legionnaires will each be set back $2 "registration fee."

Now the Legion emblem, "Our badge of distinction and honor, standing for God and country and the highest rights of men," is to hang suspended from the rafters of a hot dog stand and be splashed with mustard, chile sauce, foam and effervescence of three point two in order to pay convention expenses, and what can be more elastic, excepting the expense account of a politician returning from a junket trip? The average veteran is a happy-go-lucky, carefree kind of a cuss, not saying a word when his leaders get in on a little gravy now and then, but gosh! there's reason to everything, and I'm afraid there'll be ructions when he learns the front office boys have grabbed off the streets and sidewalks.

Personally, though, I have a sneaking regard for them. If they can chisel anything, even a sandwich concession, out of a committee of Chicago aldermen, in my judgment they are not only good Legionnaires but good enough to travel and represent as exhibit A some one's nerve medicine. THOMAS K. DAVEY, Chicago, May 28.—May a word of grateful tribute be paid to Prof. Philip Fox for his masterly address as the star Arcturus lit A Century of Progress Exposition? To the great hour when Dr. Frost's inspiration of thus lighting the Fair became a reality, Prof. Fox brought an exceptionally fine address, powerfully delivered. JANE PUBLIC.

A NEW SALES TAX.

Chicago, May 26.—Gov. Horner has announced that the administration is forming a new sales tax to meet constitutional requirements. He overlooks the fact that he will drive the people of Chicago to Indiana to purchase groceries and cars if this sales tax is passed. If the people of Illinois do not want the legislature to place into effect such a tax, now is the time to fight it. After its passage may be too late this time.

MARY E. KNIGHT.

RETALIATION.

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 29.—I see by the papers that the city of Chicago is seceding from the Union and is placing an embargo on Wisconsin milk in order to get revenge for that state's stand on the lake level controversy. Wisconsin could hit back by placing an embargo on the exportation of queens. That would leave Chicago high and dry without a queen for A Century of Progress.

RECEIVER FAILS TO PAY TAX; OPEN CRIMINAL ACTION

Ex-Ald. I. J. Schreiber Is Named by Jarecki.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate taxes collected yesterday totaled $713,521. The collections for the various years and the total of uncollected real estate taxes are shown in the following table:

	1928	1929
May 31.....	$ 27,077	$ 149,804
Uncollected.	19,684,145	32,055,612
	1930	1931
May 31.....	$ 320,253	$ 216,387
Uncollected .	84,197,708	115,270,239

Personal property collection for 1931, which are not included in the table, totaled $15,823.

Irving J. Schreiber, former alderman of the 5th ward, was made the target in a criminal information ordered filed yesterday by County Judge Jarecki as a result of an investigation into the management of the Flamingo hotel, 1809 East 55th street. Schreiber is receiver for the hotel and has made no payments on a delinquent tax bill totaling $80,624.

Large attorneys' fees have been taken out of the income from the building while not a penny was paid on delinquent taxes, the judge was told. Ex-Ald. Schreiber, appointed as receiver for the hotel by Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel, has ignored a Superior court order issued months ago ordering taxes to be paid, the court learned.

Will Enforce Court Orders.

"We'll see if Superior and Circuit court orders mean anything to the receivers in those courts," commented the judge, ordering the information to be filed. "And if they can't enforce them up there, we'll see what we can do about enforcing them in the County court."

Judge Jarecki also ordered the county treasurer appointed as receiver for the Auditorium hotel which owes back taxes totaling $153,192. Attorney Matthias Concannon protested.

"A receiver couldn't do any good for the Auditorium hotel," the lawyer said.

"You'd be surprised at the success of some of our receivers in finding money where there had apparently been none before," the judge replied.

"You'll need a bank roll to operate the hotel," the lawyer warned.

"We've operated the city and county for three years without money," commented the judge. "We will see what we can do here."

R. F. C. Made Tax Defendant.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation was named defendant in another information ordered. The corporation owns part of the property at 300 West Madison street, which was assigned to it by the Central Trust company as collateral for a loan and has been refusing to pay taxes, the judge was told. An explanation of the nonpayment of taxes was ordered to be given by Friday.

Informations were also ordered against the Straus National bank as receiver for the Briar Apartment hotel, 532 Briar place, which owes $53,245 in back taxes, and against Paul Steinbrecher as receiver for the 431 Oakdale avenue building, which owes $50,334 in delinquent taxes. Steinbrecher made a $2,000 payment on the taxes after the order was issued, but the information and receivership order was allowed to stand.

Acts Against Cigar Stores.

The discovery was made by investigators for the state's attorney's office that the scores of United Cigar company stores in Chicago have paid no back taxes for years. The revelation came with an inquiry into the nonpayment of $46,516 on the company's cigar store at 189 North Clark street. The company owes hundreds of thousands of dollars in back taxes, the judge was informed.

He ordered the county treasurer to file a claim for the total taxes due on all stores in New York, where the company recently went into receivership.

File 31 More Tax Suits.

County Treasurer McDonough, through his aid, Assistant Corporation Counsal William L. Sullivan, yesterday filed 31 petitions in the County court asking his appointment as receiver to collect back taxes totaling $897,636 on income property.

Delinquent taxes totaling $521,024 are due upon two properties alone in the list. The Insurance Exchange Building corporation at 175 West Jackson boulevard owes back taxes totaling $218,164 and the Underwriters Building corporation, 156 West Van Buren street, owes $302,860.

Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday authorized Saul B. Optner, receiver for the Medinah Athletic club, to borrow $95,000 with which to pay part of the property taxes on the building for 1930.

STREET CAR HIT BY CITY TRAILER; EIGHT ARE HURT

Eight street car passengers were injured and several others were bruised yesterday when one of three trailers being drawn by a city truck swerved into a Chicago avenue surface car at Damen avenue. The eight were taken to St. Mary's hospital, none seriously hurt. They are:

MRS. THERESA KLODNECKE, 44 years old, 2544 North Linder avenue.

WALTER DONAHUE, 33, of 3925 Huron street.

MISS GLADYS NELSON, 20, of 4815 Oakdale avenue.

CATHERINE SWENSON, 9, of 4939 Hull street, Niles Center.

WALTER KOSTRZIK, 3000 40th street.

MRS. MARKARET ARUNDELL, 24, of 4341 North Damen avenue.

C. Q. SWENSON, 42, of 4805 Oakdale avenue.

EUGENIE BUZUSZIOSKI, 45, of 4838 George street.

Witnesses said the street car, west bound, had just started when the truck and trailers approached from the opposite direction. One of the trailers swung out of position and sideswiped the car, ripping open its side. The crash was heard for blocks.

The city truck and trailers were said to measure more than 40 feet, the maximum length allowed by statute. Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt was asked about this.

"I assume that the truck-trailer combination is longer than the 40 feet specified by statute for the maximum," he said. "However, the city owns this equipment and has no money to buy other equipment."

VATICAN CITY, May 31.—(AP)—Hundreds of holy year pilgrims helped Pope Pius celebrate his seventy-sixth birthday today. The elderly but sturdy pontiff received them in a number of audiences. He was determined to observe his anniversary by being busy throughout the day.

The pope said a low mass of thanksgiving early this morning in his private chapel. A number of distant relatives were present. After the mass the pope spoke briefly to his relatives and then began his day's work.

The yellow and white papal flag flew from the gates and buildings of Vatican City, and Swiss guards and papal gendarmes wore full dress uniforms. Many messages of congratulation arrived, some from royalty and statesmen, bishops, and distinguished laymen. Cardinal Pacelli, secretary of state, communicated them to the pope and was charged with answering them.

Chicago will come back first!

Airplane photo of Union Stock Yards, Chicago

because it is the meat packing center of America

Chicago's great packing industry is world famous. No other city can compare with Chicago in its activity in this basic business. Its tremendous stock yards and plants and its easy accessibility to farmers and stock raisers, not only in the rich cornlands of the nearby states, but throughout the country, make it the meat packing center of America.

The rise of prices during the past several weeks has added hundreds of millions of dollars to agricultural credit and spending power. Improvement in the affairs of the farmer and the cattle raiser contributes directly to the wealth and income of Chicago. More than any other city, Chicago is the beneficiary of better times on the farm. It will come back first.

Manufacturers and retailers who will prosper by the return of Chicago to higher levels of business will concentrate their advertising in the Chicago Tribune. It is Chicago's own institution, locally owned, edited and published. It is the one Chicago newspaper widely read, quoted and followed. It is the one newspaper whose influence will be strongest in leading Chicago back to better times. And with 74% more daily circulation than any other Chicago newspaper it is the advertising medium which can best help advertisers get sales.

COUNCIL VOTES AUTHORITY FOR SCHOOL BONDS

Mayor Kelly to Push Bill at Springfield.

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution authorizing Mayor Kelly and other city officials to present to the legislature bills authorizing the school board to issue its proposed no-referendum $40,000,000 bond issue to pay salaries for the present year.

Mayor Kelly will go to Springfield this evening to urge upon the legislators the need for the bill. With him will go Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the county Democratic organization; Thomas J. Bowler, of the sanitary district; James B. McCahey of the school board, and Emmett Whealan of the county board.

Calls Special School Meeting.

Mr. McCahey called a special meeting of the school board for this morning to act on the bills. With the bond issue bill, it was announced, there will be introduced a companion measure providing that educational fund tax levies shall be reduced each year by the amount necessary to pay the interest on the bonds. The interest will be provided for in the bond and interest levy.

There will be no reduction in the 1933 educational fund tax levy, however, commensurate with the funds from the sale of bonds used to meet the salaries for which the educational fund is levied. Instead the bond fund will be retained as a permanent addition to the school working cash fund.

This fund was set up in 1930, its purpose being to give the school board sufficient cash so that it would not have to sell tax anticipation warrants to finance its operations. At that time $25,000,000 was placed in the fund by sale of bonds, most of which are still to be retired.

Tax Delay Upsets Plan.

It was the theory at that time that the educational fund would borrow from the working cash fund to operate until taxes came in, and then repay the money, to be borrowed again the following year. Tax collections were so slow, however, that once the money was borrowed and spent, it has never been replaced. The present bond issue would put another $40,000,000 in the working cash fund, to be used according to the original theory.

The resolution passed yesterday by the council provides that there shall be no levy to retire principal of the proposed bonds until 1936. A maximum interest rate of 5 per cent is specified, although the various public bodies have had to pay 6 per cent for money borrowed on tax warrants. It is also provided that if at any time in the future the working cash fund contains more cash than school officials think they need to operate the schools, the surplus shall be used to retire part of the bond issue.

No Tax Increase for Bonds.

H. H. Brackett, auditor for the school board, produced figures yesterday to back the assertion that issuance of the bonds will mean no increase in the tax rates. He assumed in his figures that beginning in 1935 the board would otherwise exercise the authority which it now has to levy about $2,700,000 a year to build up the working cash fund.

If the bonds are sold it will be unnecessary to make this levy, Mr. Brackett pointed out. There will be a further saving of about $1,000,000 a year in interest on tax warrants if the bond fund can be used in place of funds obtained by such sales.

In comparison with these reductions in tax levies of $3,700,000 a year which he outlined, Mr. Brackett calculated that the amortization cost of the bond issue over a period of twenty years would average roughly $3,000,000 a year.

The finance committee of the county board yesterday indicated that it would oppose legislation for the $40,000,000 school bond issue unless provision were made for funds to pay the seven months' back salaries of county employes.

CITY COUNCIL RENEWS PLEA TO LEGISLATURE FOR HOME RULE LAW

Chicago's long fight for home rule over its public utilities was renewed yesterday when the city council adopted a resolution introduced by Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th] as chairman of the committee on judiciary and state legislation. The resolution recommends passage of a home rule bill by the legislature.

The bill, drafted by Corporation Counsel Sexton, provides that upon a referendum vote of its citizens, any city may assume the powers of regulation over public utilities now possessed by the Illinois commerce commission, and may set up a municipal utilities commission to exercise those powers. It likewise provides that two or more cities with contiguous territory may set up a joint commission for their territory.

The council referred to its World's Fair committee a resolution by Ald. John Toman [23d] urging the directors of the Fair to designate one day each week as "People's day," on which admission prices would be reduced to 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children. A resolution by Ald. Mathias Bauler [43d] asking that children whose parents are receiving relief for the idle be admitted to the Fair free, was also referred to the committee.

Approval was given to a resolution by the committee on harbors, wharves and bridges, of which Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] is chairman, permitting the old prison ship Success to dock at the Clark street bridge for a fee of $100 a month. It was first proposed that the ship be allowed to dock at the Michigan avenue bridge, but at the objections of Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] the point of docking was changed to Clark street.

GERMAN CABINET LAUNCHES PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

Authorizes Treasury Bill Issue of $240,000,000.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 31.—The German cabinet today authorized the issue of $240,000,000 in treasury bills in an attempt to increase employment. The money will be expended on public works, private buildings, the regulation of rivers, the reclamation of land and other projects.

Meanwhile, the trial of Guenther Gereke, former minister of reëmployment, was marked today by appearance of Col. Oscar von Hindenburg, son of the president, as a witness. Gereke, who was a member of the committee which last year promoted President Von Hindenburg's reëlection, is charged with misappropriating funds of the committee.

Prominent Witnesses.

Many other prominent men were brought in as witnesses. In addition to Col. von Hindenburg, Otto Meissner, reich state secretary, and Gottfried Treviranus and Walter von Keudell, former cabinet ministers, took the stand.

Coincident with these "Nazification" procedures, another movement is imperceptibly but steadily taking place. Germany's princes, relegated to the background in 1918, are placing themselves under Chancellor Hitler's wing and are slowly but surely regaining their foothold in German affairs of state.

The first prince to wield power again is Prince Philip of Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and nephew of former Kaiser Wilhelm. Philip has become governor of Hesse-Nassau. The former crown prince, Frederick Wilhelm, has not received a full time job yet, but he has joined the Hitlerite automobile and motorcycle corps. Since he is keenly interested in the development of automobile sports in Germany, he is expected to devote much time to his new occupation—carried out under the orders of Adolf Hitler.

"Auwi" Is Rewarded.

Another prince who stands out in Germany's automobile sports is Duke Carl Eduard of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, for a long time head of the Hitlerite automobile corps. The duke was given special honors recently by being placed on the board of Germany's foremost body of men of science, the "Kaiser Wilhelm Society for the Development of Sciences." Prince August Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, militant Hitlerite, was similarly rewarded for his activities for the "party."

The other sons of the ex-kaiser, Eitel Friedrich and Oscar, and the sons of the crown prince, including Prince Wilhelm Friedrich, belong to the Steelhelmet organization of veterans, which is now under Nazi orders. The sons of the late king of Saxony, with one exception, also belong to the Steelhelmet. The eldest, who is a Jesuit, lives in retirement.

When Prince "Auwi" and Duke Carl Eduard of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha were placed on the board of the "Kaiser Wilhelm Society for the Development of Sciences," other prominent Hitlerites were also appointed.

At the annual meeting of the association the board was reduced in size from 44 members to 32, making it easier for the members to drop those professors and men of science who either displeased the present régime or retired voluntarily because they were unwilling to work with it.

Police Guard at Home of Mayor Kelly Is Increased

The detail of three policemen at the home of Mayor Kelly, 4821 Ellis avenue, was increased yesterday. Capt. John Hogan of the Hyde Park station, who issued the order, said he wished to be sure enough men were on hand to handle any situation that might threaten the safety of the mayor and his family. He refused to discuss a report that the increase in the guard was a result of labor union troubles among city employés.

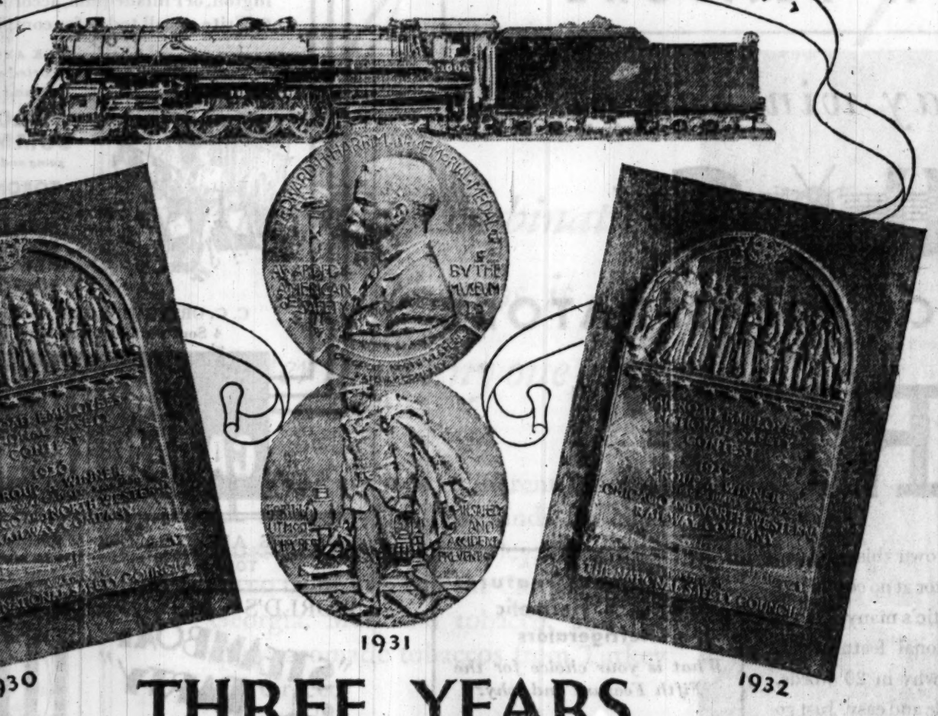
SAFETY FIRST AND FIRST IN SAFETY



1930 1931 1932

THREE YEARS OF SAFETY LEADERSHIP

BACK in 1910 the Chicago & North Western Railway originated the safety-first movement. It might properly have been called "A School for Training in the Prevention of Accidents."

Contrary to custom, no one has ever graduated from this school . . . and no one ever shall. Each year it sets new safety standards . . . and each year North Western employes are called upon to meet these high standards.

The results have been gratifying.

IN 1930 the Chicago & North Western was presented with a trophy by the National Safety Council for winning the Group "A" Award in the American Steam Railroad Accident Prevention Contest.

IN 1931 North Western received the highest award given to any railroad for the best record among employes for doing the most in promoting life conservation and accident prevention of all kinds—the HARRIMAN GOLD MEDAL AWARD.

AGAIN IN 1932 North Western received the coveted Safety Award, being designated as the "1932 Group 'A' Winner by the National Safety Council in the Railroad Accident Prevention Contest."

What does all this mean to you? The splendid cooperation of all North Western employes in accident prevention is directly reflected in the service rendered to all who patronize this railroad. Go North Western for comfort, convenience . . . AND SAFETY.

North Western is the only railroad to keep its employe casualty rate (killed and injured per million man hours) under 2.00 for two consecutive years.

CAPTOR OF CON MAN RECEIVES TRIBUNE AWARD

Pair Seized for Using Ads in Swindle.

Hugo Nyberg, 4313 Glenwood avenue, was paid a reward of $100 yesterday for his part in bringing about the arrest and conviction of two men who used TRIBUNE want ads in operating a confidence game in the purchase of second hand automobiles. The payment, made by W. R. Blend, manager of THE TRIBUNE classified advertising department, followed an investigation of almost two years in which THE TRIBUNE spent more than $2,500 and traced the confidence men to California, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Missouri, and Indiana.

Joseph Briggs, the first of the confidence men captured, was sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court on a charge of operating a confidence game. Briggs was admitted to probation when he gave information that put investigators on the trail of his partner, Francis McMahon, alias Frank Murray, 35 years old.

Accomplice Is Recaptured.

McMahon, who forfeited a $5,000 bond and fled after his first arrest, was traced down, recaptured, and is serving a sentence of 10 months in the House of Correction on a charge of larceny. Briggs and McMahon said to be members of a nation-wide ring of racketeers, first operated as the Broadway Motor Sales company, 6015 Broadway, in the summer of 1931.

They advertised that they would pay top prices for automobiles and gave clients notes payable in three months in exchange for their cars.

When the victims returned to obtain payment of the notes they found the company had vacated the showroom and that McMahon and Briggs had disappeared. Nyberg, one of the victims, complained to THE TRIBUNE and coöperated with investigators until the case was concluded.

Briggs was traced to Des Moines, Ia., and arrested. He was turned over to Lansing, Mich., officials for trial on a charge of confidence game that took precedence over the Chicago charge. The Michigan authorities failed to obtain a conviction and Briggs was brought to Chicago, tried and convicted in July, 1932.

Jailed After Fist Fight.

Nyberg, acting on information he had obtained in his continued investigation, went to the James Kearns Motor Sales company, 6130 Cottage Grove avenue, with Detective Sergeant Carl Lemke in November, 1931. McMahon appeared and tried to run away, but Nyberg gave chase and captured the confidence man. A fist fight ensued in which Nyberg knocked McMahon unconscious. Nyberg again was forced to subdue McMahon when the latter grew troublesome as they waited for Sergt. Lemke to call a patrol wagon.

Nyberg and THE TRIBUNE investigators again took up the pursuit when McMahon fled from the state while at liberty in bond. Nyberg followed fruitless clews to Danville, Ill., New York City, and other points. McMahon was found in November, 1932, in St. Louis, traced to Indianapolis, arrested, returned to Chicago, tried, convicted and sentenced. Evidence in the cases against both McMahon and Briggs was presented by members of THE TRIBUNE law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, in coöperation with the state.

VALLEY LAND OWNERS FIGHT RIVER CHANNEL

Bloomington, Ill., May 31.—[Special.]—Land owners along the Mississippi river and members of the upper Mississippi valley drainage association decided today to ask congress to abandon the nine foot channel project. They contend the project should be delayed at least until a law is enacted which will assure land owners that their rights will be protected in case dams are built along the Mississippi to create a nine foot channel.

As planned by the government, the project means that a series of deep water lakes will be created from St. Paul to the mouth of the Illinois river, so that navigation will be unimpeded during the months when the river is free of ice.

Officers of the drainage districts and land owners in the districts contend that these dams will hold a head of water in the river which will damage the lands of abutting districts through seepage. They also claim the building of dams and the creation of the lakes, similar to Lake Cooper, near Quincy, will make it necessary for drainage districts along the Mississippi to operate their pumps most of the year. This increased cost is a greater expense than the drainage districts can bear, it is contended.

ILLINOIS SENATE PUTS OFF ACTION ON SALES TAX

Horner-Kelly Conference Reason for Delay.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—[Special]—Action on the new 2 per cent sales tax bill, scheduled for today, was postponed by the state senate this evening with an explanation that it will not be called up until after a conference between Gov. Henry Horner, Mayor Edward J. Kelly and other Chicago and Cook county officials tomorrow afternoon.

"The companion bills providing for the appropriation of the receipts from the tax," said Senator Francis J. Loughren [Dem., Chicago], "have not been completed and the attitude of some of the senators last week was that they must know how the proceeds are to be expended before they will be ready to vote for or against the tax."

Many Subjects to Be Discussed.

The conference tomorrow is expected to deal with a number of subjects in addition to the question of providing funds for relief by means of the retail excise and other methods. Among them are the reconstruction of the taxing machinery of Cook county and legislation to authorize the issuance of $40,000,000 in non-referendum bonds to relieve the financial plight of the Chicago schools.

Despite the delay on the chief new revenue bill to aid the idle, it was made evident during the day that a measure considered to some as companion bill—the Monroe bill to levy a 1 per cent tax on personal service occupations—will die an early death.

"I do not think it is necessary now," said Gov. Horner.

Six Pay Cuts at 10%.

Taking them up on second reading in response to the demand for enactment before the judicial election next Monday, the senate fixed at 10 per cent the cuts in salary provided by three Burns' bills covering judges and court employés. The house approved even deeper cuts but Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee], author of the program, said he apparently would have to agree.

The amendments left the bills providing for the 10 per cent cuts in salaries of the lieutenant-governor and other constitutional offices, of Supreme court and Circuit and Superior court judges and of official court reporters.

Reapportionment in Illinois Meets New Setback in House

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—[Special.]—The prospects that this general assembly will reapportion the congressional districts of Illinois for the first time in thirty years were measurably dimmed today when the house, with blood in its eyes, fell upon a committee plan for redistricting.

Under no illusions that it had drawn a map of 27 districts which would suit every one the committee was dismayed, nevertheless, when the house refused to advance the plan to second reading and by a vote of 78 to 41 sent it back to committee for a hearing. The feeling expressed seemed to indicate that the majority wouldn't care much if the bill stayed there forever.

"It looks to me," said Representative Frank W. McClure [Dem., Abingdon], chairman of the committee, "as if this thing would drag on and on."

It cannot "drag" much longer if anything is to be done before July 1, the adjournment date.

Downstaters Object.

Objections to the proposed new district lines came mostly from downstaters. The plaint was that "too much Republican territory" or "too much territory" had been included in the legislators' districts, and they envisioned their own political fate in terms of how successful the congressmen might be. Others sought to protect their congressmen, as did William E. King and Charles J. Jenkins, Chicago Republicans and associates of Congressman Oscar De Priest, only Negro member of the national house.

"But this is the best bill possible under the circumstances," McClure implored. "Give the members a chance to vote upon it."

"Time is the thing," said Sol P. Roderick [Rep., Chicago]. "If you really want to reapportion the congressional districts, now is the time. And it's short, too. Advance the bill now and fight about it later."

When McClure moved to suspend the rules and obtain advancement he was voted down, 78 to 41. The next fight will be in the committee. Many members predict that unless it is radically revised the plan has no chance of passage this session.

Rainey "Crown Prince."

Because some of the delay in proposing the bill was attributed to a desire to create a favorable district for Congressman Henry T. Rainey, the speaker of congress was covertly referred to—on the floor today—as the "crown prince."

The house today passed a senate bill, by Representative Sol Handy [Dem., Marshall] appropriating $80,133 to the department of agriculture to reimburse county agricultural societies for premiums at local fairs. Requiring an emergency vote of 102, the measure obtained 103 after it had been attacked bitterly by James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee].

"How can we justify taxpayers' money to county fairs in times like these?" demand Burns.

Only four votes were tallied against the bill. They were cast by Burns, Schaefer, O'Neil [Dem., Alton], and Robert Woodward, Republican, and A. M. Kaindl, Democrat, both of Chicago.

CHICAGO PARKS CONSOLIDATION BILL DEFEATED

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—[Special]—The Republican backed Chicago park consolidation bill was killed by the house late today, making way for probable passage of the Democratic measure tomorrow.

Presented by Representatives Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago]; M. F. Browner [Rep., Mound City], and M. F. Hennebry [Dem., Wilmington] of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures, the Republican bill called for consolidation of the three large districts—Lincoln, South, and West parks—without a referendum vote. Smaller districts would be included by referendums. The new Chicago park district would be governed by three commissioners elected next April for four year terms.

Representative Joseph L. Rategen [Dem., Chicago] fought this bill today, urging it be defeated and his measure substituted.

CAPONE'S PLEA FOR FREEDOM DENIED BY COURT OF APPEALS

New Orleans, La., May 31.—(AP)—Al Capone's plea for freedom on habeas corpus from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving ten years for evading income taxes, was denied today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here, which upheld a decision of the Atlanta District court.

Since Capone's conviction in the Chicago District court in 1931 his attorneys have contended that the statute of limitations had expired.

"It is not shown by the record before us," the appellate opinion handed down today said, "that the judgment assailed is void, or that the court was without jurisdiction. On habeas corpus we have no right or authority to examine or consider the evidence on which that judgment was based."

NEW YORK AND JERSEY JOIN TO AID MILK PRICES

Albany, N. Y., May 31.—(AP)—New York and New Jersey have joined in an experiment designed to improve the financial condition of 115,000 eastern dairy farmers by controlling the price of milk.

While the New York milk control board tonight studied first reports of rising income on some Empire state dairy farms, the New Jersey milk control board, only a few days ago, was getting ready to enforce its first schedule of minimum milk prices, effective tomorrow.

Legislatures of both states acted drastically this spring to increase the size of the farmer's milk check. Fines, jail sentences and even loss of licenses to sell milk have been threatened for dealers who fail to pay the required minimum price to farmers.

Beginning tomorrow, New Jersey will require that farmers be paid at least 5½ cents a quart for grade "A" milk and at least 4 cents for other grades. For the last few weeks New York state has had similar requirements.

Dairy owners in recent months have been getting as low as 1½ cents a quart. The minimum retail price for grade "A" milk delivered to a consumer's doorstep in New Jersey as in New York City is 13 cents a quart. Grade "B" delivered costs 11 cents. In upstate New York the basic price is 10 cents.

MUSSOLINI SETS STATE CONTROL OVER ALL TRADE

Each Industry Must Join One of 13 'Corporations'

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, May 31.—Another step in the direction of "controlled economy," or state direction of economic production, was taken by Premier Benito Mussolini at the last meeting of the central corporative committee.

At this meeting Mussolini decided the time had come to set up the so-called "corporations," those much talked of, little understood organs which are supposed to form the link between the workingmen's syndicates and the employers' federations, but which hitherto have never actually come into existence. They are to be the final step in the realization of the corporative state and were provided for in the Fascist Labor charter of 1926.

The "corporations" now will be set up in each category of economic activity. There will, for instance, be a wine growers' corporation and a corporation for the textile industry; a corporation in the steel, silk, and building industries.

Links Industry and Party.

A corporation will be a connecting organ between the various factors of production, and it will have representatives of each group of interests; in other words, it will be a sort of governing or steering committee. It will have from ten to twelve members; the chairman will always be an undersecretary of one of the ministries; represented on it will be the Fascist party, the ministry of corporation and delegates of the Men's syndicates and the Employers' confederation.

From what now appears, the corporation will be dependent on the corresponding general "section" of the National Council of Corporations. It will have wide powers to guide and control national production; it will be advisory, handing down decisions in cases of disputes, and will also formulate rules and regulations for the industry or trade represented. It is intended also "to curb damaging individualistic activity."

Corporations, according to comment in the Fascist press, will be the instruments of greater discipline of production and will carry state or national socialism a phase farther in its development. These institutions will also be a final blow perhaps to the free play of competition.

"A new era has been opened up in our national political economy," says the Rome newspaper Messagero, and Bruno Biagi, undersecretary for corporations, declared that "We are entering, perhaps, on a decisive phase of our economic history."

Fall into 13 Groups.

The corporative organization was laid down in the labor charter; then all trades and industry were classified in thirteen confederations of employers and corresponding confederations of workers; three years later, as a sort of crowning arch for these thirteen groups, a central body known as the National Council of Corporations was formed, of which Mussolini is president and which in a way constitutes a sort of grand council for economics, along the lines of the other grand council for politics. The national council has a section corresponding to each of the thirteen confederations.

A theater corporation already has been formed, and it is said the next economic activities which will have a governing corporation will be the silk and steel industry and the building trades. It will then gradually be expanded and adapted to the others.

'BIG 4' OF EUROPE SIGN PACT TODAY; IT'S A MYSTERY

May Mean United Front Against United States.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 31.—Premier Mussolini assembled the grand Fascist council tonight for a consultation. Tomorrow he is scheduled to appear before the Italian senate to announce that his four power pact, intended to rid Europe of its war scares for the next ten years, has been finally accepted by Great Britain, France, and Germany.

Il duce summoned the German and French ambassadors to the Palazza Venezia today and informed them that the last British hesitancy about the wording of the pact has been removed. In consequence, according to every indication tonight, the pact, such as it stands now after two months of modification and amendment, will be initialed in Mussolini's office tomorrow by the ambassadors of France, Britain, and Germany, and by il duce.

Terms of Treaty Secret.

The formal signature will be made a great ceremony to take place later.

The pact is considered a diplomatic triumph for Mussolini, and his speech tomorrow is looked forward to as perhaps one of the most important of his career. Tonight before the grand council he made a detailed exposition of all the negotiations leading up to the initialing of the pact.

Just what the engagements are to which the pact commits the four signatory powers is not clear. When first proposed to Prime Minister MacDonald two months ago the project threatened to cause an explosion in central Europe.

Stirs Up Peril of War.

Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister, rushed to Paris and London to protest that the proposal was nothing but an Italian scheme to help Germany get the peace treaties revised and as such was a menace to European order.

Poland threatened war and abandonment of the league of nations, and liberal opinion throughout Europe was alarmed at the scheme, which looked like the imposition of a four power directorate of big countries over the little.

It now appears that most of these apprehensions have been settled. The little entente powers [Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Czechoslovakia] have been reassured that the pact is not an instrument for revising the territorial clauses of treaties and have withdrawn their objections.

See Front Against United States.

This may all be. At any rate, some fast work has been done in conditioning a situation which threatened to mar the opening of the world economic conference at London. As it stands now the initialing of the pact is regarded here as a prelude to the London parley and will give at least the appearance that Europe has reached a political understanding that will afford a basis for reaching an economic understanding.

Some American observers here see in the pact an instrument for coordinating the European policy on matters such as war debt cancellation, money stabilization, tariffs, and cooperation in the far east.

This appears particularly from article 4 of the pact, which speaks of concerted European action on questions of common interest, especially economic questions.

That the pact may have other repercussions in European politics appears from reports that as a counter movement Poland, Russia, and the little entente powers are planning an all-Slav bloc, with Poland as the center and dividing Europe into two camps.

The Russian ambassador to Rome left here suddenly yesterday to consult with Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, in Geneva. From there he will go to Moscow to report to his government on the projects being hatched in Mussolinitaland.

Poland to Fight Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, May 31.—The Mussolini four power peace pact, which has been emasculated in an effort to quiet the objections of France's allies, will not be recognized by Poland. The Polish foreign office is energetically opposing the agreement, which is scheduled to be signed in Rome tomorrow by Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany.

Poland contends that the pact means a reversion to Europe's political status in pre-war times, when the stronger nations succeeded in enforcing their wills upon the smaller countries. Poland considers itself a power in Europe and demands treatment as such.

Should the four power pact be signed Poland aims to become the leader of the smaller nations of Europe, who oppose revision of the Versailles treaty and who will use the forum of the league of nations to combat the big four's attempts to dominate Europe.

It takes many kinds of Tobacco for a Cigarette TO SATISFY

The right Combination of Tobaccos is better than any one kind

THERE are many different kinds of tobacco. The best kinds for cigarettes are Kentucky Burley, Bright tobacco from Virginia, the Carolinas, and Georgia, Maryland tobacco, and the spicy, aromatic tobaccos from Turkey and Greece.

All of these tobaccos are good. But we have found that the right combination is far better than any one kind.

Chesterfields are made milder and better-tasting by blending and cross-blending—welding together—the right amounts of Kentucky Burley, Bright tobacco, and Maryland tobacco, seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish.

It takes many kinds of tobaccos to make Chesterfields. They satisfy.

WIDOW AND SONS LEFT $2,381,407 BY J. W. EMBREE

Inventory Shows Bulk of Assets in Bonds.

The estate of John William Embree, president of the Rittenhouse & Embree Lumber company, who died last March 6, was valued at $2,381,407 in the inventory approved yesterday by August G. Urbanski, assistant to the probate judge. Mr. Embree was 72 years old and lived at 3314 Lake Shore drive.

The bulk of the estate is $2,075,500 in bonds, including $100,000 in federal bonds, $95,000 in federal notes, and $135,000 in joint stock land banks. The remainder are municipal, county, and state bonds throughout the country. The only large stock item listed is 150 shares of the lumber company, valued at $15,000.

Three to Share Estate.

The inventory also lists $40,907 in cash and a half interest in the lumber company property at 3500 South Racine avenue, which is given as $250,000. Under the terms of Mr. Embree's will the bulk of the estate is equally divided among the widow, Mrs. Carrie Embree, and two sons, John Embree Jr., 5483 Hyde Park boulevard, and Henry Embree, 6757 Oglesby avenue.

Ten wills filed with Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin yesterday and approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge, are:

HENRY B. JOHNSON, died March 13. Estate $2,000, to the Harris Trust and Savings bank, executors, in trust equally for three nieces, Fanny F. Brooks, Mamie F. Davis, and Lucille F. Watson.

MARGARET HUNSTOCK, died April 10. Estate $20,000, equally to daughter, Emma Rauch, and two sons, Arthur and Herman Hunstock, who is the executor.

WILLIAM B. ZUELSDORFF, died March 1. Estate $3,000, to widow, Margaret Zuelsdorff, the executrix.

HAMILTON JOHNSTONE, died Jan. 14. Estate $500, to widow, Maud, the executrix.

SARAH FRANK, died Dec. 3, 1932. Estate $26,000, $10,000 to daughter, Myna Coombs; residue equally to son-in-law, Sylvan Coombs, and grandson, Robert Coombs. Jacob Frank, the widower, is executor.

CHARLES C. CHASE, died April 28. Estate $4,500, to wife, Lena A. Chase, who has since died. Kresse C. Snow, daughter, is the executrix.

ERNEST F. DIUPMAN, died Nov. 18, 1932. Estate $8,000, to widow, Ida M. Diupman, the executrix.

ALFRED W. CURZON, died May 7. Estate $7,500, to brother, John Curzon, the executor.

CHICAGO SAVANTS FIND HERD OF 500 SEA ELEPHANTS

ABOARD EXPLORATION CRUISER VELERO III., Guadalupe Island, Mexico, May 31.—[By wireless to the Associated Press.]—A herd of some 500 of the rare large northern sea elephants greeted the eyes of the scientific party aboard this exploration cruiser when anchor was dropped today in the lee of the island sanctuary.

Capt. G. Allan Hancock, Los Angeles capitalist and explorer, made arrangements to land despite the heavy swell and make an inspection of the strange herd on the little volcanic islet, which is the last place in the world where a colony of the massive, long nosed mammals is to be found.

Two scientists from Chicago, Julius Friesner and Frank Wonder, were elated over the prospects of obtaining a set of five of the finest animals for a stuffed permanent exhibit at the hall of marine mammals of the Field Museum of Chicago. That is the objective of the trip. Friesner and Wonder will supervise the selection of the specimens and the care of the skins.

PHILIP T. DODGE ESTATE PLACED AT 3 MILLIONS

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—A total net is placed upon the estate of Philip Tell Dodge, who was president of the Mergenthaler Linotype company for thirty-seven years and president and chairman of the International Paper company for eleven years.

The estate contained securities valued at $3,362,410 as of Aug. 9, 1931, the date of Mr. Dodge's death. Funeral and administration expenses were $109,479 and debts were $17,200.

The principal beneficiaries are the widow, Mrs. Lillias Sutherland Dodge, and two children by a former wife, Norman Dodge of Garden City and Olive Dodge Musgrave of Atlanta. In addition to specific bequests they share the residue equally.

PARK BOARD TO FACE COURT FOR OUSTING WORKER

Judge Charles A. Williams of the Superior court yesterday ordered Harry Joseph, president, and the other members of the west park board to show cause on June 17 why they should not be held in contempt of court. The west park commissioners are alleged to have displaced Bernard F. Burgerson as concrete construction foreman and allowed noncivil service employés to perform his duties. Judge Williams issued a mandamus a year ago ordering the old board to reinstate Burgerson after he had been discharged. He was reinstated at that time, but was discharged again last March 22.

Austrian Police Raid Nazi Headquarters in All Cities

VIENNA, May 31.—(AP) — Police today raided Nazi headquarters in all Austrian cities in a search for evidence of treasonable activity. What the results of the search were was not immediately reported.

SIX SURVIVORS OF SHIPWRECK ON LAKE ARRIVE

Six members of the crew of the lake steamer, George M. Cox, which ran aground on a reef off the Rock of Ages and sank near Isle Royale in Lake Superior last Saturday, arrived yesterday in Chicago on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad from Houghton, Mich. They are Richard Warrep, 19 years old, 109 South Spring avenue, cadet officer; Theresa Boyd, 21 years old, 208 South Lincoln street, barmaid; Estelle Johnson, 23 years old, 7634 Essex avenue, a waitress; Herbert Davern, 51 years old, 5818 South Carpenter street, night cabin watchman; Emery Larson, seaman, and William Gilbert, 22 years old, 103 East 47th street, bellboy.

The crew members, still holding their life preservers as they got off the train in Chicago, paid tribute to the courage of Capt. George Johnson and Reba Little, chambermaid, who helped all the other women into lifeboats before leaving.

BEER DRIVER IS SHOT TO DEATH BY HOLDUP MAN

Earl Wilk, 34 years old, 5123 Melrose street, a beer truck driver, was shot and fatally wounded in an attempted robbery at Roosevelt road and Winchester avenue yesterday afternoon. The shooting occurred as Wilk and his helper, John Hayden, 4814 Potomac avenue, started south in Winchester avenue after making a delivery at 1932 Roosevelt road.

A man leaped to the running board of the slowly moving truck and pressed a revolver against Wilk with the order to "stick 'em up." Then, noticing Hayden in the back of the truck, the robber apparently became excited and fired one shot that struck Wilk in the forehead. The gunman leaped from the running board and ran south in Winchester avenue. Wilk was taken to the county hospital, where he died last night.

WIDOW OF CIVIL WAR VETERAN, 83, FATALLY BURNED

Mrs. Mary Stewart, 83 years old, was fatally burned in her home at 37 West Garfield boulevard last night when her dress became ignited from a gas flame while she was reaching for a teapot on the stove.

She was found unconscious on the floor by her grandson, Eugene Thomas, and his wife, Elizabeth. She died shortly afterward at the Evanagelical hospital.

Mrs. Stewart was the widow of Dr. S. M. Stewart, a drummer boy during the civil war, who died in 1929. The Stewarts had lived in Chicago since 1896, moving here from Hinsdale.

SUICIDE CLOSES LIFE OF WOMAN ARGONAUT OF '98

Mrs. Mabel Young Philbrick, 58 years old, who as a young woman prospected for gold in the Alaskan rush of 1898, was found dead yesterday in her gas filled apartment at 6340 Blackstone avenue.

The Woodlawn police said she had committed suicide. On a table they found a note instructing them to cremate her body. In the envelope were two new $20 bills and a new $10 bill.

There was evidence that Mrs. Philbrick had once been wealthy. Her wardrobe, old fashioned, was complete and included twenty-five pairs of shoes. There were packages of deeds to land in Florida and Canada, mortgages, promissory notes, and other papers. There were also 2,000 shares of Nevada Rawhide Gold Mining stock.

From Dr. John D. MacKellar, 6317 Dorchester avenue, whose brother, the late Dr. Orville MacKellar, was a friend of Mrs. Philbrick, the police learned of her gold rush experiences. Mrs. Philbrick came from Boston. She was the daughter of a prosperous hotel owner there.

SCIENCE SAYS:
"I'll clean your toilet for you"
SCIENCE helps women who hate to scrub toilets. A little Sani-Flush does all the work. And porcelain will glisten as never before. Odors go. Stains vanish.
Just sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the bowl. (Follow directions on the can.) Flush the toilet and that's the end. It's clean. Safe. Purified. Even the hidden trap no brush can reach becomes sanitary. And Sani-Flush can't harm plumbing.

Society Opens Century Club with Gay Party

More Than 600 Members Attend Dinner.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Century club, where society will lunch, tea, dine and rest during the months of A Century of Progress, was opened yesterday with a gala party attended by practically all the members with their wives and families. No guests were invited to this party, so that there would be room for all the members, but, even so, the colorful, smart clubrooms and verandas were filled to capacity last night for dinner. In fact, the members had to dine in relays, some at 7, others at 8, and the later comers at 9. There were more than 600 for dinner, more than 200 for luncheon and about 100 for tea.

Every one was full of enthusiasm over the club with its coral pink and como blue chairs and tables and its lovely view of the Fair grounds, especially from the verandas. The club is atop the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino on Northerly island, but has its own entrance.

Although the color scheme in the dining rooms is the same in the club as in the casino below, there are many individual and distinctive notes added by Ambrose C. Cramer, who was in charge of decorations, assisted by his versatile wife, the former Mary Meeker, and George Dickson, a member of the committee.

In one small room Peter Arno yesterday morning painted two priceless murals, as humorous as are all his efforts and with just a dash of spice. The bar, all in green and white, is a veritable family album with snapshots of some of the members enlarged and used as wall paper. Some of the older ones came from Joseph T. Ryerson's collection, a few were contributed by individuals, but most were from newspaper morgues, THE TRIBUNE having furnished more than half, so Mrs. Cramer told us.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Shown Riding Camel.

There, looking down at the gayety last night, were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers on a camel quite some few years ago and again on another wall as they looked last Easter morn when they were leaving the Fourth Presbyterian church; Mrs. Arthur Meeker and John Charles Thomas, elegantly attired for the opera; Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed in the 1870 costume she wore at the Architects' ball last fall; her husband dancing with another lovely lady whom we didn't recognize.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne appeared in a smock, working hard at something or other, maybe framing a picture; George Lytton with his beloved bass viol; Bob Adams, fast asleep; John Alden Carpenter at the piano; Princess Rostislav cooking wienies; the Graham Aldises in an opera box; and on another wall young Graham at a tender age as painted by Boutet De Monvel; Harold F. McCormick, almost hidden in a great winter overcoat; Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. as Peter Pan, which she played again last night at the theater on Enchanted island for the husbands of the Junior Leaguers; Mr. Winterbotham in his favorite fancy dress costume, that of a waiter; Howard F. Gillette, in the far-away coaching days and also magnificent in a naval officer's uniform; young Charles F. Glore as a rookie; Marshall Field III, at a recent affair at the Stadium; Mrs. Walter Paepcke in a fancy dress looking like a Swedish bride.

Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw was shown enjoying a beer and not far away her husband as he looked at the Architects' ball. There was Mrs. Howard Linn holding a poster of the Woman's World Fair and wearing mourning that was fashionable at that time, seven or eight years ago, and dozens of others just as interesting and amusing to the hundreds who saw them for the first time yesterday.

Officers of Club Receive Members.

Arthur Meeker, president of the club; Mr. Gillette and Willoughby Walling, members of the house committee with Mr. Dickson, were there most of yesterday, receiving the members. Some of the many who were there were the Charles W. Dempsters, the John Seniors, the Samuel T. Chases, the Raymond C. Dudleys, the Winterbothams, the Allen B. Ripleys, Mrs. Howard Shaw, the George Richardsons, the John Shaws, the Stanley Keiths, the Rush C. Butlers, the Stanley Wileys and their lovely daughters, Virginia and Peggy; the Alden Swifts, and the Cramers.

As we walked from the club across the 23d street bridge we saw Mrs. Stephen G. Browning, that wonderful nonogenarian who was getting her first glimpse of the Fair from a push chair. With her were her daughter, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bischof. Mrs. Browning

Racine's Mayor Pays Honor to Queen at Ball

Invites Her and Her Court to Reception Saturday.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

One of the proudest moments Lillian Anderson has known since she was hailed Queen of the World's Fair, she admitted last night, was when Mayor W. J. Swaboda of Racine appeared at the cellophane ball in the Drake hotel, one of the most elaborate functions in her honor, and gave her the keys to her home town.

"Miss Anderson belongs to Racine and now Racine belongs to Miss Anderson," the mayor told the banqueters who had come to the ball to catch a glimpse of Miss Anderson and her court of fifty beauties.

Then turning to the long table where the guests of honor and their escorts were seated, he said: "I officially invite you, the queen, and your court to a reception in Racine on Saturday. Racine wants to honor you."

In the mayor's party were Miss Edna Christensen, who is chairman of the celebration committee; Miss Grace Miller, Dr. W. D. Gearen, who will be marshal of the parade which is to welcome the queen and her delegation; Theodore Gottlieb, Racine merchant; J. Hyman Anderson, and Miss Marie Crowley, a co-worker in the tearoom where Miss Anderson works as a cashier.

The queen, who was selected after a search both here and abroad by THE TRIBUNE to find the most beautiful young woman to reign over A Century of Progress, was ushered into the ballroom preceded by her court, to find a setting of glistening cellophane in blue and green and silver, from table cloths to lamp shades. The decorations were designed by New York and Chicago artists especially for the occasion.

Throughout the dinner Miss Anderson and her court were entertained by a dancing team, Fowler and Tamara, who have danced before the king and queen of England, and stars from W-G-N, announced by Bob Elson and including Lawrence Salerno, baritone; George Wright, tenor; Jane Carpenter, pianist; Dell Owen, director of the W-G-N orchestra. Clyde McCoy's orchestra furnished the music.

Following dinner the queen and her court made a flying trip to the Aragon ballroom and returned to the Drake to dance until morning.

Maroussa Russell to Become Bride of George Voevodsky

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

THE announcement of the engagement of Miss Maroussa Russell to Col. George Voevodsky comes as a surprise to all but their most intimate friends, but a very pleasant surprise it is, for they are immensely popular and every one is delighted at the news.

Miss Russell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Russell of Lake Forest, who presented her to society at a reception at their home in October of 1921, not long after the trio had returned from a fourteen months' trip around the world. Miss Russell's greatest interest since 1926, when the tragic death of her sister Emily and her husband, John C. Dawson Jr., in an airplane crash in Czechoslovakia, left as orphans their children, has been those children, and she has made her home with them ever since in the Dawson residence on East Westminster avenue, not far from the Russell residence on Sheridan road. The children are Lawrence and Edmund Dawson, who now are 13 and 11 years old. Joan Dawson, then 2, was drowned in Lake Forest about a month after the death of her parents. The manner in which Miss Russell has devoted herself to her nephews has won every one's admiration, and all who know her are sharing with her her new found happiness. She is a lovely and capable person, and the congratulations that are being offered Col. Voevodsky are very sincere.

COL. GEORGE VOEVODSKY [Hutchinson Photo.]

Col. Voevodsky, who has lived in Chicago for about eight or nine years, is the son of Admiral Voevodsky, former secretary of the Russian imperial navy, now living in Nice, France. Col. Voevodsky, who is noted as a pianist, although that is not his profession, formerly was of the Russian Imperial Chevaliers Guardes. No definite date for the wedding has been set, although it probably will be fairly soon.

St. Mary's Notre Dame Club to Have Dance on June 10

The St. Mary's Notre Dame College club of Chicago is to have a supper dance the evening of June 10 at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Thomas J. O'Brien, 650 Hinman avenue, Evanston, is the general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Clifton F. Woods, 7628 Essex avenue.

Mrs. Helen Huckley Heads Lake City Woman's Club

Mrs. Helen Huckley has been elected the new president of the Lake City Woman's club. She will be assisted by an executive committee composed of Mrs. Joseph A. Burkhardt, Mrs. Charles Thiebeaubt, and Mrs. Julius Graham, first, second and third vice presidents, respectively; Mrs. Henry Hoppe, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Archibald Cameron, recording secretary, and Mrs. Charles Wicklin, treasurer.

Suggests Fair Provide Daily Band Concerts

Critic Finds Most of Music Is at Concessions.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Music as presented at A Century of Progress has been chiefly in the hands of private enterprise and not in those of the Exposition. Since the inaugural day, as one strolls through the grounds, one hears occasional strains of melody, from highly amplified radio, but for direct contact therewith, one stops at a concession. One expects at least an official band to give daily concerts in all this magnificence of form and color, and, not hearing it, one feels as if a friendly gesture had been withheld.

Judging by the warmth with which some of the musical organizations are greeted, it would be a canny movement to introduce it in a number of other quarters where silence now rules. There is a good orchestra of jazz instrumentation at the A. & P. Carnival. It is directed by Harry Soznik, who will remain there until the A. & P. Gypsies come on June 27. Sometimes it plays dance music, sometimes concert pieces adapted for a group of this character, and always with mannerly and persuasive vitality. Tony Sarg's marionettes were getting ready to introduce a show of their own type when a visit was made there.

The stage is double so that the orchestra can face either of two directions in the riot of reds, yellows, and tans that decorate the spot. Whether it is on the east or west depends upon sun, wind, and weather conditions generally. In the afternoon, when the sun is bright, the east side is comfortably screened and curtained for the music lovers. George W. Rector is the host.

Mention was made in this column a short time ago of George Hessberger's orchestra at the Bavarian Hofbrau. He and his men have now moved to the Victor Vienna cafe, where they alternate with Eddie Sheasby's dance orchestra. Jan Wilgenkamp, the bass singer of the Bavarian Hofbrau, is also there in the evenings. If you are interested in good clarinet playing, you will do well to listen to Mr. Hessberger at such times as he is not amusing the audience with his comic humor. He plays with a tone of unusual mellowness and charm. In fact his small organization plays Strauss waltzes and operetta selections about as well as you will hear them anywhere.

Many of the other amusement places maintain music of one sort or other. Annabel Robbins' quintet plays twice daily, afternoons and evenings, in the Century grill on the second floor of the Travel and Transport building. Two dance orchestras make the Streets of Paris a pleasant place to visit. The Old Plantation show announces a red hot band. The rhythms of drums and tinkling sleighbells become audible in the dances at the Indian village four times each day. Here are native dances by tribal representatives of the Cochitis, Hopis, Isletas, Navajos, Winnebagos, and Sioux, all greatly animated.

New Sterling College Head.

Hutchinson, Kas., May 31.—(AP)—Dr. Hugh A. Kelsey, vice president of Muskingum college at New Concord, O., announced at the Sterling college graduating exercises today he had accepted the presidency of that college and would take active charge in July.

THE STAGE

The engagement of Lenore Ulric in "Angel" at the Grand Opera house will end next Saturday night. The original intention was a stay of two or three weeks. Miss Ulric's company will move eastward to appear in Brooklyn next week and to have a Broadway première June 19.

"The Piccoli," the Italian marionette entertainment at the Erlanger theater, announces an extension of its engagement for another week beyond this, which will be its fourth in Chicago. Box office improvement suggests that this unusual amusement may be developing the stamina for a run.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," as revived by the Players' club of New York with Otis Skinner in the title rôle, is reported to be a Broadway hit. There is talk of an extension of the engagement, which was planned for only one week. The Broadway gossips are also busy with rumors that the production will be sent to Chicago for a World's Fair attraction, on the theory that the most famous play in American theatrical history would find a welcome among the visitors to the Exposition.

The Shakespeare repertory company which had a successful season at the Alvin theater, New York, is beginning a tour of one night stands with the intention of landing in Chicago when the Fair attendance is at its peak. Percival Vivian, a graduate of the Ben Greet Shakespearean companies, is the leading spirit in this enterprise.

The State-Lake theater, vaudeville and cinema house on State street which has been closed for several months, has been leased by Aaron J. Jones of the firm of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, for a term of years beginning today. Mr. Jones has not yet announced the policy under which he will operate this playhouse. C. C.

$900 Prize Awarded to Chicagoan's Poem in U. of M. Contest

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31.—[Special.]—Van B. Aldermann of Chicago, a graduate student, has been named one of eight winners of major prizes in the Hopwood literary competition at the University of Michigan for the year, it was announced today. Mr. Aldermann received $900 for his manuscript "Montezuma" in the field of poetry. In all, $9,000 in prizes was given for manuscripts in the four fields specified in the will of the late Avery Hopwood and his mother, Jule Hopwood, these being poetry, drama, fiction, and essay.

Mrs. M. W. Schemm, Ann Arbor, received the largest award, $1,500, half for her essay "Vermont Essay" and the remainder for her manuscript in fiction, "Fireweed." Other major winners, all of them graduate students, and the amounts of their prizes, are:

Drama—Vincent C. Wall, Owosso, several plays, $1,000; Hobert D. Skidmore, Elmira, N. Y., "Nothing Ever Happens," $500.

Essay—Theodore Hornberger, Ann Arbor, "American Puritanism," $700.

Fiction—Dorothy Greenwald, Gary, Ind., "Rachel Foerster," $800; Frances Swain, Ann Arbor, "Even So," $700.

Poetry—Mr. Aldermann and John M. Turner, Richmond, Va., "Rhythm of the Railroad, $900.

Girls to Wear Cotton from the Skin Out

Summer Undergarments Are of Voile and Mesh.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Quite literally, cotton from the skin out! The newest, coolest underlayers are of cotton, from the tiny wisps of girdles for the very slim and slender young shopper to the more complicated but just as knowingly designed affairs made with tricky inner belts to keep the bulges down, especially fashioned for larger sizes.

Lovely flesh shades of cotton voiles, good looking and amazingly cool cotton meshes, new drop stitch mesh designs, and some very interesting laces are used for these 1933 tub models. You can find all models, step-in girdles to all-in-ones, each and every one of the things fully equipped to face soapsuds and hot water with charming equanimity.

One of the newest sports models that will make the active outdoor gal dig down in her pockets for the small sum it costs is made of checked gingham, a pink and white gingham girdle expertly made for all kinds of freedom and tubbing matched gayly to a "bra" of the same washable and clean looking gingham of the girdle.

And this year you can find all kinds of white foundation layers in cotton materials, double and triple layers of white cotton voile, square meshed cottons, and the airy nets. Most of the altogethers are made with lace ruffles, a complete garment pinch hitting for the usual three or four layers you usually slide into during cooler months.

Other trifles for foundation smoothness are the suavely fitting satin lastex models that swish in and out of soapsuds as easily and as smoothly as the wash cottons. The newest models are made with satin lastex panties attached to an efficient satin "bra" in front only, with the usual array of narrow straps holding the entire model in place across the back section.

Junior League Play on Mrs. Kinzie's Life to Be Given Saturday

Youngsters who go to the Children's theater on Enchanted island at A Century of Progress Saturday morning will see the first presentation by the Junior League Theater for Children of "The Captivity of Eleanor Lytle," a true story of Mrs. John Kinzie's girlhood and her capture by the Seneca Indians. The children will be thrilled especially when they see Eleanor [Mrs. Stephen Harrington Jr.] captured by Many Bears [Miss Dorothy Dewes]. Chicago children will be particularly interested in this story of the capture of Eleanor Lytle, for later she and her husband, John Kinzie, were Chicago's first settlers.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Next morning the papers carry the story of the murder of Philip Divine, Broadway playboy, and said there were two bullet wounds. Jane and Dinah saw a tall, dark man with a mustache as they left Philip Divine's house. Jane recognizes Jack Fiske's sterling qualities and tries to bring Dinah and him together. Jane admits to Dinah that she knew Philip Divine before and that she also shot him. Jane goes to the theater with Jack after Dinah refuses him. Dinah has a caller. He introduces himself as Pierre Baron. He is the tall, dark man with the mustache. Dinah promises to have dinner with him next evening. Baron tells Dinah that Divine was secretly married to Jane. Dinah resents his hatred of Jane and doesn't trust Baron. She tells him it was she who shot Divine. Jane confesses to Fiske that she shot Divine and that she'd brought Dinah to his home. Jane's efforts to shield Dinah win Jack's admiration. Jane leaves, not telling Dinah or Jack where she is going. Baron's sister, Jerry, a dancer, calls in search of Jane. She claims to have been married to Divine. She expects to frighten Jane into supporting her claim. Divine's widow will collect an inheritance. She moves in with Dinah. Jerry brings José Chavel, her dancing partner, to have luncheon with Dinah.

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

BLACKMAIL.

Dinah turned to Chavel, surprised and displeased that he had not come to her aid. And she found his dark, narrow face alight with silent laughter.

Jerry saw him, too.

"You're laughing at me?" she cried. "You think it's funny to call me 'Miss Bowzenbock'? You do! All right! You wait!"

He kept on laughing. For a moment Jerry glared at him, then she, too, began to laugh.

"Well, it is a little bit funny," she said. "I'll admit it. But now stop laughing, José! I've got to talk to Dinah, or whatever her name is." All trace of laughter vanished from her face. "I haven't any place to go tonight, and I haven't a cent."

"Well, I'm sorry," said Dinah, with no sorrow to be detected in her face or voice. "But I don't see what that has to do with me."

"You don't, don't you?" said Jerry, slowly. "You'd better do some thinking, then. You're responsible for that fight I had with your landlady. You've either got to make it up with her or find another place for me. And pay for it."

"But, Carmen!" protested Chavel. "Can you not be more polite to Miss Allen?"

"No, I can't. When any one's as stupid—as dumb—as she is it's just wasting time to be polite. She's the one to be polite—if she had any sense. She knows what I can do if I get seriously annoyed with her."

"You are wrong to make threats," said he gravely. "It is not necessary. Miss Allen is not stupid and she is not unkind. It is that she does not realize the situation. When she does I know she will be very kind to you."

Dinah glanced at him with displeasure. Why should he, or any one, expect her to be "very kind" to this intolerable girl?

"And, Miss Allen," he went on in a deferential tone, "please do believe that Carmen is not so bad as she talks. She will not make trouble for you—any trouble at all—if you realize the situation."

Dinah's eyes were fixed upon his face with growing uneasiness.

"If there is a little secret to conceal," he said, "she will conceal it. She will not tell. She will be very true to you. And when you shall realize this I know you will be kind to her. It will be—a bargain!"

She was beginning to understand now. The "bargain" was blackmail. Jerry knew her secret, and so did Chavel. And there was no course open to her but to submit. She dared not defy them.

"I—couldn't make it up with Mrs. Cotter—if you've offended her," she said unsteadily.

"All right," said Jerry. "Then you can give me the money to go somewhere else."

"I've only got ten dollars."

"That'll do, for the moment," said Jerry.

"But, Carmen!" said Chavel. "It will not! After Miss Allen has paid for this lunch, there will be only a little two dollars or so left."

"But I——!" Dinah began, and stopped. Because it was useless. Chavel, regarding her with that air of solicitous concern, was more merciless, more to be feared than Jerry.

"Then she'll have to get more money, from somewhere," said Jerry.

"I can't," said Dinah. "Not until Saturday."

"If I could help——!" said Chavel, with a sigh. "But I am so very poor. I have nothing at all."

"She'll have to do something," said Jerry.

"If—I had any money I'd give it to you," said Dinah, with a trembling lip. "I'd do anything—to get away from you. But I can't."

"Haven't you any friends, or any family?" asked Jerry, scornfully.

Dinah looked at her, as if the words she heard were unbelievable. The one thing that had never entered her mind was to appeal to her family, to involve those beloved people in this misery. She thought of her gentle and innocent little mother, her father, with his kindly, twinkling eyes and his familiar jokes, her two brothers, both married, and with children, her sister, married, too, and mother of the very best baby in the world.

"I'd rather die," she said, and she meant it. Nothing in the world could be so cruel and horrible as to drag any of her people into this.

"Borrow some money from that—what's his name?—Fiske, then," said Jerry. "Get it from somewhere. I'll come back to your office at five o'clock, and you can give it to me then."

"I can't leave the office this afternoon to see any one."

"I'll be there at five," said Jerry, rising. "Come on, José."

He rose, too, and laid a dollar bill on the table.

"This for the tip," he said, with matchless dignity. "I wish it were more, but it is all that I have. Au revoir, Miss Allen!"

Dinah sat at the table with the slice of Persian melon untasted before her, sat there so long that the waiter approached her at last.

"Anything wrong with the melon, mademoiselle?" he asked, anxiously. "Mademoiselle would prefer another?"

"No, thank you," she answered. "The check, please."

He brought it, face down on a tray, and when he had retreated, she took it up and looked at it. Seven dollars and twenty cents.

A wave of humiliation swept over her; she put her ten dollar bill on the tray, and sat with her head bent, her cheeks flaming.

She could foresee no way of escape, no expedient for getting rid of this atrocious burden. She would have to get money for Jerry, somehow, and she would have to go on getting it. If she failed, Jerry and her companion, who was a hundredfold more dangerous and more hateful than she, would not be likely to stop at anything.

"And Pierre Baron's in with them, of course. He's her brother. He knows all that she knows."

Those three against her—the inscrutable Baron, the pantherine Jerry, the suave and evil Chavel. And for her sole ally, young Fiske.

She was late in returning to the office, but Mrs. South said nothing to her about it, and Dinah, thoroughly unnerved, found in this silence something sinister.

"If I lose my job——" she thought.

In the past, that possibility had never unduly worried her; she had known that she could always write or telegraph back home for money to tide her over, or, if it came to the worst, she could go home herself, and be lovingly welcomed.

She could not go home now, though. She thought of the familiar old frame house on the tree shaded street, of the tranquil, gentle life that went on there, and a dreadful grief seized her, as if she were an exile, looking back upon childhood scenes never to be revisited. If she went there she would be followed. Her people, so respected in the little community, would be exposed to shame and inordinate anxiety. She could not even ask her father for money—to be paid out in blackmail.

But she had no such scruples in regard to Jack Fiske. She seized a moment to run down into the lobby and ring up his office.

"It's Dinah," she said, when she heard his voice. "I can't explain everything now. But that Jerry wants money—and I haven't any. She's coming here at five, and she's got to get some."

"I'll be there, too," said he, briefly.

Doris Blake Answers

Actions Indicate Regard.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend claims he likes me. When he is with other girls he is jolly and full of fun, but when he is around me he is quiet and serious. BROWNIE."

It may be that the boy has a heavy crush on you. Such feelings naturally won't permit of jocularity.

Forget His Faults.

Dear Miss Blake: I go out with a boy frequently. I say I'll never see him again, but I always go with him. What is it? PUZZLED AD."

Probably something about the boy that you find irresistible, in spite of some petty faults he may have. Forget the latter.

Vanity Table Is Needed for Makeup Rites

Every Young Girl Should Be Given One.

"West Point Exercises," an illustrated booklet outlining the series of exercises recently presented in these columns through the courtesy of the United States Military academy, may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Or call at The Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn Street.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We're all for the young women of the house having their own little vanity table. Many of them have, of course, but many more might have them who could afford the little working place for home beauty care. We know mothers who think this rather too much of a luxury for their young daughters. Yet the same mammas offer no objections, seemingly, to daughter working her beauty rites over a bathroom basin.

The point is that beauty isn't a luxury or a vanity. It's an economic necessity and it's a ticket of entré to many an opportunity, social, business, and professional. By beauty, naturally, we mean what that word means today in grooming and improving each shining asset. And, we think, the little work table has a certain phychological value that doing the improving work standing over a wash basin has not.

Since looks count for so much today, the business of keeping up to par should be tended in a business-like way. And time is needed. Not so much time, as the twenty-fours of a day go, but, nevertheless, the leisure that is involved in seating one's self before a vanity table, tying back the hair, and doing the necessary jobs slowly and carefully.

One can rig up a table at comparatively little cost, if nothing more than a shelf be built beneath a hangig mirror over which a good light is hung. It's the idea of having all the paraphernalia handy—the cream, tissue removers, the astringent lotion, the manicure tools, the hand lotion, the powder, makeup box, and so on. AND a SEAT to SIT on. Especially at the end of a hectic day one does gloss over the beauty work with a lick and promise, if one stands for the operation.

As said before, there is a good psychological reason for arguing in favor of the vanity table. Especially for the business girl whose entertainment evening after a hard office day leaves her in a state of anxfety to get to bed rather than clean up thoroughly. If she sits down to her task she'll do it much more thoroughly, and her morning will be a less strenuous effort to get to work on time.

As time goes on more and more pressure is going to be put on the good grooming demand, so this younger group had better begin their systematic daily training young.

Society Opens Century Club with Gay Party

More Than 600 Members Attend Dinner.

was enthusiastic about everything she had seen, especially the colors, and confessed that she liked the Fair better than the one in '93.

Many of the members who dined at the Century club used push chairs and rickshas in which to get to the club from the 23d street entrance and it was a gay procession that was going across the bridge just before sunset.

Society will be out in force at the Fair again on Saturday night for the gala performance of "The Wings of a Century," the transportation pageant that Mrs. Maurice Geraghty [Helen Tieken] is putting on opposite the Travel and Transport building. The first performance is to be given tonight, but Saturday is to be society night and many dinners are being planned to take place at the Century club preceding the pageant.

Following the dinner at the Century club the guests adjourned to the children's theater on Enchanted island, where the Junior league presented "Peter Pan" in a "husbands' night" program.

William E. Clows Mark Anniversary Today

Tonight that beloved couple, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow, will receive the congratulations of their children and grandchildren at a family dinner at the Lake Forest home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas. It is their 51st wedding anniversary and, contrary to the festivity that marked their golden wedding day, they have chosen to celebrate it in as quiet a way as possible.

Mrs. Douglas is their only daughter. Kent Clow and William E. Clow Jr. are their two sons. The sons will attend the dinner and so will Miss Martha Sarver, who is Mrs. Clow's sister, and Miss Francise Clow and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, the two daughters and son-in-law of the junior William Clows.

Mary Katherine Fortune Weds W. J. Lawlor Jr. Today.

Miss Mary Katherine Fortune, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leo Fortune, is to become Mrs. William James Lawlor Jr. at high noon today in the Cathedral of the Holy Name. She will be attended by one of her sisters, Miss Jane Fortune, who made her debut two years ago, as maid of honor, and another sister, Barbara, who is soon to graduate from the Girls' Latin school, will be one of the bridesmaids. The other bridesmaids will be Mrs. George F. Douaire Jr., sister of the groom; Miss Jeannette Peterkin, and Miss Dorothy Moorehead.

Daniel J. Lawlor will serve his brother as best man, and ushering will be John L. Fortune Jr. and Peter Charles Fortune, here for the day from Princeton university, where he is a senior, brothers of the bride; George F. Douaire, the groom's brother-in-law; Ross J. Beatty Jr., William O. Hunt, and Thomas Keelin. Following the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Arnold Joseph Garvy, S. J., there will be a breakfast for the wedding party, relatives, and a few close friends at the Fortunes' Astor street home. Mr. Lawlor and his bride will spend a month in England and France on their wedding trip, and after their return to this country they will be at home at 1366 North Dearborn parkway.

Alliance Francaise Gives Elegant Luncheon.

Cartwheel hats and diplomatic words were the keynote yesterday of the very elegant luncheon the Alliance Française and the Juniors of the Alliance gave for those two distinguished French visitors to the city, Dr. and Mme. Lecomte du Nouy, at the Casino. One hundred and eighteen guests came for a tomato juice cocktail and fried chicken at one o'clock and stayed until well after three to hear the new president of the alliance, Robert Hall McCormick, Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress; Orville J. Taylor, the alliance's new vice president; the French consul general, Rene Weiller, and Dr. du Nouy.

Each one of them in polite words paid compliment to the other and stressed the magnitude and significance of our World's Fair. Mr. Taylor pleaded off speaking in French "for fear I might make Dr. du Nouy homesick," and Dr. du Nouy in turn gave an interesting and instructive talk about the Pasteur exhibit at the Fair. He heads the Pasteur institute in Paris.

Cartwheel Hats Much in Evidence.

The cartwheel hats graced the speakers' table. Mme. du Nouy wore the largest—a stunning white affair with an applique in red to match her gown. Mme. Rene Weiller, wife of the French consul general, wore another of blue straw and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey a large brimmed brown hat. Mrs. Dawes' deep blue hat was also brimmed but a narrower variety.

We observed Mrs. Walter S. Brewster smartly clad in a white envelope hat and a blue wool jumper dress with white petal sleeves and red belt chatting vigorously with her luncheon neighbor, Dr. George Kolombatovich, the Jugo-Slav consul general; also Miss Marjorie Goodman in a brown fez and Miss Louise Dewey completely surrounding the handsome young M. Julien d'Herbois; and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston passing words across the table to her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Winston.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris were there. And so were Mrs. Thomas H. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Alan C. Howes, Miss Elizabeth McClure, Mrs. John H. Storrs, M. Grimm Province, Mrs. Walter B. Bracken, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, and Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus.

Young Lake Foresters Run Off Olympics Today.

Several well known Lake Forest residents are taking an early train home this afternoon to be on hand to judge the Olympic games that a half a hundred young citizens of the village are running off at 5 o'clock at the Winter club.

Third graders at Bell school, the games are one of their annual events. And this year the contestants are particularly interested in bettering the records made by third graders in former years. There is the 42 foot 4 inch discus throw record established last year by Chuck Smith, son of Maj. Compton C. Smith, for instance. Among the girls, Katherine Judah, daughter of the Noble Brandon Judahs, threw the discus the farthest last year.

The games will begin with a tug of war at 5 o'clock. Valentine Bartlett Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett, and Polly Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III., are the captains of the two sides. The other events are to be a relay for girls, with Joan Hixon, the Robert Hixons' daughter, and Helen Niblack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack, as captains; a relay for boys, captained by Mason Phelps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, and Kent Keehn, the Roy Keehns' son; a broad jump, fifty yard dash, and discus throw. Then, too, the boys have weighed in for wrestling matches. The last several days, when their fathers have been too busy to coach them, butlers, cooks, and even chauffeurs have bridged the gap.

Jaques Sisters to Motor from East.

Due to illness in the family, Mrs. Louis T. Jacques did not go east for thh graduation today of her daughter, Abbie Jane, from the Erskine school in Boston. However, Miss Annie Ri Jaques, who went to England last April to visit friends, is landing Sunday in Boston and she and her sister will motor home together. The third sister, Miss Lois Jaques, has devoted the last year to learning the game of tennis inside out—she was in Texas last fall and in Florida for the winter—and has made startling progress in this wonderful sport. She is at home now and will be during the summer, as she intends to enter every tournament there is. The Jaques hope to get away to their Mackinac home in July some time to spend the hottest part of the summer there.

Seats Available for Dux Concert.

It was the unbounded enthusiasm of one of the workers for the Friends of Music that was responsible for our saying yesterday that the Auditorium had been sold out for the first of the World's Fair concerts by Claire Dux next Wednesday evening. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter assured us yesterday, however, that it is only the boxes that have been sold out and that there are still plenty of excellent seats throughout the great music hall. She is certain that the sale of tickets this week is going to prove how thoroughly music minded and appreciative Chicago really is.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Pleasing papa" and "humoring hubby" have ceased being the be-all and end-all of life these days. We've announced our independence and taken up golf!

But just the same it's still sort of fun to take pains—when we do fly kitchenward to rustle the hurry-up meals—to conjure up foods that we've discovered will best please the man of the house as well as tickle the rest of the family palates.

And unless you've a man in a million—one of the "fondest things he is of" is ham and eggs! If somebody collected a straw ballot it's dollars to doughnuts this dish would turn up as the American male's prime favorite. You'll find it on foreign menu cards—to make the traveling man from the states feel at home. And inevitably where bachelors foregather, along with a love for curry powder, for big fat juicy steaks, for good heavy chowders, and bowls of spaghetti, comes a passion for curly pink and brown slices of smoky ham surrounded by trembling golden eggs hiding demurely behind thin white veils. (My! How picturesque!)

But to get a real he-man's view on the subject, you should hear Will Irwin, well known author, talk ham and eggs (his favorite foods) and tell the world exactly how they should be cooked. Says Mr. Irwin: "Take a frying pan and some ham. Cook the ham in its own fat in the frying pan—cook until the ham is well dappled with golden brown, or until it is cooked enough. Then break some eggs. Take out the ham and put it on a hot platter—then put in the eggs. Baste them with the hot ham fat. Put a cover on the pan and let the eggs cook in the hot pan with no fire. A minute or two will do—then serve the eggs with the ham—and O, boy!"

That's Mr. Irwin's exclamation. But just give your imaginations a sniff of that tantalizing aroma and a look at the pinky-brown ham and the creamy-golden eggs, and "O, boy," will seem like faint praise.

A few suggestions, though, might help along the above. Ham sliced for frying country style (that's what the epicures call it) should be about one-half inch thick. Before frying, gash it around the edge in several places. When it goes into the hot frying pan it should be given a quick sear on both sides, then the heat turned down and the ham cooked slowly for about ten minutes. It's often a good hunch—to keep yolks unbroken and insure freshness—to break the eggs separately on a wet saucer, one at a time, slipping them from there into the hot pan, from which the ham slice has been removed.

But our hungered-after ham and eggs needn't always turn up fried, country style. Ham omelets and souffles, ham hash and poached eggs, ham and egg salad likewise do most pleasant things to meals. As a starter try:

HAM AND EGG SALAD.

3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
2 cups minced left-over ham
5 sweet pickles, cut in thin slices
10 stuffed olives, minced
Mayonnaise

Combine all the ingredients lightly, adding enough mayonnaise to blend. Serve in crisp lettuce cups.

Then how did the ham hash plus eggs sound to you? It's a most dainty dish—really!

HAM PATTIES CROWNED WITH POACHED EGGS.

2 cups chopped ham
2 cups chopped cooked potatoes
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons fat
¼ teaspoon salt
Pepper to season
2-3 cup chopped celery
Green pepper rings for garnish

Heat the fat in a frying pan and brown in it the chopped pepper, onion, and celery. Turn into a pan containing the ham and potatoes. Blend well and season. Add hot meat broth or water if necessary to moisten. Form into six equal patties and pan-fry in more drippings until browned on both sides and piping hot. Have ready six poached eggs and serve the patties up on a platter, a poached egg atop each and a garnish of parsley or sliced green pepper rings added for decoration.

Let Husband Keep Illusions, Advises Doris

Not Far from Familiarity to Contempt.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A question proffered by one young bride has to do with the keeping up of certain formalities in order to sustain the sweetheart relationship. She asks about certain little habits of carelessness that arise in the intimacies of married living. One involves a matter of modesty, or if that word is too old fashioned for you, then let's say "sustaining the illusions."

In this so-called age of honesty, frankness, or what you will among couples, it still remains the better part of wisdom for the young matron to preserve all the illusions possible about herself. After all, you know the street car has been caught, so the passenger had better do everything she can to keep from reminding her husband of the fact. We mean, in such matters of privacy as dressing, bathing, and so on. Modesty never failed a woman yet as an appealing virtue, and we think it serves the wife particularly well in upholding the traditions of the ideal woman.

Marriage too often becomes a sordid, tiresome business because there isn't a shred of the old illusion left. And woman's whole power along this line lies in being just a little mysterious, always nice, and never common. All of which she can continue years on end to be without ever a hint of forbidding Puritanism.

As some one has sagely said, it's the family bathroom with its untidy soap dishes, its sloppy towels, the man's lathered face and the woman's greasy one that reduce an ideal to a horrible commonplace.

In nice married relationships and successful ones things cannot be taken too much for granted. Good manners and common sense must come to the rescue. Always there is that safety lock known as respect to be recognized and played to. It's not a very long stretch from familiarity to contempt, as every one knows.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt entertained at tea this afternoon the head of the Chilean delegation to the world economic conference in London, Señor Don Pedro Torres, president of the Banco Chile, who arrived in Washington early in the afternoon. He and his party are staying at the Chilean embassy. He was accompanied to the White House by the counselor of the embassy and chargé d'affaires, Benjamin Cohen, who went to New York to meet him.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt today issued invitations for a reception Saturday evening at 9:30.

Mrs. Roosevelt returned this evening from a day's trip to Monticello, near Charlottesville, Va., the home of Thomas Jefferson, now a national shrine. She was accompanied by Miss Esther Lape and Miss Elizabeth Read of New York, who were week-end guests at the White House; and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt; Mrs. Sidney Sherwood, Col. Louis M. Howe, secretary to the President.

Mrs. Robert P. Lamont of Chicago, wife of the former secretary of commerce, who has spent the winter at the Westchester here, gave up that apartment yesterday and went to New York to sail this evening for Europe.

SALADS
SALAD DRESSINGS

SUNSET SALAD
A Study in Yellows

1 package lemon flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
¾ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 cup crushed canned pineapple, drained
1 cup finely grated raw carrot

Dissolve the gelatin in the boiling water. Add the salt, sugar and vinegar and let cool till partly congealed. Meanwhile half fill individual molds with the mixed pineapple and carrot. Pile it in lightly to allow room for the gelatin mixture. (If fresh crushed pineapple is used, it must be cooked first, as the fresh juices destroy the thickening power of the gelatin). When the gelatin is cool and has started to thicken, pour it around the mixture in the molds and chill till set. To serve, turn out into crisp lettuce cups and dress with whipped cream boiled dressing or whipped cream mayonnaise. Serves 6.

Clip on the dotted line, mount on a card; mounted, the recipe just fits the new Mary Meade Recipe File . . . Bit of Colonial Sentiment Named All-Over Design

True Lover's Knot.

BY NANCY CABOT.

With a few magic twirls of the compass you have the "True Lover's Knot" design. It is an all-over design and when all the blocks are set together it forms an endless chain of interlacing circles. The same pattern is also known as "True Lover's Chain." Though it is sometimes proclaimed as modern, it is in reality an old Virginia design dating from early colonial days.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FORDNEY AND THE FRENCH POLICE.

"Well, M. Fordney," remarked Dr. Renault, the great pathologist of the French Surete, as he completed the autopsy, "this poor girl died from a stab wound in the heart."

Six hours before the charred body of Marie Dupont had been dragged from the flames of her small cottage on the outskirts of Paris. The police were confident she had been burned to death, as was the doctor who first viewed the body.

As the two men left the autopsy room, Fordney, who had been working with the French police for several weeks, was handed a report by a gendarme. It was to the effect that the police had, a few moments ago, intercepted a blackmailing letter addressed to Leon Mercier, the dead girl's sweetheart. The writer, who signed himself merely X X, stated that he knew Marie had died from a stab wound in the heart and not from burns as the fool police believed. It further stated that unless Mercier left 20,000 francs at a designated spot, he, the writer, would inform the police of the cause of death—and his, Mercier's, guilt.

The Surete after this had Mercier, a prominent physician, trailed and when he received a second blackmailing letter, intercepted without his knowledge, despite his unquestionable alibi, they arrested him. They said were he innocent why hadn't he reported the blackmailing letters? Voila! He must be guilty!

Fordney, however, disagreed with them.

DO YOU KNOW WHY?

Provident Hospital Today Dedicates Its New 3 Million Plant

The Greater Provident hospital and training school, Vincennes avenue and 51st street, will be opened formally this afternoon as one of the best equipped hospitals in the city. Although an effort was made to provide a medical center for the service and training of Negroes, the hospital is not restricted to that race, it was explained.

The hospital represents an investment of $3,000,000. The old Lying-In hospital was purchased and has been remodeled with modern equipment throughout. One of the important additions has been the $20,000 X-ray department.

Col. A. A. Sprague will be among the speakers at the dedicatory ceremony. Alexander L. Jackson is president of the hospital and Rear Admiral N. J. Blackwood medical director.

Chicago Secretaries in ONE-LEG TEST
cut down Stocking Runs 72%

CLEVER Chicago business girls made this convincing "one-leg test." Washed ONE stocking every night with Lux—and rubbed the OTHER with cake soap. They could hardly believe the way Lux cut down runs—72% better wear from the Luxed stockings than from their exact mates—rubbed with cake soap!

It's easy to see why Lux saves stockings. Lux preserves the elasticity of silk—that "live" quality that makes them give without breaking. Cake-soap rubbing too often destroys elasticity. Threads break under strain. Wash your stockings in Lux every night—takes only two minutes!

Avoid ordinary soaps—they often contain harmful alkali. Lux has no harmful alkali. Avoid cake-soap rubbing, too. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Mrs. J. R. Iwersen washed 457 pieces with just one box of LUX:—

118 pairs socks and stockings
61 pieces silk lingerie and blouses
14 sweaters and baby blankets
30 nightgowns and pajamas
26 aprons and children's dresses
208 pieces table linen, handkerchiefs
"And I did the dishes for 1½ weeks."

MISS ALICE HOLLAND (left) says, "On the third day of the test I had a run in the cake-soap stocking. After 31 days' wear the Lux one is still like new. Imagine, over 10 times as long wear! That's why we girls are sold on Lux."

LUX saves stocking Elasticity

CHARLEY ROOT STOPS PIRATES; CUBS WIN 5-1

BALL FANS URGE MACK, M'GRAW MANAGE STARS

Tell Ideas on Game in Chicago July 6.

Mack vs. McGraw. Shades of the world series in 1905, 1911 and 1913. The two oldest and most famous managers in major league history pitted against each other once again, each with the greatest team it is possible to assemble.

CONNIE MACK.

This apparently is the wish of baseball fans for the Game of the Century at Comiskey park July 6. Most certainly it is the desire of twenty men and a woman follower of the White Sox, who were picked at random in Tuesday's crowd at the White Sox-Cleveland double header.

Connie Mack, venerable manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, was almost a unanimous choice. Eighteen of the 21 fans favored him as the manager of the American league team. Three thought Joe McCarthy, of the New York Yankees, the only man who has managed a pennant winner in both major leagues, should direct Simmons, Ruth, Grove, et al. against the National league stars.

McGraw Is Popular.

John McGraw, who retired as manager of the New York Giants last summer, was the popular choice in the National league. Charley Grimm, of the Cubs, was the choice of two fans and Rogers Hornsby, Donie Bush and Gabby Street each had a loyal supporter.

"Mack has the experience," said Mrs. Marian McDonald, of 5043 Sheridan road, "and he is deserving. Any man who has done as much for baseball as Connie Mack should be tendered whatever honor such an occasion as this game affords. McGraw likewise has the ability and I think baseball is sufficiently indebted to him to invite him out of retirement for a day."

Picks Mack and Street.

E. Erickson of 104 West 114th street, a foreman in the Acme Scales works, said Mack and Street were to his mind the logical choices. Both are active in the game now and although Street has not put in as many years as a manager, he has been affiliated with baseball long enough to match the crafty Mack in strategy and fight.

"Mack and Grimm," said Dale C. Evans of Elkhart, Ind., a maker of saxophones. "There is no question about Mack. He's the best in the American league. Grimm is a Chicagoan as far as baseball goes, he is doing a fine job of managing, and who can you name who is better qualified in the National league?"

This Fan Wants Hornsby.

It was Mr. Evans' question, so the reporter left him with it and approached Mark Schiller, an automobile salesman from Des Moines, in for the holiday and the World's Fair.

"It's between Mack and McCarthy in the American league," Schiller said, "but they will have to give it to Mack. He deserves it, and I am sure all the fans want to see him handle a team like the American league can assemble. In the National league I pick Hornsby."

"Why?" he was asked.

"There is no use of any one fooling himself. This looks like a big stunt," Schiller answered, "but with-

BRUINS ONLY 3½ GAMES OUT OF FIRST PLACE

Gink Hendrick Best at Bat.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 31.—Charley Root toyed with the Pirates this afternoon in the joyful business of blistering the National league favorites, 5 to 1. Charley yielded ten hits and there wasn't an inning in which the Pirates failed to get a man on base, but in the pinches Charley and errorless associates were on the job. The one Pirate run did not materialize until the eighth, when victory was pretty well on ice.

CHARLEY ROOT.

The Cubs made only seven hits off four Pirate pitchers, and only three of these figured in the manufacture of their five runs. Gink Hendrick was the main batter, with a single after which he scored the winning run, and a triple which resulted in the last of the comforting tabulations.

Only 3½ Games Back.

In whipping the Pirates the Cubs dragged the Pittsburghers down to a won-and-lost tie for first with the idle St. Louis Cardinals—the Cubs' foes for tomorrow. They also lifted themselves to within 3½ games of the lead, a game and a half back of the Giants.

The triumph gave the Cubs a record of two out of three in the series here and four out of six in the season series with the Pirates. And it is perhaps well to mention the champions now have won seven out of their last eight encounters.

Get Cheap Run in First.

The Cubs made a run and two hits in the first inning, but strangely enough, the hits had nothing whatever to do with the production of the run. English walked to start the game, and stole second on Swetonic's first pitch to Bill Herman. Grace was so startled that he committed his first error of the year when he threw the ball into center field. This permitted Woody to proceed to third, whence he scored on Bill Herman's fly to Lindstrom. Babe Herman popped to Traynor, after which Stephenson singled to center and went to second on Demaree's single to left. Hendrick followed with a long fly to Lindstrom.

The Pirates had a scoring chance in the second inning when Suhr doubled to right center. But the chance disappeared because Piet and Grace fouled to Hartnett. The Pirates again became hopeful when Swetonic led off the Pittsburgh half of the third by walking. But L. Waner flied to Demaree, Lindstrom forced Swetonic, and Bill Herman threw out P. Waner.

Jurges Hit in Face.

The cheering Cub fourth started mildly enough, with Vaughan throwing out Demaree. Then Hendrick singled to center. Traynor came up with Hartnett's hot grounder and sought to start a double play with a throw to Piet. But the throw was wide, enabling Hendrick to reach third and Hartnett first. Jurges was hit in the face with a pitched ball. Bill was flattened and for a time it was feared he had been seriously hurt. Eventually, however, the young man arose and went to first, filling the bases. Root fouled to Traynor, but English walked, forcing Hendrick home. Bill Herman

How They're Voting on American League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

WESTROPE RIDES FIVE WINNERS AT HOMEWOOD

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jack Westrope, the new matinee idol of the World's Fair race goers, threw his big public among the 8,000 at Washington Park yesterday into another storm of applause.

Five times he rode his horses first past the winning post and they ranged all the way from red hot favorites to extreme outsiders. The people who didn't play Westrope went away sad and busted. Those who backed his mounts retired with their pockets full.

It was the most sensational riding of the year in American racing and caused Westrope to become one of the most popular lads who has appeared on a Chicago track in many years.

Best Ride in Seventh.

His most spectacular ride came when he got Prince Farthing up to capture the seventh event. He was far back in the early running and took no chances of getting into tight quarters. He took the Prince far out in the center of the track in the stretch. He turned on his magic and Prince Farthing ran past horses as if they were standing still. He won easily.

Here's what the folks got who backed Westrope's mounts: Bedight paid $5.44; Lady Menifee was at $5.12; Whirling returned $27.84; Cold Check, $9.70, and Prince Farthing, $8.72.

Westrope rode in two other races. He finished third on March King in the sixth and was out of the money, the only time all afternoon, on Popo in the last race.

Perhaps you would like to know this fellow.

He Resembles Sloan.

Westrope has the monkey crouch with the short stirrups first used by the famous Tod Sloan. Old timers say he will come nearer to emulating the great Sloan than any rider in years. He has a pug nose and a most determined expression. He swaggers just enough to let the other kids know he is fully capable of taking care of himself.

The lad is 16 years old. He was born near Miles City, Mont., and not in Idaho, which has produced many of our famous jockeys. His parents now live on an Iowa farm.

He spent last season galloping horses in training on Chicago tracks. More than once he begged for a chance to ride in a race, but his contract employer, O. L. Foster, insisted that he learn more about horses and horsemanship before he wear the colors.

Injury Stops Him.

It was in Cuba last January that he rode his first race and his first winner. Lerack was the horse. Three days later he won his second race on Rolling Sea. Horsemen then began to predict that he would be a star. Next came an injury. He was kicked

Right Number! Phone Girl Wins $118,500 on Derby

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Lady Luck reached out her hand to a modest home in Ridgewood, L. I., today and handed Louise M. Popp, 27 year old telephone operator, who never saw a horse race, a fortune of $118,500—the proceeds of a $2 investment in an Irish sweepstakes ticket on Hyperion, which won the English Derby.

There's a string to it, though; for if Louise, who took the good news complacently, brings her prize money to this country it will be sliced by approximately $43,0000, representing federal and state income taxes and surtaxes. The Irish Free State, which operates the lottery as a hospital fund benefit, does not take a nickel tax, however, and if Louise leaves the money in Dublin she can save that $43,000.

She's Night Operator.

A comely, competent young woman, with dark hair and eyes, who has risen to the post of night chief operator, Miss Popp withheld any excitement she may have felt as she talked with reporters.

She is not engaged, nor is she even keeping steady company. Her ambition now, as it was when she joined the employ of the New York Telephone company ten years ago after graduating from Bushwick High school, is to advance herself to a big job with the firm.

Miss Popp received the news from her mother, who took it anything but calmly. Seated listening to the family radio in the Popp home, Mrs. Martha Popp became almost incoherent as the blurred words of an international broadcast from Epsom Downs announced Hyperion had won.

Brother Sold Tickets.

She raced to a phone and called Louise, who was summoned from an instruction room to hear that she had become wealthy. The press swarmed in to see Louise soon afterward.

"I haven't any plans and I won't make any until I actually see the money," said Miss Popp. "No, I'm not a bit interested in horse racing. I've never even seen one and I don't intend to now. Whatever I do it won't affect my job."

Extremely reticent to talk about her lucky break, Miss Popp would not tell her salary and even refused to reveal where she got the ticket. Her mother, however, still wildly excited, explained that Louise's brother, Herbert, a stock exchange clerk, had bought five and had sold one to Louise and one to another sister, Dorothea. It was the third try for Louise, who had no luck with sweepstakes tickets last year and the year before.

New York's other big winner was John Byron Sr., 73, a messenger of Rosebank, S. I., whose ticket on Statesman, which placed third, will bring him about $39,500.

CHICAGOAN GETS $395.

The only Chicagoan listed among the prize winners in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes on the English Derby yesterday was C. S. Kelly, 6915 Wentworth avenue, an undertaker. Kelly drew one of the cash consolation prizes of $395. He purchased the ticket, he said, from a friend, but declined to give the ticket salesman's name.

Hyperion Wins English Derby in Record Time

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EPSOM DOWNS, England, May 31.—Lord Derby stood today among a million race fans and watched his colt, Hyperion, win the English Derby over the historic course at Epsom Downs. It was the third time that a horse owned by the Derby family had won this famous race, which was run today for the 150th time. The event takes its name from one of the ancestors of the present Lord Derby.

Running the mile and a half in two minutes and 34 seconds, Hyperion broke the record established by Call Boy in 1927, his time being two fifths of a second faster. Call Boy's mark was equaled in 1928 by Felstead.

Hyperion galloped across the finish line four lengths ahead of Sir Cunliffe-Owen's King Salmon, Victor Emanuel's Statesman being a length further back in third place. The winner was quoted at odds of 6 to 1, having been made the favorite just before post time.

The field of twenty-three included England's best 3 year olds and a number of good colts owned by Americans. Although Statesman was the only Yankee horse to get in the money, John McCormack's Franz Hals ran a fairly good race to finish seventh.

In the course of the race there was excellent coöperation between Tommy Weston, who rode Hyperion, and the veteran Steve Donoghue, who piloted Thrapston, another of Lord Derby's horses.

Donoghue was told to win with Thrapston if possible, but at any rate to cut out a pace which would be favorable to Hyperion. Thrapston was not expected to last for the full distance.

So Donoghue rushed his mount to the front at the start and Weston maneuvered Hyperion into second position, with King Salmon close behind. They ran in this order to Tattenham Corner, where Weston decided to go to the front. He shouted to Donoghue to move over so that he could get through on the rail, but at first the veteran apparently failed to hear. So Weston yelled again.

Donoghue then took Thrapston several feet out and Weston drove his mount up along the rail to take the lead.

SOX FACE TIGERS TODAY, AND BOY, WHAT A RELIEF!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The going may be a bit easier for the gay White Sox during the next couple of weeks and they won't mind it a bit. When they finished their double header against Cleveland here on Memorial day they rounded out three solid weeks of battling, barring two games in Boston, with the four toughest clubs in the league. Now, as a sort of respite, they face two weeks of work against the two teams which by their percentage status should be easier picking.

The feasting, granted that it proves such, on the alleged league setups begins today at Detroit with Ted Lyons the probable pitching starter. The visit in the Motor city will continue through Saturday and on Sunday the Hose will show up in St. Louis for five games in four days. The extra one will be played Sunday. Then they return home to engage in five in four days with the Tigers and three in as many days with the Browns. After that things will be a bit tougher. The strong eastern clubs will swarm on Comiskey park.

The Record Is O. K.

What the south siders did in their three weeks of almost unbroken association with the four top notchers—Yankees, Senators, Athletics and Indians—speaks pretty well for their future. In a two game series with the Yanks here they broke even. They followed with one win in three starts against the Senators. Then they went to Philadelphia and divided two games. They dropped down to Washington and took two out of three. They had a soft spot at Boston but lost one while winning one. Then, after taking the opener at New York, they shuffled off the next three. Even with this disastrous series their record for the three weeks, including last Tuesday's double header here, was 8 wins and 10 losses.

On top of the unbroken stretch against classy opposition, the Sox were further annoyed by little inconveniences which makes their achievement all the more impressive. During that three weeks three of their pitchers had arm ailments, Ted Lyons wasn't winning, Al Simmons was just getting out of his slump and Manager Fonseca's bat was absent.

Lew Still Seeks Pitcher.

Even though the prospects are for better pitching, Fonseca still is conducting a quiet search for help. There are a couple of clubs willing to fix him up but the hitch occurs in the fact that they want somebody in trade. Nothing would be gained by sending away one of his regulars from another position to strengthen the pitching department. He's tried to accomplish his purpose by holding up waivers but the scheme hasn't worked thus far.

SIX FACULTY MEMBERS OF THE TRIBUNE GOLF SCHOOL CALLING THEIR CLASSES TO ORDER

This is a scene which was enacted, with variations, on each of the 27 courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association last night, when the women members of The Tribune golf school reported for their regular lesson. The above photograph, which was taken at Evergreen, shows six of the club professionals demonstrating the drive to their pupils. Left to right are Fred Clisbee, Ray Hutchinson, Donald Gardner, John Tokach, Bill Porter, and Al Megeff. Every club provides sufficient instructors to meet the requirements of the class, regardless of its size, so that no pupil is lost in the crowd. More than 15,000 men, women, boys and girls have enrolled in this free course of instruction which began last week and which will continue for a total of six weeks. At the end of the course 140 prizes, including bags, clubs, balls and playing memberships will be distributed among the pupils who develop into the best golfers.

CLOCKERS BLINK AT HEAD PLAY'S DERBY WORKOUT

Goes Through Fast Drill with Humphreys Up.

Head Play, the favorite for the American Derby Saturday, started the tongues to wagging at Washington Park yesterday morning when he turned his final Derby prep into a sensational workout.

The greatest crowd of rail birds of the summer was gathered at the track when the big red colt was brought out.

With Lee Humphreys up, the Preakness winner broke at the eighth pole and stepped along briskly under a pull. The watchers clocked off the first quarter in :23 3-5, half in :47 2-5, three-quarters in 1:12 4-5, mile in 1:38 3-5, and mile and an eighth in 1:51 3-5. At this point Trainer Hayes waved the colt down and he galloped out the additional eighth in a jog, negotiating the Derby distance in 2:06 3-5.

Tommy Taylor, trainer of Charley O, brought out the brother of Mike Hall with his usual exercise boy, Bill Roberts, astride. He told Roberts to let Charley O move along at an even pace without urging. That Roberts followed the instructions minutely is noted by the time of all the quarters caught by the split second boys. Here it is: Quarter, :24 4-5, half, :49 4-5, three-quarters, 1:15 4-5; mile, 1:42 1-5, and the mile and a quarter, 2:08 3-5.

Mr. Khayyam and Gold Basis, two of the eastern candidate for Derby honors, arrived at Washington Park at noon yesterday. The veteran trainer, Matt Brady, who has charge of Mr. Khayyam, was confident the son of Omar Khayyam and Alice Foster would again administer defeat to Head Play as he did in the Wood stakes. Mr. Khayyam's improvement over his race in the Kentucky Derby was noted in the Wood and it is claimed that he is now right at his best.

Max Hirsch will saddle Gold Basis for the American Derby. The son of Dis Donc looked at fit as a fiddle when he was unloaded at Washington Park.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's The Darb, winner of the Withers in New York on Tuesday, is eligible to the American Derby. Mose Goldblatt, the western trainer of the Whitney stable, had received no word yesterday as to whether or not the son of St. Germans will be sent here for the Derby engagement. Most horsemen were of the opinion that a mile is about the limit for The Darb.

Recent applications for stabling accommodations received by the Arlington Park Jockey club for its 30 day meeting starting June 26 were those of the Chicago owned racing establishments of Mrs. Emil Denemark and James D. Norris' Peconic stable. Trainer Dick Watts is training 15 horses for Mrs. Denemark this season and the Peconic stable embraces a dozen head in charge of Eddie Hayward.

J. Fred Adams of Maryland, who owns and trains Rehoboth, Annimessic and other well known horses, has reserved stable space, as has R. W. Collins of Lexington and Charles Bacharach, prominent New Orleans sportsman. The fleet sprinter, Don Lee, is a member of the Collins string.

The stable of G. W. Ogle, well known on the Chicago circuit, also expects to make a determined bid for Arlington Park's rich array of stakes and purses. He has seven horses for himself and two for D. A. Wood, including Mountain Elk, Prince Tokalon, Indian Runner and Aegis.

Westrope Has Five Winners at Homewood

by the horse Black Dust and was unable to ride for nearly a month.

This enforced vacation cost him the honor of leading the jockeys in Cuba last winter. He came on to Tropical Park and was the leading jockey there during the late winter meeting. He made the pace for all the jockeys at Lexington and Churchill Downs during the spring meetings. He is far ahead of all his rivals at Washington Park.

He started his big day's work yesterday in the first race with a brilliant ride on Bedight, a 3 year old son of Dress Parade, which races for C. C. Van Meter of Lexington. He had to drive the Kentucky steed hard to withstand Flying Cadet's late challenge.

Brings In Outsider.

He didn't ride in the second race, but captured the third on Lady Menifee. She was heavily backed and Westrope had her in front nearly all the way.

The little fellow climbed up on Whirling, an outsider, in the fourth race. Bobsled and Gay World were backed to the exclusion of all of the others. But that made no difference to Westrope. He worked Whirling into the lead on the turn and his desperate riding down the stretch made it possible for Whirling to win easily. Bobsled was second and Gay World third.

His fourth triumph came on Cold Check, the horse which Abraham Bartelstein won with at tall odds a few days ago. The statistics show that Cold Check had seldom run two good races in succession throughout his career. Yet Westrope made the scoundrel run better in this victory than he had when he scored at the tall odds earlier in the season.

Bob Brown Named to Lead Purple Golf Team

The Northwestern university golf team last night chose Bob Brown as its captain for next year. Brown is a sophomore who has played a consistently strong game throughout the season. He finished fourth in the Big Ten tournament held recently at the Kildeer Country club. His home is in Arkansas City, Kas.

Time, :23 1-5, :47 2-5, 1:12 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Whirling, $27.84 straight, $7.54 place, $3.44 show; Bobsled, $3.44 place, $2.40 show; Gay World, $2.78 show. Winner trained by H. Saladin. Went to post at 3:48. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; second and third driving.

WHIRLING, under light urging first quarter and having speed from start, drew clear entering stretch, gradually increased her speed gamely, and won under strong hand riding. BOBSLED, taken back, saved much ground at stretch turn, stood pressure gamely, and outgamed GAY WORLD. Latter, close up from start and in hand first half mile, went gamely in the drive, but could not get to leader.

FIFTH RACE—One mile out of chute. Purse $700. Net value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Unna. Went to post at 4:16½. At post 6½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

COLD CHECK, cleverly ridden and away fast, had fine speed under steadying restraint the first five-eighths, took a big advantage quickly approaching final quarter, and weakened after seven-eighths, but was not seriously endangered. BIG BEAU had speed from the start, could not withstand winner at stretch turn, but held on gamely and outstayed CEE TEE. Latter, a strong factor from start and forced to race wide much of the trip, held on smartly and was strongest of all at end.

PANCOAST, fractious at post and away in motion, had keen speed, stubbornly withstood DESERT CALL at the turn, came away gradually in stretch and, tiring, won under strong pressure. DESERT CALL, away poorly but speedy, made up much ground in first quarter, bore out at stretch turn, and weakened in final drive. MARCH KING, away slowly, lost some ground and held on fairly well.

Winner trained by E. Ramsey. Went to post at 5:19½. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

PRINCE FARTHING, allowed to remain out of it for five-eighths, lost much ground improving his position, quickly disposed of the leaders, and won easily. YUCATAN, a strong factor from the start, rallied to pressure, but could not withstand winner, but held on well. HIS LAST, under occasional punishment the first five-eighths, weakened under hard urging in the stretch.

Winner trained by J. Bainton. Went to post at 5:48. At post 2¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

GO FETCH, racing improved and far back first three-quarters, improved position rapidly thereafter and, when drawing out, RED CASINO, kept well up, moved much ground and, holding on well, outstayed DOUBLE DATE. Latter went sluggishly from start, but responded after reaching final quarter, where she made up ground fast.

Anglers Test Early Fishing in Michigan

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Blaney, Mich., May 31.—Trout fishermen appropriately equipped with big waders and plenty of mosquito spray are bringing in large catches of brook trout. Tall, nodding trilliums are blossoming in the hardwood forests. Cherry trees are snow white with their thousands of fragrant flowers. Proud strutting partridges are drumming in the forests as we wade the trout streams. And the big rainbow trout which have come into the noisy streams leading into Lake Michigan, still are loafing in the deep holes to tantalize Waltonians.

Vacation Season Starts.

All of these signs plus the rich music of thousands of birds tell the early northwoods visitors that the vacation and fishing seasons have begun in the upper peninsula where many trout streams offer miles of sport with rod and line. At this season of the year, however, there are many things to take the trout fisherman's mind from his real work. For example, while wading the Crow the other day we looked into the sky above the stream to watch the spectacular nuptial flight of the woodcock, the swamp bird that usually is so shy and retiring the balance of the year. Now the males soar into the air uttering cries as they display themselves before their mates. It's a mad, spring spectacle, something that the trout fisherman never forgets.

The Black river [east of here] was visited this morning by a delegation of Chicago anglers which had designs against both brook and rainbow trout. Included in the party was Guy V. Reed, Highland Park banker, and his son, Robert; Joseph McNabb, Chicago manufacturer, and Paul W. Cook. When we reached the river our party was divided so that two kinds of fishing could be tried. The choice rested between regular stream fishing in the Black itself and an attack against the trout in one of its samll branches which had been dammed by a colony of beaver.

False Step Means Dipping.

As is usually the case when beaver get to work, this small stream has blossomed out into a trout hole that is as treacherous for wading fisherman as it is ideal for the fish. The whole water area is filled with logs and debris. One false step into a deep hole or one branch that can trip you and down you go into the cold water. McNabb did an unscheduled backward swan dive this morning due to a treacherous log. But the party continued just the same and the fishermen at the beaver playground connected with a dandy bunch of fish, some of which weighed in at a pound or better.

Ball Fans Urge Mack, McGraw Manage Stars

in the league it's not a stunt. You can bet it is very serious business to the executives and players of each National and American league club. And for that reason I pick Hornsby. I think he can handle players better than any one else in his league and the National league wants the best leadership possible in this game. It will need it."

Another for Mack, McGraw.

W. F. Murphy of 3534 Lexington street said Mack and McGraw should be the opposing managers.

Edward M. McDermott, 3515 South Union avenue, a coal salesman, preferred Mack and Grimm. John McInerney, 5010 West Washington boulevard, would like to see Mack and McGraw meeting again after 20 years. The count between them, McInerney pointed out, was one world series in 1905, won 4 games to one by McGraw, and two for Mack, in 1911 and 1913, four games to two and four to one, respectively.

Bush Knows American League.

Harold Meyers of Richmond, Ind., a Fair visitor, and also a regular visitor to Comiskey park and Wrigley field every summer, voted for Donie Bush.

"The National league can't afford to take any chances with the army of sluggers the American league can throw against them in this game," he said. "Donie Bush has had several seasons' experience against the men who will make up the American league team. He knows how to stop them, if it is possible. His experience in this particular instance is invaluable to the National league. I don't believe the National league can afford to overlook him. Mack, of course, is the most deserving and perhaps the best qualified in the American league."

Mr. Meyers was also interested in four tickets along the first base line "just back of the dugout in the first tier."

Presidents to Pick Managers.

The managers for the two teams in the Game of the Century will be selected by the presidents of the leagues, a right reserved for them, when articles of agreement between THE TRIBUNE, sponsor of the game, and the leagues were drawn up.

SENATORS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH YANKEES

Washington Wins Opener, 12-7; Loses 2d, 9-7.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—The Washington Senators today split a double header with the New York Yankees by losing the second game, 9 to 7, after winning the first, 12 to 7. Twelve pitchers worked in vain to stop the smacking of 49 base hits from the bats of the two teams during the contests.

The division gave the Yankees a two to one lead for the short series and retained their first place position by three full games.

Washington took the first game with a five run rally in the eighth after coming from behind to tie the score in the previous inning. Each team was forced to use four pitchers in the battle.

Yanks Get Eight Run Lead.

In the second game the Yankees opened up an eight run lead in the first two innings. Herb Pennock performed the unusual for the day by going the route, but he was hard pressed. The Senators kept pecking away, scoring five runs in the last three innings.

Eleven extra base hits boomed out in the first game, topped by Lazzeri's homer, while the second contest brought forth a homer by Manager Joe Cronin, a triple and a double by Ruth, and four other two base hits.

Lefty Gomez was the victim of Washington's five run winning attack in the late innings of the first game. Errors put two Senators on bases at the outset. After the bases were filled by a walk, singles by Manush and Goslin and a double by Cronin completed the work. Cronin's double was made off Brown, who relieved Gomez.

Russell Relieves Weaver.

Monte Weaver was made the victim of the Yankee attack at the outset of the second game. He yielded five runs in the first inning and then the attack against him continued in the next. Russell relieved him. Between them they yielded five runs to put the game out of reach. Score

Softball Battle to Open Squares, Firemen Program

Before the scheduled game between the Logan Squares and the Chicago Firemen at Logan Square park next Sunday a soft ball game will be played by the Hannin Didits and the Judge Schulmans, it has been announced by John Callahan, manager of the Squares. The soft ball game will start at 1:30 p. m.

Gordon McNaughton, who recently pitched for the Mills and beat the Colored All Stars, is a former Loyola academy athlete. At the academy he took part in three major sports, football, basketball, and baseball. This spring he was tried with the Boston Red Sox. He joined with the Mills two weeks ago when released by Boston.

In a recent deal, the Duffy Florals acquired Pitcher Toney Simms from the Chicago Firemen, who is scheduled to pitch one of the games next Sunday against the House of David.

The Spencer Coals play a night game tonight at Portage park, Irving Park boulevard and Central street, against Peters' Union Giants.

Douglas McWeeny's Aurora team last Sunday managed to play three ball games. After losing a double header in Aurora to the Chicago Firemen, the players sped to Rockford, where they played and won a night game. The team is booked to meet the Colored All Stars Sunday in a pair of games in Aurora.

Golf School Pupils Grasp Fundamentals

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE TRIBUNE Golf school, now being conducted on the 27 member courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, has entered its second week with 15,000 pupils apparently more eager to learn the fundamentals of the game than they were at the original announcement of the plan, entries for which smashed all records for an event of its kind. According to the professionals and operators conducting the classes, their students can't seem to get enough, hundreds of them lingering after the regular lesson for further tips, which in itself is some kind of record for schools.

They are an odd collection—these TRIBUNE Golf school pupils. Their ages range from seven to seventy; they're fat and lean, tall and short; the school has given many of them their first opportunity to take a golf club in hand, while others have played the game for years.

275 at Big Oaks.

Last night's classes were as large and as enthusiastic as ever. At Big Oaks 275 women took lessons from Jack Sturm and his assistants. Nearly 200 men were present at the special instructions given Monday night at this club and those who wished have been invited to appear tomorrow night.

Midwest had its usual large turnout. In addition to the regular classes, this club will give special instruction to boys and men at 9:30 a. m. each Wednesday and to women and girls at 9:30 a. m. each Thursday.

An interesting exhibition was arranged at Vernon, where Ted Woolley and his assistants instructed a class of 135 women last night. Sonia Nash, 15 year old daughter of Charles Nash, president of the club, took the rôle of the golfer in the making and showed what she has learned from the three lessons she has taken. Then Jane Weiller, women's western champion, appeared in the rôle of the finished golfer and gave an exhibition of the strokes which have carried her to victory in a number of tournaments.

Cuts Score 13 Strokes.

At Harlem there were 650 women present for the instructions given by Joe Philpot and his nine assistants. At Glenbard there were 220 and at Techny Fields, 120. At Pipe O' Peace, where 285 women were coached by William Pachot and Paul Hutchins, Mrs. J. L. Anderson reported that she had taken 13 strokes off her score as a result of what she had learned so far in the course.

Rob Roy had its usual enthusiastic group of pupils. The men's class at this club, which was postponed from Monday because of rain will be held Friday at 7:30 p. m.

At Walnut Hills, Pat Cusack gave instructions on the finish of the drive to a class of 110. More than 600 women were present at Chicago Meadows for a lesson from Les MacArthur and his assistants. This evening there will be another lesson at Chicago Meadows for a combined class of women and girls.

At Evergreen, 550 women were present for last night's lesson. An exhibition match has been arranged for next Sunday at 4 p. m. between the teaching professionals of Evergreen and Mid-City, the contest to be played at the former course.

Mid-City has installed a battery of lighted tees, where the pupils practiced last night until after 10 o'clock. The women's class at this club is so large that lessons will be given them every Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday at 9:30 a. m., 7 and 8 p. m. The youngest pupil is Gertrude Taylor, 9 years old.

Four More Weeks.

The school will continue for another four weeks after this week's lessons. At the conclusion of the sixth lesson, the home professional will choose his best pupil in each class, man, woman, boy and girl. This will leave a class of 108 prize pupils who will be brought together on July 5 in a form competition to be judged by Tommy Armour of Medinah, Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, Jock Hutchison of Glen View, Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, and Bob MacDonald.

The same 108 will meet on July 8 in an 18 hole medal play tournament. A total of 140 prizes, including bags, clubs, balls, and playing memberships will be awarded by THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association to these finalists.

Pick Sites, Dates for 3 Western Golf Tourneys

The Western Golf association has completed the task of naming the dates and sites of its three major tournaments, together with closing dates. The western junior will be held at the Normandie Country club, St. Louis, Mo., July 11 to 14; the western amateur at the Memphis Country club, Memphis, Tenn., July 24 to 29, and the western open at Olympia Fields Aug. 25, 26, and 27.

The closing date for entries to the junior is July 5, for the amateur July 17, and for the open Aug. 18. All entries should be sent to Henry C. Bartholomay, secretary of the association, at 175 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago. The fee for amateurs in the western open, formerly $20, is now $5, as is that for the amateur tournament. The fee for the junior is $1. Winners last year included Walter Hagen in the open, Gus Moreland in the amateur, and John Banks in the junior.

Gene Sarazen, defending American and British open golf champion, and Joe Kirkwood, most famed of the trick shot artists, who have been touring the entire eastern half of the United States in their specially built autocar, will give an exhibition at 1 p. m. today in the gymnasium of the Chicago Athletic association for members and their guests. Both will remain here to compete in the national open tournament starting at North Shore next Thursday.

The first one day handicap event of the Chicago District Golf association finally will be decided tomorrow at the Glen View club. The event, originally to have been held May 17, was postponed twice because of the heavy rains and the subsequent overflow of the north branch of the Chicago river.

The first important invitational tournament of the Chicago district season will be held Saturday and Sunday, when Midlothian will stage the running of its famous Derby, one of the oldest events of its type in the country.

Olin Dutra of Brentwood, Cal., holder of the national professional title, will return to defend his North Shore open title in the sixth annual tournament to be held at Sunset Valley, June 11 and 12. Tom Kelly, Sunset Valley pro, reports that entries are rolling in rapidly, due probably to the fact that the North Shore open will start the day after the U. S. open is scheduled to end. The North Shore open will be a two day event for the first time this year, eighteen hole rounds being played each day. Tickets, which are now $1.25 a pair, but will be $1 each on the dates of play, are now selling at Spalding's and the sports good departments of Marshall Field's and the Boston Store.

Golf will be an important part of the program when alumni of Northwestern university, hailing from fourteen states, hold their annual homecoming tomorrow and Saturday. A tournament with prizes for men and women players will begin Saturday morning at the Kildeer Country club, of which Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern, is president. Wilson, Dick Hanley and Ted Payseur will be in charge of the event. A feature of the day will be an exhibition match involving Chick Evans, Art Sweet, Don Heppes, and Bill Miller. Class reunions will be held at the club during the day.

Frank Sims Heads New Rifle Club in Chicago

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Frank S. Sims, attorney, 70 Cedar street, and Edwin W. Sims Jr., a banker, 112 Bellevue place, Chicago, are the president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of a new rifle club, which has been granted a charter by the National Rifle association.

Cubs Win, 5-1; Charley Root Stops Pirates

doubled to center, Hartnett and Jurges scoring and English stopping at third. Babe Herman then hit a fly to L. Waner.

Suhr got his second double and the third Pirate hit off Root with two down in the fourth. Piet walked and Grace for the second time fouled to Hartnett.

Hoyt Is Bad Medicine.

Hoyt took over the pitching job at the start of the sixth and wasn't very friendly. Jurges tapped to Piet and Root and English failed to offer at third strikes.

Harris becamp the Pirate pitcher at the start of the seventh. Bill Herman pushed off with his second and the Cubs' fifth hit. Babe Herman then exceeded his earlier dismal contributions by hitting into a double play, Stephenson walked, but was forced by Demaree.

L. Waner led off the seventh with a single to left and Lindstrom flied to Stephenson. L. Waner went to second while his brother was grounding out to Hendrick.

Hendrick led off the eighth with his triple, an enormous swat over Lindstrom's head. Hartnett then sent Lindstrom against the wall in left center for his fly, Hendrick trotting home.

Vaughan walked to start the eighth and stopped at second on Suhr's third hit, a single to right. Piet popped to Herman, but Grace singled to right, Vaughan scoring. Finney ran for Grace and was forced by Comorosky, who batted for Harris. Bill Herman made a fine play to get L. Waner's bouncer and dive to the bag in time to force Comorosky.

The Cub ninth was calm except for a hit by Babe Herman.

WARNEKE HURLS TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 31.—The Cubs will be back in Chicago tomorrow to meet the St. Louis Cardinals in the first of two games. Between the two encounters the Cubs on Friday will play an exhibition game with the Northwestern university nine. Roy Henshaw, late of the University of Chicago, will pitch for the Cubs.

Lon Warneke will go after his eighth win of the season and his second of the year over the Cardinals tomorrow afternoon. Lon beat Dean and the Cardinals 3 to 0 on the opening day of the season, his only meeting with the St. Louisans this year. Though Dean did some relief work Tuesday, the Cubs are expecting to see him in there against Lon tomorrow.

Gabby Hartnett came here yesterday morning with an average of .343 and a rating in the National league's big five. He leaves tonight with a mark of .317 and is not in the big five. Gabby didn't make a hit while here. Babe Herman lost 13 points, dropping to .273. He made two scratch hits in three games.

Coach John Schulte early this morning was seized with an attack of ptomaine poisoning. He was rushed to a hospital and at 5 o'clock this morning his condition was such that he asked that a priest be summoned. Johnny was reported better this afternoon.

The Cubs, with the shipping of Beryl Richmond back to Baltimore, are one under the player limit, with the absent Cuyler included. This has caused some wonderment as to what's in the air in the matter of an acquisition before June 15.

The Pirates appear jumpy and the boys who write the betting odds will do well to look them over before continuing them as favorites. During the two day stay here the Cubs saw Capt. Pie Traynor make three errors in two games. Floyd Vaughan also made three, two yesterday morning and one this afternoon. In the three games the Pirates made seven errors and the Cubs one. The one was a whim by the official scorer registered yesterday afternoon against Woody English in the ninth inning.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

AMERICAN DERBY.

HEAD PLAY'S showing in the American Derby at Washington Park Saturday will determine whether the colt's defeats in the Kentucky Derby and Wood Memorial were accidents. More important, they will determine in public estimation whether 3 year olds of 1933 are up to the usual standard.

In the Kentucky Derby, where Broker's Tip nosed out Head Play, general opinion was that the Mason colt was the better that day, with faulty piloting by Jockey Fisher determining the result. Then came Head Play's vindication in the Preakness and his subsequent defeat in the Wood Memorial at a shorter distance, for which various excuses were offered.

Broker's Tip now is out of training. But if some other in Saturday's field comes along and outfoots the My Play ion there will be a confused tangle in the 3 year old situation similar to that of 1932, which never was satisfactorily settled.

At Louisville, in advance of the Kentucky Derby, some skeptics expressed doubt about this year's 3 year olds. That was not unusual. Such doubt is expressed every spring and only the season's racing supplies the answer. Turfmen have a saying that when 3 year olds or 2 year olds keep on beating one another they are below average caliber. There are exceptions, as in 1931, when Twenty Grand and Mate alternated their triumphs and both were exceptional colts. Yet the belief persists.

Take last year, for instance. Burgoo King won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, then went lame. Gusto captured the American Derby and the Classic. Faireno triumphed in the Belmont Stakes and the Lawrence Realization. At the end of the season experts showed no enthusiasm over the 3 year olds developed.

Head Play's task Saturday, then, is to take a long step toward the championship or to leave the situation hopelessly mixed for later dénoument.

Day's End.

Barefooted, bathed in clover freshened
by spring rain,
There let me lie at twilight still,
And rest upon a clover-scented hill
Where yellow-green pastures, far and near,
Seem covered with azure atmosphere.
Where fleecy shell pink clouds of pearl mother hue
Keep forming pictures on the horizon
blue.
Just satisfied to lie, alone, outstretched,
and watch the sky,
Perhaps hum in song with the homing meadow lark.
Midst whispering trees that heave sweet smelling bark . . .
Healing the hungry need to breathe
The cool clear air that's there.
Then slowly by slender shadows and the distant angelus bell
I can tell day's end is wending:
For the sun is kissing the moon good night,
"It's your turn to play, moonlight . . .
Good night!" Eve Jurgens.

John Schank Passes.

John C. Schank, modern "master of Hawthorne," will be buried today. Hawthorne, inferior in appointments to Arlington, Washington Park, and Lincoln Fields, is one of the most popular, if not the most popular, courses with the racegoing public. Much of this public esteem was due to Schank's personality and his reputation for sterling honesty. Schank believed in giving the public a break. Liberal patronage was the public's expression of appreciation. Schank's passing is a distinct loss to Chicago racing.

Broaca, Banned by Yale, Signs to Pitch for Yanks

New York, May 31.—(AP)—Johnny Broaca, Yale pitcher who was the outstanding moundsman of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball league last year, but got into difficulties with the coaches and was dropped from the squad this spring, signed a contract today to play with the New York Yankees or any of their minor league affiliates. He is expected to report to the club Friday.

ST. PAUL OPEN STARTS TODAY; STARS COMPETE

St. Paul, Minn., May 31.—[Special.]—Some of the country's leading golfers gathered here today, ready to begin play tomorrow in the $5,000 St. Paul open tournament at the Keller Country club.

Leo Diegel, Bobby Cruickshank, George Von Elm, Ed Dudley, Tony Manero, and many others went to the course to look things over.

"The course is in excellent condition," a tournament official said, "but the players won't get a very long roll on their drives. The fairways have been soaked thoroughly by the unusually heavy rains of recent weeks and it will be some time before the ground becomes sufficiently hard baked to give maximum distance."

Approximately 70 will compete in the 72 hole tournament, which will continue until Sunday. First prize will be $1,500.

Brothers Lead 1st Round Play in Prep Tennis

John and Charles Shostrom, Parker High school's youthful tennis stars, dominated the play in the University of Chicago interscholastic tennis meet yesterday. The Shostrom brothers drew the largest galleries of the meet as they won in both the singles and doubles division.

John Shostrom, defending singles champion, dispatched Metcalf of Morgan Park, 6-1, 6-1, and Charles defeated Knock of Lane and Bartelman of New Trier, the latter a finalist in last year's doubles competition. Together the Shostroms defeated Rusk and Hunziker of Lindblom and Bickel and Burgess of Oak Park in the opening doubles play.

Oak Park's team qualified six in the singles and three doubles teams for the second round. Summaries:

SHIELDS LOSES TO BOUSSUS IN FRENCH TENNIS

Only American Man Entry Is Eliminated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUTEUIL, France, May 31.—The United States' lone representative in the men's singles play of the French hard court tennis tournament—Frank Shields, former member of the United States Davis cup squad—was eliminated in the fourth round today. He lost to Christian Boussus, left handed French star, who is ranked No. 3. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Among the players still in the running for the championship are Henri Cochet, defending titleholder; Boussus, and Marcel Bernard, all of France; Roderich Menzel, Czechoslovakia; Giorgio De Stefani, Italy; Dr. Daniel Prenn, Germany; J. J. Robbins, South Africa; Fred Perry and H. G. N. Lee, England; Jack Crawford, Australia, and Jiro Satoh and E. Itoh, Japan.

Crawford, Australia's leading player, and Margaret Scriven, England, won the mixed doubles championship earlier today. They defeated Fred Perry and Betty Nuthall, England, who held the title last year, 6-2, 6-3.

There will be play in both the men's and women's singles tomorrow, but no Americans are scheduled to appear. Helen Jacobs, American women's champion, and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke won their way to the quarter-finals yesterday and will not play tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—Speculative bonds, led by railroad issues, gained from 1 to 5 points at best levels today in active trading.

Lower priced bonds of companies which will benefit from the lifted commodity price levels continued in demand at improved prices, as did some of the speculative utilities.

The high grade division was without feature, but maintained a firm undertone. After early strength treasury and liberty bonds sold off to positions slightly below the Monday closing.

High Grades Firm.

Better grade rail and utility liens changed hands at or near the previous finals. Heaviness was noted in American Telephone issues. Trading in this section remained very light.

The best gains of the day were made by bonds of the Erie, Rock Island, New York Central, Pere Marquette, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Northern Pacific, Susquehanna and Southern railway. Some bonds of this type are now selling at double their lows for the year.

Rail Issues Active.

The largest turnover in other than high grade bonds was in such issues as Brooklyn-Manhattan 6s, Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, Chicago and North Western convertible 4¾s, Milwaukee adjustment 5s, Erie refunding 5s and 1975, Fisk 8s, New Haven refunding 4½s, New York Central debenture 4s, Southern railway general 4s and International Telephone debenture 5s.

An irregular advance in foreign bonds was led by French government issues on news that the government will adhere to the clause in these obligations.

St. Louis National Stockyards.

Investors' Guide: Could you give me some information as to St. Louis National Stock Yards common stock? This has been recommended to me as a good purchase.—B. W. L.

Answer: St. Louis National Stock Yards was originally established in 1872. It has about 600 acres of stockyards in East St. Louis, Ill.

The trend of both gross and net revenues has been generally downward since 1928, but fixed charges have been covered by ample margins.

Gross revenues for 1932 amounted to $1,255,000, against $1,425,000 for 1931, $1,584,000 for 1930, and $1,698,000 for 1929.

Net income in 1932 was $387,000, or $5.29 per share. Net for 1931 equaled $6.16 per share, against $7.15 in 1930 and $9.29 in 1929. Charges last year were earned 7.68 times.

The company finished 1932 with current assets of $159,000 and current liabilities of $198,000. Excess of current liabilities over current assets was $40,000, against working capital of $126,000 at the close of 1931.

There are outstanding $1,150,000 first 5s, due 1940. Capital stock consists of 73,100 no par shares. The stock was placed on a $1.25 quarterly dividend basis effective April 1, 1933. This followed a record of nine years' payment at the rate of $3 a year.

Central Power Co.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me your report and opinion on Central Power 5s, maturing 1957?—F. A. W.

Answer: Central Power company, a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities company, furnishes 54 Nebraska communities, including Hastings, with electricity, natural gas, and water.

Gross revenues for 1932 totaled $1,162,000, against $1,462,000 for 1931, $1,489,000 for 1930, and $1,433,000 for 1929.

Charges in 1932 were earned 1.45 times, subject to the adequacy of the reserve deducted for depreciation. This compared with coverage of 1.99 times in 1931, 2.23 times in 1930, 2.28 in 1929, and 2.39 in 1928.

The company finished 1932 with current assets of $437,000 and current liabilities of $322,000. Noncurrent items included an $84,000 note due from Middle West Utilities and an $18,000 note payable to affiliated company.

Funded debt consists of $5,234,000 first 5s, due 1957. They are secured by a first mortgage on all assets of the company. They are currently regarded as a business man's risk.

18 INDUSTRIES OUT OF 21 SHOW BUSINESS GAINS

Movies, Oil, Cement Only Laggards.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Eighteen businesses are enjoying improved conditions and only three report continued depression, Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper announced today after completing a nation-wide telegraphic survey of the economic situation.

ALFRED REEVES.

Among the industries reporting improvement through their trade associations were the wool manufacturers, meat packers, steel millers, automobile manufacturers, drygoods stores, grocery stores, farm implement manufacturers, credit associations, and boot and shoe makers.

Only the motion picture producers, petroleum producers and cement manufacturers reported continued depression or threatening conditions.

Chicago's Trade Rises.

Three of the 25 replies received by Secretary Roper came from trade associations in the Chicago area, and all three reported better conditions. Here are excerpts from some of the replies which were received:

W. W. Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers—"Volume of sales of meat has been maintained. During last two months there has been a slight increase in volume of sales of some products."

Alfred Reeves, vice president of National Automobile Chamber of Commerce—Production of 189,284 units in April exceeded April a year ago by 22 per cent, indicating an upturn greater than seasonal.

H. H. Heimann, manager of National Association of Credit Men—"Survey just completed indicates considerable improvement in collections in 18 states, with but one state reporting poor collections, and the others reporting collections same as last month."

Cotton Industry Picks Up.

G. A. Sloan, president of Cotton Textile Institute—"Employment and production in the cotton textile industry during the month of May compared favorably with conditions prevailing in 1928 and above the average in the first four months of this year."

National Electric Manufacturers' association—Normal seasonal increase in domestic refrigeration sales is being definitely exceeded. Commercial refrigeration sales, probably due to beer, are above normal expectations.

F. W. Hobbs, president of National Association of Wool Manufacturers—"General conditions in the wool manufacturing industry are improving. More people are employed, production is increasing, sales are larger and prices have advanced."

J. O. Ball, National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association—Small increase in dollar volume compared with year ago is reported by a number of units in our industry.

Furniture Starts Moving.

A. P. Haake, director of National Association of Furniture Manufacturers—Slight upward trend during last four weeks.

G. B. Heck, secretary of American Paint and Varnish Manufacturers' association—Business and employment both trending upward.

Will H. Hays, president of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America—Motion picture industry has not shown any marked nationwide improvement.

R. P. Lamont, American Iron and Steel Institute—Steel operations have increased continuously since last week in March.

A. J. Byles, president of American Petroleum Institute—Betterment of industry would become immediately apparent upon rational control of crude oil production.

C. E. Sweitzer, National Retail Dry Goods association—Favorable trend in both production and employment. Definite upturn in sales.

P. S. Willis, president of Association of Grocery Manufacturers—Sales are 10 per cent ahead over last year.

John Benson, president of American Association of Advertising Agencies—Increase in newspaper advertising volume indicates better business for advertising agencies.

RAIL CHIEFS WILL MEET HERE JUNE 6 ON CUT IN FARES

Executives of railroads represented in the Western Passenger association will meet at the Union League club on June 6 to act on the question of passenger fare reductions.

A majority of the roads are known to favor some reduction. Gossip in railroad circles is to the effect that most of the western roads favor reducing the present basic rate of 3.6 cents a mile to 2 cents a mile in coaches and to 3 cents a mile in Pullmans, with elimination of the Pullman surcharge.

Gold Pent Up, World Seeks a Substitute

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Momentous developments are impending in the precious metal markets of the world.

When the world economic conference meets in London two weeks hence one of the principal proposals will be a world-wide scaling down of currencies. Cheaper money means higher domestic prices for goods, which is what many of the nations of the world desire.

The first step—abandonment of the gold standard—has now been taken by every important nation except France and by most of the smaller nations. Now, if the leading countries can agree upon a scheme for going back on the gold standard at new levels, the cheapening of money can be made permanent and the consequent higher commodity price level can be stabilized.

That would mean permanently raising the price of gold in terms of the currencies of the various countries.

It would also mean raising the price of silver and all other precious metals, for they would participate in a general rise in commodity price levels as a result of currency depreciation. Currency depreciation is merely another name for inflation.

The future price movement of silver, however, will be complicated by other influences. The price of silver, like that of any other commodity, is governed by supply and demand. At the London conference pressure will again be applied by silver producing interests to persuade the various nations to increase the demand for silver by using more of it as money.

Meanwhile people all over the world are getting a series of shocks that may change the traditional attitude toward gold as a precious metal. In the United States and elsewhere it is impossible to get gold. National treasuries are locking up all the metal they can get hold of and are refusing to pay it out in exchange for money or government bonds. Even if the United States goes back on a modified gold standard many people believe that it will not permit the withdrawal of gold in small pieces by citizens. It may be used only as a means for settling international balances.

Up to the present America has maintained the fiction of holding the dollar at par in terms of gold even though no gold is paid out.

Thus, you can sell gold to the treasury at 20.67 an ounce, but you cannot buy it at that or any other price. Other nations have permitted gold bullion to find its own level as their currencies have depreciated, just as they have let the prices of other commodities—beans, lead, pork, wheat, wool, etc.—seek their own levels. Where this happens the gold producer gets a break because he receives more money for his output.

If in the future the government treasuries are to hoard an increasing proportion of the world's gold, what will be the effect on the world's precious metal markets?

The abandonment of the gold standard by most of the world has brought to the people the realization that gold has been in large part a shibboleth.

Marc S. Goldsmith of Goldsmith Brothers' Smelting and Refining company, an expert in precious metals, tells me that a tarnishless alloy of silver would be an excellent substitute for gold in the arts and in commercial uses. He does not doubt that such an alloy will be developed.

He does not think that such a development would revolutionize the precious metals market, however, because the proportion of the silver output that could be used as a substitute for gold in the arts and in industry would be small in proportion to the total consumption of silver.

Frazier Jelke & Co. say that the low price of silver is not due to overproduction but to the decreasing use of the metal as money. During the last 50 years nation after nation, to gain a temporary advantage for itself, has debased or demonetized its silver coinage. Since 1900 there has been a reduction of more than two-thirds in the use of silver by central banks as a reserve against paper money. As silver has lost its monetary standing, melted coins and bank reserves have been offered as a commodity, depressing the world price.

In the eleven years from 1920 through 1930 in addition to more than 2½ billion ounces of new silver production world markets have had to reabsorb 383 million ounces of old silver resulting from debasement of coinage and other supplies.

In ordinary times the absorption of silver is divided as follows: Industrial uses, 20 per cent; non-Chinese coinage, 8 per cent; Indian hoardings, 37 per cent, and Chinese uses, 35 per cent. In the United States most of the industrially consumed silver goes into making photographic film.

Silver output cannot be effectively controlled because more than two-thirds of total production is derived as the by-product of the mining of copper, lead, and zinc.

When some one develops a suitable alloy that will make silver "good as gold" it is not impossible that the relative values of gold and silver in the public mind may be greatly altered, especially if it is impossible to get gold.

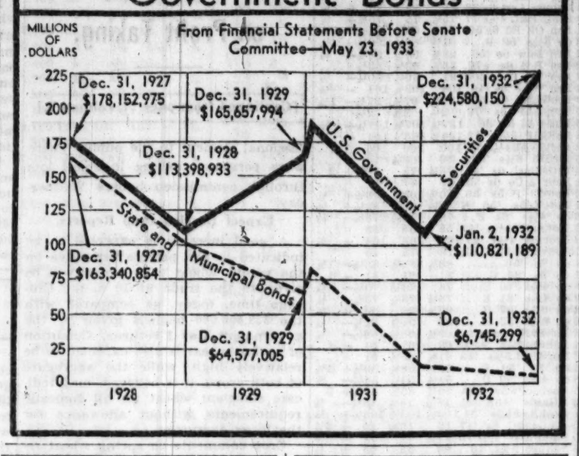
How J. P. Morgan and Co. Shifted from Municipals to Government Bonds



Brokers Study Security Bill; Curtail Sales

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

La Salle street is perplexed by the new securities bill signed by President Roosevelt last Saturday and until its provisions are clarified and interpreted by the federal trade commission the sale of securities will be considerably restricted, according to a number of financial authorities.

"Most houses now have their attorneys at work studying the bill," Frank Gordon, president of the Investment Bankers' association, stated yesterday. "Until they find out what their liability will be, houses handling the issue of securities will move carefully.

Await Federal Interpretation.

"Of course the federal trade commission has not had time to interpret the bill for us and we are awaiting instructions from that body. As matters now stand we feel that there is too great a risk for us to handle securities when there is a possibility that some one may come back to us 60 or 90 days after we have sold a security that has declined in price with the threat of a suit to regain his loss."

One of the largest houses in the country which sells mainly to banks now has its attorneys in New York—the headquarters of the company—studying the bill.

"Until the provisions of the bill are clarified we are making no more offerings other than governments to our banker customers," an official of the house stated. "Although municipals are exempted under the provisions of the bill, we are not offering these securities.

Make No Recommendations.

"We are making absolutely no recommendations. When an order comes in from a bank for a specified security we shall fill it, since there is no liability under such circumstances.

"The security bill should bring the bond business to a standstill unless dealers are given assurances that they will not be penalized when circumstances arise over which they have no control."

A partner in one of the leading brokerage houses in La Salle street said that he had tried to make head or tail of the bill but without much success.

"One paragraph refers you to another and back again," he remarked.

A number of houses have temporarily discontinued sale of corporation bonds pending legal opinion on the act. The following companies are reported to have taken this action: First of Boston corporation, Northern Trust company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Guaranty company of New York.

Senate Votes Roosevelt Power to End Mail Contracts

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—In a double blow at federal air and ocean mail subsidies, the senate today voted to give the President discretionary power to annul existing mail contracts and to fix a salary limitation upon companies holding such contracts. It authorized the cancellation of any mail contract if the holder paid individual salaries to officers exceeding $17,500.

GRAINS EASIER WHEN INFLATION STIMULUS FADES

Prices Off Fractions on Profit Taking.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Constant stimulation in the way of inflation news is apparently needed to keep the grain markets on the upgrade. The trade construed the developments over the holiday as featureless. While houses with eastern connections were aggressive buyers and caused an early advance of ¾ cents in wheat, the market flattened out later, dropping 1½ to 1¾ cents from the high point, and finished near the bottom.

Final prices were ⅝ to ⅞ cents lower with May at 72 to 71⅞ cents, July, 73¾ to 73⅝ cents; September, 75½ to 75⅝ cents, and December, 78¼ to 78⅜ cents.

Talk of a probable reaction in the wheat market has been heard for several days. The idea that it would be well to take profits on holdings of long grain and await a lower level before reinstating holdings is now regarded as having spread from the pro-

U. S. Deficit Near 3 Billions In 11 Months of Fiscal Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—The government today closed the eleventh month of its fiscal year with its total disbursals exceeding its total income by 2 billion 880 million dollars, the treasury department revealed.

On its ordinary budget the government has run into debt 1 billion 685 million dollars since the fiscal year began. Operations of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which are carried in a separate account, have resulted in another deficit of 1 billion 195 millions, bringing the grand total to 2 billion 880 million.

Before the fiscal year closes at the end of June the two deficits will amount to at least 3 billion dollars, it is estimated. They will reach approximately their last year's total, which was 3 billion 153 millions.

R. F. C. Uses Up Savings.

The deficit on the ordinary budget has been cut 42 per cent under that of a year ago, and the reduction thus far has amounted to about 800 millions. Almost all this saving, however, has been offset by the R. F. C. Its special account shows a deficit more than five times larger than that of a year ago.

Treasury books carry the R. F. C. in a special amount so that it does not add to the ordinary deficit on the theory that eventually the corporation's advances will come back through repayments. For the time being, however, its operations add to the current excess of disbursals over income.

The smaller deficit on the ordinary budget has been due to reduced expenditures rather than increased revenue, the treasury reports show. Ordinary expenditures have dropped almost 22 per cent, but despite additional taxation revenues had increased only slightly.

Ordinary Expenditures Cut.

Ordinary expenditures through the first 11 months of the fiscal year total about 3 billion 470 million dollars, compared with 4 billion 450 millions during the same period last year. The reduction has been due mainly to savings on general costs and on liquidation of the farm board.

Receipts included in the ordinary budget aggregate a little more than 1 billion 780 million dollars, compared with 1 billion 765 millions a year ago, according to preliminary figures. The increase of some 15 million dollars has been the net result of all new taxation during the last year, including the beer tax.

PREDICTS STEEL OUTPUT ABOVE 45% THIS WEEK

Indications that operations of steel mills will be well above 45 per cent of capacity by midweek were noted yesterday by the Daily Metal Trade of Cleveland. At the opening of the week additional open hearth activity brought the rate of the Cleveland district to 64 per cent, the highest level since April, 1931, says the newspaper.

Bolt and nut makers have announced a price increase effective through the rest of the second quarter. Pig iron is moving at the best rate in several years, it is said.

STOCKS SAG AS TRADERS TURN PROFIT TO CASH

Leaders Lose Most; 6,000,000 Shares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—Having forged ahead for three successive days, the stock market had to stand and deliver to the profit takers today. Such outstanding performers in the upturn as American Can, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Crown Cork and Seal, Columbian Carbon, J. I. Case, Coca Cola, Celanese corporation, United Aircraft, U. S. Steel, International Business Machine, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol were relieved of anywhere from 1 to more than 4 points of their recent gains.

On the other hand, a wide assortment of specialties succeeded in weathering the storm without slackening their progress, and the final tables were generously decorated with plus signs.

Trading was again of heavy proportions, the final count running above 6,000,000 shares. At one time during the morning dealings the ticker was

DEBATE POLICY OF RESTRICTION ON INSURANCE

State Heads Meet to Plan Future Rules.

Heads of the insurance departments of a score of states and other leading figures in the insurance world arrived in Chicago yesterday to attend the annual meeting of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, which opens this morning at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Representatives of nearly every other state in the union also will attend the meeting, at which will be threshed out a number of important questions.

The commissioners will take up the question of emergency regulations governing loan and cash surrender privileges of life policy holders. The emergency rules placing severe restrictions on loan and cash surrender privileges were adopted at a special meeting of commissioners in Chicago last March.

May Prolong Restrictions.

The consensus in insurance quarters is that the commissioners will prolong the present emergency rules. Some liberalization of the regulations may be made, however.

A number of other insurance organizations are holding concurrent meetings here during the commissioners', convention.

A special committee of three commissioners met yesterday in an attempt to settle a dispute of long standing between the "marine" insurance companies and the casualty concerns.

The casualty group have contended for a number of years that inroads into their field were being made by "marine" insurance companies, whose business is to insure property in transit. For a number of years they have been writing a "personal property floater" policy which the casualty companies contended was an encroachment on their field.

Committee Adjusts Difference.

The committee is understood to have barred this type of policy and arrived at a definition of "marine" insurance satisfactory to both groups. The report will be submitted to the convention. The special committee consisted of Commissioners George S. Van Schaick, New York; Howard P. Dunham, Connecticut, and H. E. McLain, Indiana.

In connection with the convention a dinner was given last night at the Stevens hotel in honor of Ernest Palmer, Illinois commissioner appointed by Gov. Horner. The dinner was tendered by the insurance interests of the state and attended by a number of national insurance leaders here for the convention.

STERLING SOARS OVER $4, REACTS, CLOSES LOWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21.—The dollar recovered in terms of the gold standard exchanges today but continued to cheapen in terms of sterling, despite the efforts of the official British control to combat the rise in the pound.

Sterling advanced to $4.02, the highest price since May 6, but subsequently reacted under control selling to $3.99¼. This level, the low and closing price for the day, was ¼ cent higher than Monday's final price.

Francs sold off 6¾ points to 4.65¼, while Dutch guilders were down 65 points to 47.60 cents, belgas were off 5 points to 16.50 cents and Swiss francs lost 32 points to 22.88 cents. In the case of each of the four gold standard exchanges the final price was also the lowest price for the day.

Hearing on Middle West Note Agreements Due Today

A hearing will be held today before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley on the petition of the receivers of the Middle West Utilities company for approval of the agreements entered into between the noteholders' protective committee and the Chicago bank creditors of the committee. The agreements represented a compromise of counter claims and were designed to stave off bankruptcy for the 2 billion dollar holding company.

Three Downstate Banks Given Permit to Reopen

Three closed state banks were authorized to reopen today by State Auditor Barrett last night. They are:

Hinckley—Hinckley State bank.

Roanoke—Roanoke State bank.

Flatrock—The Flatrock bank.

STOCKS SAG AS TRADERS TURN PROFITS TO CASH

Leaders Lose Most; Volume 6,000,000 Shares.

Inflation Still Main Theme.

Dollar depreciation and prospects of credit and currency expansion continued to influence buying, particularly for the long pull. The mid-week trade reviews offered further encouragement to the constructive side, particularly those of the steel industry, which told of further expansion in mill operations at a season when output is generally beginning to point toward lower levels.

Disclosures of the Morgan banking inquiry at Washington came in for wide discussion among boardroom customers, but brokers said the investigation was apparently having no effect on market operations.

Incidentally, the market had to operate without benefit of brokerage house "tips" today. Brokers generally refused to give professional advice as to the worth or prospects of this or that stock pending further light on their status and prerogatives under the new federal securities act.

Group Movements Not Uniform.

Group movements were by no means uniform whichever way the market was moving—and it swung in both directions during the course of the day. Thus, in the so-called repeal section while U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Crown Cork were seeking lower ground, National Distillers and Park & Tilford were carrying on in the old manner, the former recording a net gain of more than 2 points.

In the mining department the copper shares put up a brave front, being buoyed by reports of better prices and improved prospects for the industry. Anaconda scored a fractional gain and Kennecott succeeded in holding its own. Homestake Mining, lately so ambitious, took a nose dive of 9 points simultaneously with cable news of further weakness in the dollar.

The rails were unable to buck the trend despite preliminary estimates of another rise in the weekly carloadings figures. Atchison, New Haven, Union Pacific and other standbys had to cede ground.

CATTLE, LAMBS TAKE UP ADVANCE AS HOGS DECLINE

Heavy Receipts of Swine Lower Prices 15-20c.

Cattle and lambs ruled strong to higher again yesterday, but hogs dropped back to last week's low point under pressure of liberal receipts. Tuesday's holiday arrivals were counted in the day's receipts, which further increased the available supply of hogs yesterday. Top sales at $5, were 10 cents under Monday's peak and 15 cents lower than at the close of last week.

Not for three weeks has the top price been below the $5 line, although it has been that low four times in the last ten days. Losses of as much as 15 to 20 cents were registered in the later selling yesterday, the general average for the whole day at $4.85 showing 15 cents decline from Monday and 20 cents loss since the close of last week.

While prices sank lower under burdensome supplies the undertone in the trade is not particularly weak. Larger local packers showed a willingness to buy on the dip and were paying $4.80 and $4.85 for good grades.

Cattle Top at New High.

Several classes of cattle established new 1933 highs yesterday. Fancy 1,000 pound yearling steers soared to $7.60 on the generally strong to 25 cents higher market. This was 10 cents over the previous high mark of the year and 20 cents above the top for cattle on the corresponding day in 1932.

Prime 1,352 pound steers established a new high of $7.35 for heavies. Several loads of 1,500 to 1,600 pound averages cashed at $6.50 to $7, several top tons for the various weights being made in this realm. One load averaging 1,648 pounds reached $6.60.

The feature of the day was the sale of 22 extremely heavy steers, including some that exceeded a ton in weight. They average 1,883 pounds at $5.90. These were the heaviest cattle seen here in many months.

Butcher stock shared in the strength. Cows were firm and heifers strong to 25 cents higher, both light and heavy animals getting in on the rise. Top heifers at $6.75 equaled the previous high 1933 figure for this class.

Lambs Strong.

The new crop of native spring lambs maintained a good strong basis, going to city butchers as high as $8 and to packers at $7.75. The bucks were rejected at the usual $1 discount. One load of wooled lambs reached $7, while bulk of the shorn stock sold at $6.25 to packers. Aged ewes brought $2.75 and under.

Following the custom of the trade the prefix "spring" will be dropped in speaking of this year's crop of lambs beginning today. This classifies the old crop lambs in the market as yearlings.

BUTTER AND EGGS EASIER

Selling pressure wiped out early advances made by butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter closing ¼@¾c lower, while eggs were unchanged. Higher stock prices at the opening brought in fairly active buying of both butter and eggs, but profit taking soon developed and the market reacted. Butter moves was fairly favorable, the four markets reporting 248,000 lbs less into storage in the last three days than the year ago movement. Eggs were relatively bearish, the four markets reporting 41,000 cases more in than last year for the three day period. Sales: Butter, 42 cars; eggs, 100 cars. Prices follow:

Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway Company

General Mortgage Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, Due May 1, 1951

CALL FOR DEPOSIT OF BONDS

In view of the further proceeding had on May 18, 1933, at Chicago, in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, following the filing on April 13, 1933, by Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway Company of a petition under Section 77 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, the undersigned Committee now deems it necessary that it be in a position to take effective action. Accordingly, holders of these General Mortgage bonds are urged promptly to deposit them under and pursuant to a Deposit Agreement, which is being prepared and will be presently available. Bonds should be deposited with Chemical Bank & Trust Company, 165 Broadway, New York, N. Y., as Depositary for the Committee, and must be in form transferable by delivery, with all interest coupons attached which mature on and after May 1, 1933. Bonds should be deposited promptly so that there may be early and concerted action.

Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for deposited bonds. Each depositor should advise the Depositary as to the name in which the certificate of deposit should be issued, the address to which it should be sent, and the address to which notices are to be sent.

The undersigned members of the Committee represent institutions which hold substantial amounts of the bonds and they have agreed to serve without compensation. The Secretary of the Committee will be glad to answer all inquiries.

Dated, New York, June 1, 1933.

QUINLAN & TYSON REPORT ACTIVITY IN SALES, LEASES

North Shore Woman Buys Barrington Farm.

BY AL CHASE.

Increased activity in both real estate leases and sales is reported by Quinlan and Tyson, Inc. Eight Evanston store leases are announced and two suburban sales one in Evanston and one in Barrington

The Feltman & Curme Shoe company, now at 617 Davis street, Evanston, has leased larger quarters at 613 Davis street. It is stated the store will be remodeled in the near future.

Davis Street Lease.

The store at 1114 Davis street has been leased by Miss Lucy Furlong for a delicatessen shop. Anna E. Westman and Margaret Robertson have rented the shop at 1623½ Orrington avenue for the sale of knitwear and accessories. The space at 1312 Chicago avenue has been leased by Miss Mattie Nelson for a dry goods store.

Four other of the eight leases, all of which were negotiated by Roland H. Peterson, of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., were the store at 1611 Sherman avenue, to Morris Russell, for women's apparel and sportwear; 1555 Sherman avenue to Herman J. Spoerrer, for lamps and accessories; 703 Main street, to Joseph Kucra, for a shoe repair shop, and the Kramer Manufacturing Opticians have rented the store at 1611 Sherman avenue.

Buys Farm Near Barrington.

The Barrington sale was fifty acres of the Russell T. Gray farm, about four miles north of Barrington, purchased by Mrs. Corinne E. B. Booth of Highland Park. The tract is rolling, with a stream running through a heavily wooded ravine. Mrs. Booth is planning to build a country home this summer on a high knoll near the edge of the ravine. Robert S. Crane of Quinlan and Tyson, represented the seller.

The Evanston sale was the residence at 714 Colfax street. William F. Patten, who has been a resident of the university suburb since 1908, sold the property to Prof. William F. Byron, assistant professor in the department of sociology. Daniel H. Boone of Quinlan and Tyson, was the broker.

These positions are permanent, immediately substantial. Modest salaries will have to take time to learn, and during this time may have to be satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125 to $200 per month. If necessary qualifying can be established. Newest mechanical invention makes possible the addition of a few more men to our organization, and after the right ways of working and thinking are learned and applied makes possible substantial increases in weekly pay checks.

Some idea of how powerfully saleable our product is of how well it meets present-day demands, was indicated again at our local meetings last week. For instance, a former advertising man, H. H., told how he made over $80 for the preceding week—while a former consulting engineer, E. F., earned $69 for the week; Mr. H. made $88; J. E. B., previously locomotive engineer, reported how he made $185 that same week. A former auto salesman made $115 that same week; one of our experienced men made slightly over $250 for the week; a former merchant had earnings of $140 that same week.

At no time during the entire period our company has been in business has it been so successful as at present. This is true of our local branches, many of our salesmen from coast to coast, and likewise of our world business. But such progress has been the history of our business since the invention of this wonderful product.

The first model of this product, Electrolux (hot refrigeration) was introduced in Europe and captured every market it entered as fast as organizations could be employed and manufacturing extended. Today we have five great European factories and our sales there are double the combined sales of all other companies attempting to compete in those markets. Less than three years are the present model of this product have introduced into the United States and the results to date are of most astonishing success. 1933 will be our fourth consecutive record sales year!

No previous sales experience required. We teach you how to sell this product in this tremendous market. Even though you have never sold anything before or have had no idea that you have sales ability, this may mean your opportunity. We advise you to come in and take a look at this wonderful product and we will talk with you as to the possibilities of your earning the business. No charge is made for instruction and there is no expense of any kind in taking up the work.

Among other Chicago men answering a previous ad like this, E. R. started here recently and made over $40 his second week and nearly $50 his third week. Last week B. C. made over $20 his first day, and H. R. made $63 for the week, after only 2 days' experience, illustrating the range of earnings available to the average man.

We are interested in getting good men who are honest, ambitious, industrious and who really want a genuine opportunity to make something of themselves and to make real money regularly and honestly for their families. Such men this opportunity will mean great happiness and success.

If you feel qualified and really want something permanent, come in for a personal interview, Thursday morning, June 1, 9 to 1. We have made arrangements to have an executive available at three of our local offices, as follows: West Side, 327-333 Madison-Kedzie Bldg., 2 S. Kedzie-av.; South Side, 430 Hyde Park Bank Bldg., 53d and Lake Park-av.; North Side 215 McGraham Bldg., 1040 Wilson-av. Call at nearest office for personal interview Thursday morning only.

A MODERATE GUARANTEE YOUR FIRST day payable end of week. If you are really seeking permanent connection see us. 9 to 12 a. m., 2400 W. Madison-st., Rm. 628.

HOTELS AND APARTMENT HOTELS.

Out-of-Towners!

Those friends and relatives of yours who will be strangers in Chicago for the World's Fair will want to know where to live comfortably, yet moderately, during their stay in Chicago.

The furnished apartments as listed below include twenty-four hour desk and hotel service, gas, light, refrigeration, linen, and maid service and are close to the lake, parks, and excellent transportation to the fair grounds.

Make a selection for your friends and let them know that their worries for living accommodations for their "Century of Progress" visit are over.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

GOOD ADVICE

Among the outstanding places in Chicago for World's Fair visitors to inspect is the

STUDEBAKER

BUILDING OF AUTO VALUES

at 26th and Michigan—where a mammoth selection of fine used cars is offered at the lowest prices in the country. A 5 days' driving trial guarantee protects you.

CADILLAC COUPE, 1927. It was driven very little and we gave it a thorough "going over" in our own shop. If you are figuring on spending $250 and up for a good Coupe, you'll find this Cadillac is the very thing for only $145.

NASH SEDAN, 1929. When we say this Nash looks and runs like new, we really mean it. The finish sparkles and the upholstery looks entirely unused. Motor is 100%. Only $195.

OAKLAND COUPE, 1929 Sport model with rumble seat and very good rubber. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery appears unworn. Dandy performance. Many extras. It's a steal at $185.

WILLYS KNIGHT SEDAN, 1929. It's the last word for beautiful appearance and sparkling performance. Has many costly extras. For today, $195.

AUBURN 8 SEDAN, 1930. Very fully equipped. You'll get a real thrill when you drive this, and the appearance will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Will be sold at once for only $375.

VIKING CONV. COUPE, 1930; with spacious rumble seat and many extras. Finished a smart color. The lines are very trim and the motor has plenty of speed and power. It's a winner at $325.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN, 1931 Dictator 8 with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. From bumper to bumper this Studebaker spells class with a capital "C." Has magnificent performance. It looks and runs like a $1,000 car, but our price is only $545.

BUICK 8 SPORT COUPE, 1931 De Luxe model with wire wheels, 6 practically new tires. If you're a hard person to please, this car ought to go over big with you. It looks like a $1,000 dollar and has a sweet running motor. A dealer could afford to buy it and resell at a profit, considering that we priced the car at only $785.

STUDEBAKER ROADSTER, 1931 President 8 with 6 wire wheels and roomy rumble seat. We claim that the finish, upholstery, tires and motor are like new, and you'll agree with us if you see and drive it. For quick sale, $785.
